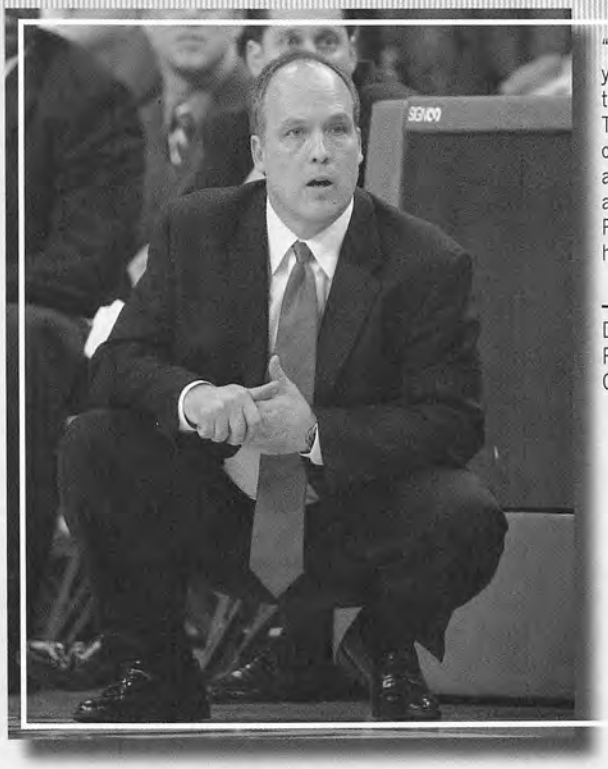
NEBRASKA BASKETBALL

One year into the Doc Sadler era and there is no question about the excitement that is building around Nebraska basketball. Nearly all of that enthusiasm comes as a direct result of the energetic and engaging personality at the helm of the program.

While the building process on the court is still in progress, Sadler and his staff have been up and running on the recruiting trail, where they reeled in a top-25 class in their first year at Nebraska. Once they put the new talent alongside preseason All-Big 12 center Aleks Maric and the other seven returning letterwinners, Sadler hopes the 2007-08 season will be another building block in the foundation of success at Nebraska.



"I've known Doc for many years and I've seen his teams play for many years. This guy can recruit, he can coach, he stresses academics and he has a great way with people. People gravitate toward him."

– Gar Forman,
Director of Player Personnel,
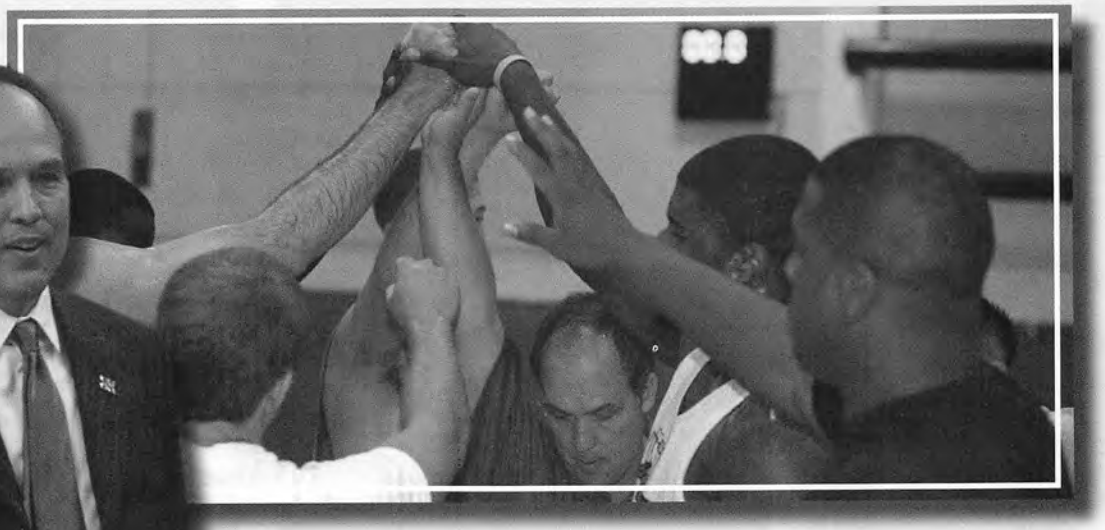
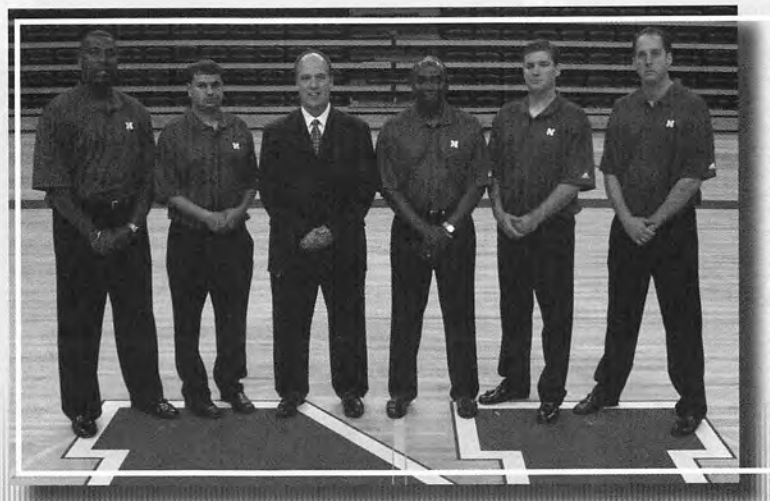
Chicago Bulls





Doc Sadler and his staff have combined for more than 85 years of college coaching experience. In that time, they've accumulated more than 660 victories as head coaches and sent an impressive total of 31 players on to the NBA.

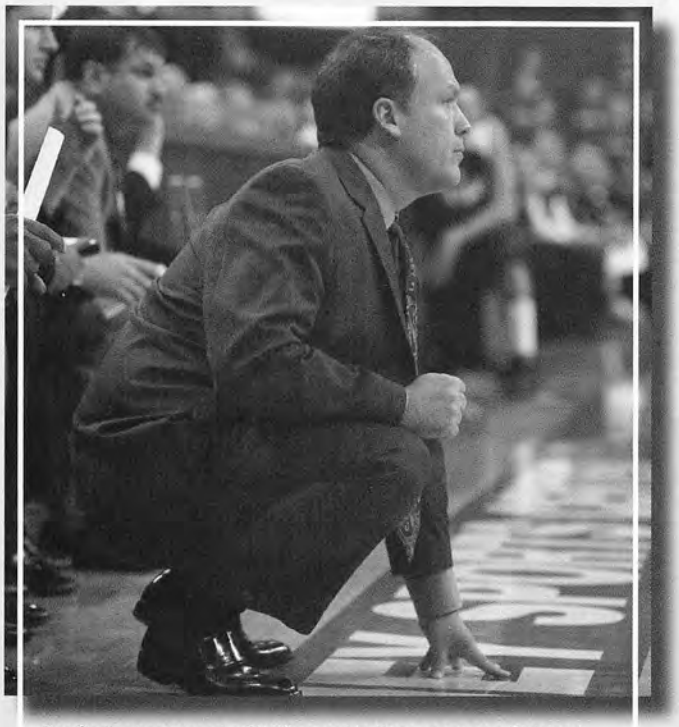
"How many of you remember the greatest years of your life? It was probably when you were in college.

These kids are in college. They should have fun. I'm not going to cheat them out of one day; not out of one single day. That's my only goal.

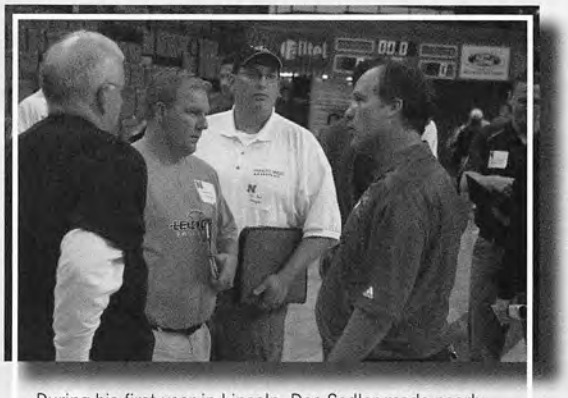
And when I walk into a family, that's what I'm going to tell them. I'm not going to tell them about playing time. I'm not going to tell them about anything else, but that I won't cheat their son out of one single day out of the greatest time of their life. "

– Coach Doc Sadler,
at his hiring press conference Aug. 8, 2006

Since Day One, Doc Sadler has looked for ways to bridge the past with the present while building a solid base for the future. During the summer of 2007, Sadler hosted a golf tournament that included a number of former Husker players and coaches, including (above from left) NBA veterans Eric Piatkowski, Erick Strickland and Nebraska's all-time winningest coach, Danny Nee. Following the golf outing, the Rebounders Club had a dinner and auction to benefit the basketball program. Among the other former Huskers in attendance were Andy Markowski (below left) and NBA veteran Tyronn Lue (below right).



Doc Sadler has earned a 65-32 record in three years as a Division I head coach. With 17 wins last season, he ranks third in Nebraska history for wins by a first-year coach, and the five straight victories to open his career at Nebraska were the most in eight decades.



During his first year in Lincoln, Doc Sadler made nearly 150 public appearances, never passing on an opportunity to interact with the public and talk about his two favorite pastimes: basketball and the Huskers. Sadler also presented a free coaches clinic and hosted the first Doc Sadler Basketball Camps for children of all ages.

MAGICAL EXPERIENCE

Husker fans have created an intimidating environment for visiting teams since the Bob Devaney Sports Center opened 31 years ago. The Huskers own an all-time record of 368-118 (.757) in the building, including a 226-32 (.876) mark vs. non-conference opponents.

Nebraska, which is 205-68 (.751) at home since the start of the 1990-91 season, has seen its significant home-court advantage increase over the past few years behind the support of the "Red Zone" student section.

The Devaney Center's faithful fans help create a memorable game day atmosphere that is enjoyed by Husker fans of all ages throughout the 13,595-seat facility. Herbie Husker (far right), the Nebraska Yell Squad and Big Red Express Band also play a large role in creating an exciting game day experience at Nebraska.

BOB DEVANEY SPORTS CENTER

Named after Nebraska's longtime football coach and athletic director, the 13,595-seat Bob Devaney Sports Center opened in 1976 and is now home to the Husker men's and women's basketball, gymnastics, swimming and diving, track and field and wrestling teams. Before the 1999-2000 season, the Devaney Center underwent $7.9 million in renovations, and the arena court was refinished and redesigned in 2004. The coaches and administrative offices along with the locker room and players lounge area were refurbished and modernized during the past year.

The model strength and conditioning program in the nation, Husker Power plays a major role in the continuing success of Nebraska athletics. With seven full-time members and four interns, Nebraska's Performance Team is one of the most comprehensive strength and conditioning organizations in the nation.

Nebraska's strength training facilities have always been among the finest in the country. The strength complex was one of the most efficient and well-designed weight rooms in the United States for nearly three decades. Within the facility, the 63,500-square foot Charles and Romona Myers Performance Center features the nation's best weight room, nutrition center and technologically advanced training complex.

Nebraska's strength and conditioning facilities have set the standard for weight rooms across America for the past three decades. In addition to the new weight room in the Charles and Romona Myers Performance Center (above), the Husker basketball team also utilizes a weight room in the Bob Devaney Sports Center (top) and has access to the Devaney Center indoor track and swimming pool.

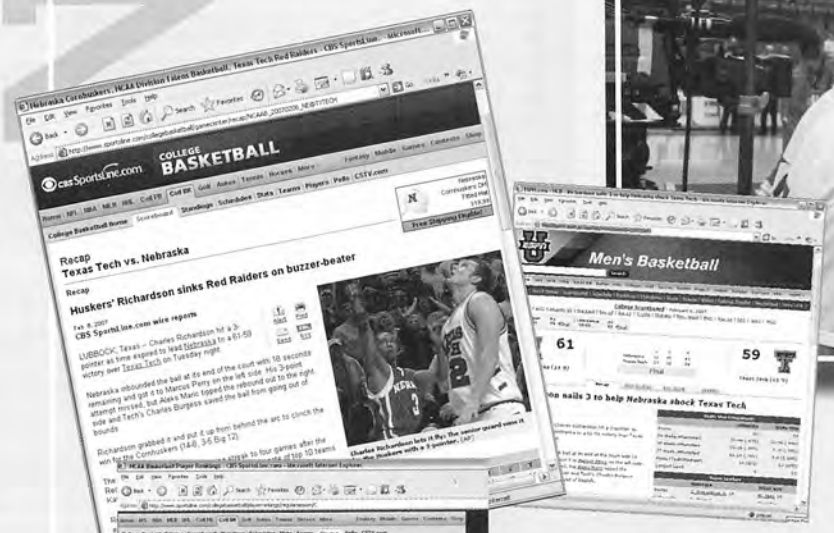
MEDIA EXPOSURE

Media attention is at an all-time high in college basketball and the Huskers have been the beneficiary of the media frenzy following the hiring of Doc Sadler as head coach in August 2006. Since then the Huskers have seen continuous front page newspaper coverage that has provided momentum heading into 2007-08.

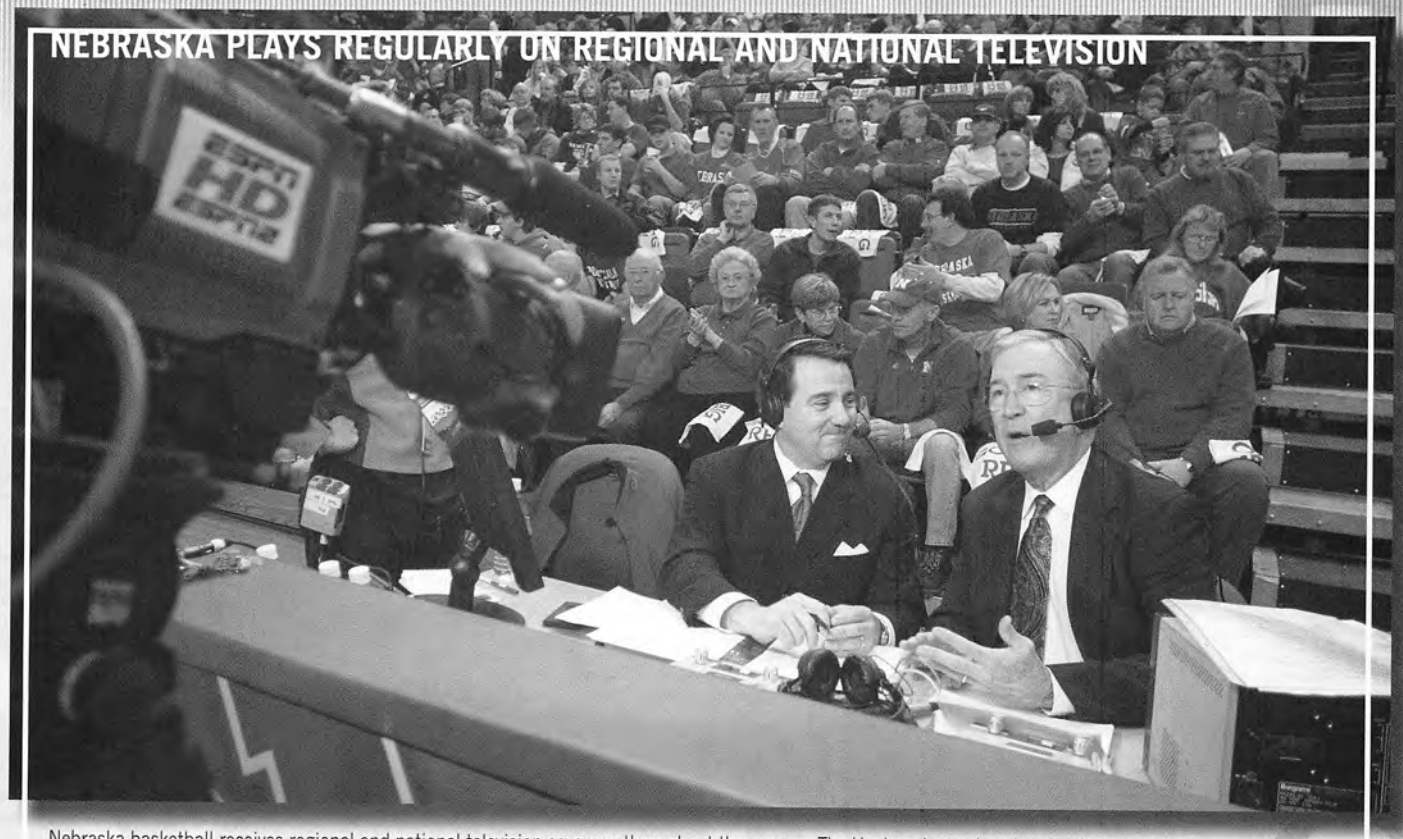
Nebraska basketball has been in the national spotlight for years and that will continue this season as more than two-thirds of all Nebraska contests will be televised. Every game will be broadcast on the radio and also carried for free around the world on Huskers.com, while selected broadcasts will also be carried on Sirius Satellite Radio. Non-conference games not televised are also available on a video-on-demand basis on HuskersNside.com.

Updated statistics, game notes and feature stories can be found each week on the official web site of Nebraska athletics, Huskers.com.



Nebraska is consistently covered by national print publications such as Sports Illustrated, USA Today, The Sporting News and ESPN the Magazine. The Huskers also receive immense exposure within the state and region through the print media while additional national coverage comes from the Internet and basketball-specific magazines.

NEBRASKA PLAYS REGULARLY ON REGIONAL AND NATIONAL TELEVISION



Nebraska basketball receives regional and national television coverage throughout the season. The Huskers have played on TV 61 times over the past three seasons since signing a television contract with FSN Midwest. With at least 18 games – including every road contest – set to be televised in 2007-08, Nebraska will play in front of a national audience at least three times this season from the Devaney Center.

Nebraska has become a home away from home for many Huskers through the years. In recent seasons, the Huskers have put together one of the most diverse rosters in the country, and the 2007-08 Huskers will be no exception. In fact, this year's roster consists of 19 players from 12 different states and three countries.

Nebraska's roster is one of the most dynamic in the Big 12 Conference. With a Big 12-leading four players from the state of California, as well as two more from the Pacific Northwest, two from the state of Texas and three from the East Coast, Nebraska is creating a unique learning and growing environment for players on and off the court.

Along with Nebraska's increasingly diverse roster, the Huskers' travel experiences throughout the course of a season provide a wide-ranging learning experience that carries over into life after basketball.

The Nebraska men's basketball team charters a 50-seat airplane for all games that are more than three hours away by driving distance. The Huskers travel in first class with comfortable and spacious seats and return to Lincoln immediately following each game – especially during mid-week contests so that all players can attend class the next day.

Over the years, Nebraska has traveled to places both near and far for non-conference competition, including (but not limited to):

Fairbanks, Alaska
Honolulu, Hawaii
Portland, Ore.
Miami, Fla.
Tempe, Ariz.
San Francisco, Calif.
Atlanta, Ga.
Las Vegas, Nev.

CHAMPIONSHIP FACILITIES

Nearly every Husker team enjoys a venue that ranks among the nation's best, as Nebraska is dedicated to providing its athletes top-notch game day and practice atmospheres in every sport. Nebraska annually hosts several Big 12 and NCAA Championship events, including volleyball, baseball, soccer, softball, track and field, gymnastics, golf, wrestling and swimming and diving.

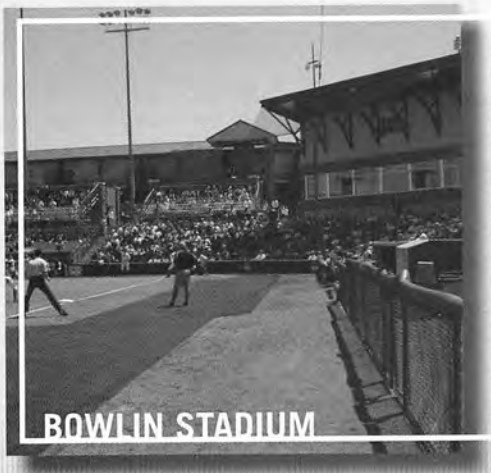
NEBRASKA INDOOR TRACK

The Nebraska Indoor Track and Field facility received $2.7 million in renovations in 2000, distinguishing it among the world's best. It features a hydraulic-banked track, one of three in the nation and only seven in the world.

NEBRASKA COLISEUM

Home to Nebraska's three-time national champion volleyball team, the 4,200-seat Nebraska Coliseum is one of the premier facilities in college volleyball and gives the Huskers a definitive home-court advantage. The Coliseum has been the home of 100 consecutive sellouts for volleyball.

Completed in June of 2001, Hawks Field at Haymarket Park is the crown jewel of a $29.53 million baseball and softball complex that is among the best in the nation. In 2006, the Nebraska baseball team averaged more than 5,000 fans per game for the first time in school history to rank among the national leaders.



BOWLIN STADIUM

Bowlin Stadium, the home of Nebraska softball, ranks among the best facilities in the nation. In addition to providing the best atmosphere in the country, it is conveniently located near the Haymarket district in downtown Lincoln. It has hosted NCAA Regionals four of the last five seasons.

OSBORNE ATHLETIC COMPLEX

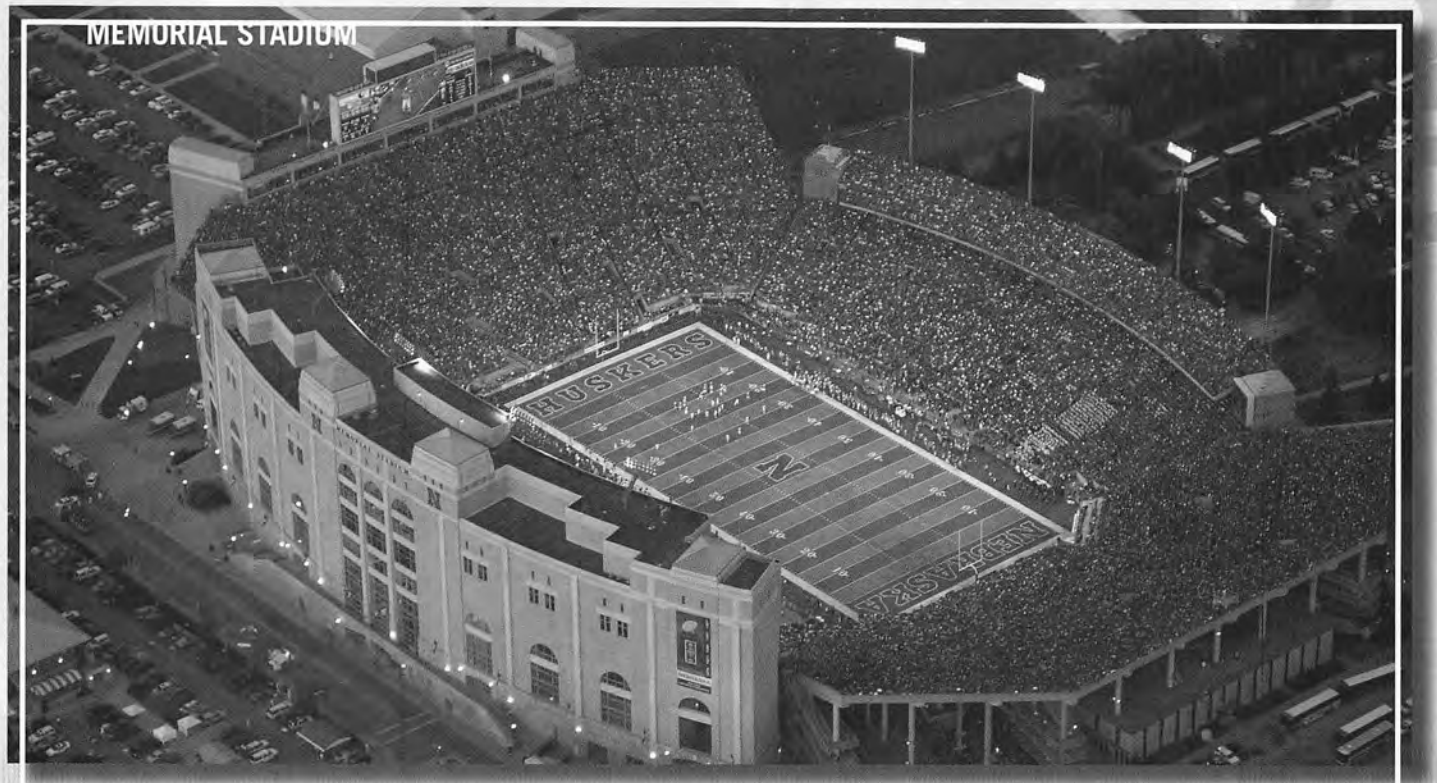
HAWKS CHAMPIONSHIP CENTER

The Tom and Nancy Osborne Athletic Complex houses the Nebraska football locker room, Strength Complex and Athletic Medicine areas, along with the football coaches offices and Nebraska's athletic administrative areas.

Visitors are greeted by a stunning 40-foot waterfall, an impressive and sophisticated donor wall and the entrance to the Charles and Romona Myers Performance Center. The new Nebraska Strength Complex is used by all of NU's 600 student-athletes.

An area where athletes can grab a nutritional drink, relax after a workout or check their e-mail sits just outside the Strength Complex and adjacent to the Hawks Championship Center.

STUDENT-ATHLETE NUTRITION STATION

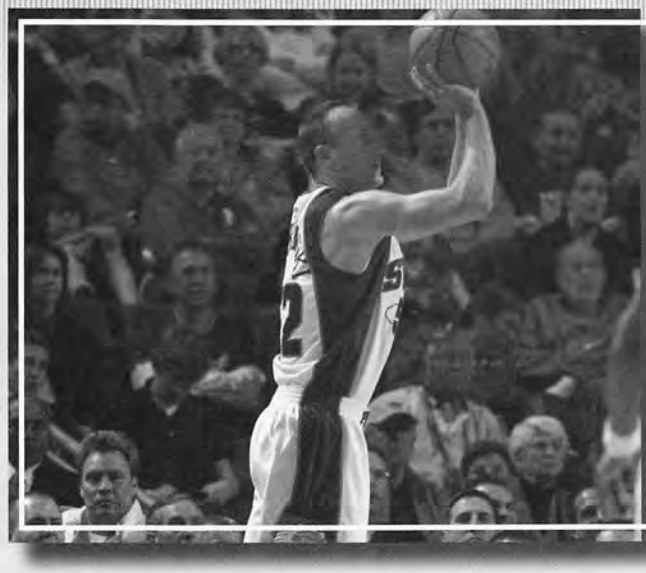


MEMORIAL STADIUM

The excitement of 85,000 fills Memorial Stadium each home football Saturday and reaches a fever pitch for the Tunnel Walk, when the Huskers officially take the field. Over the past 18 seasons, Nebraska has won an amazing 92 percent of its games inside Memorial Stadium.

NBA CONNECTION

Nebraska players have enjoyed significant professional success following their careers as Huskers. NU has had 26 players drafted by the National Basketball Association, including three first-round picks during the 1990s. Three former Huskers played in the NBA last year– Tyronn Lue, Eric Piatkowski and Mikki Moore. Those three, along with Kimani Ffriend, are on training camp rosters again heading into the 2007-08 campaign.



Eric Piatkowski was one of three Huskers taken in the first round of the NBA Draft in the 1990s. After joining the Phoenix Suns as a free agent, Piatkowski is entering his 14th season in the NBA in 2007-08. He is the L.A. Clipper's all-time leader with 738 3-pointers after spending nine seasons with the team.

HUSKER COACHES AND THE NBA

- During his career, Coach Doc Sadler has recruited or coached 19 players who have gone on to play in the NBA. Sadler personally recruited eight of those players.
- Coach Sadler's staff has also been successful recruiting and developing players who have moved on to the NBA. Overall, his staff has combined to coach 31 players that went on to the league.

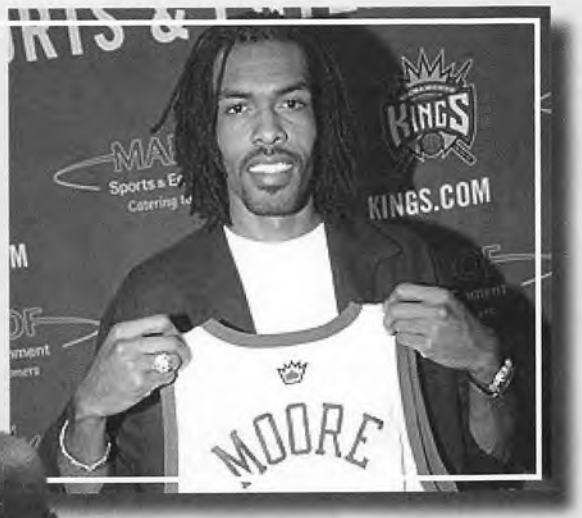
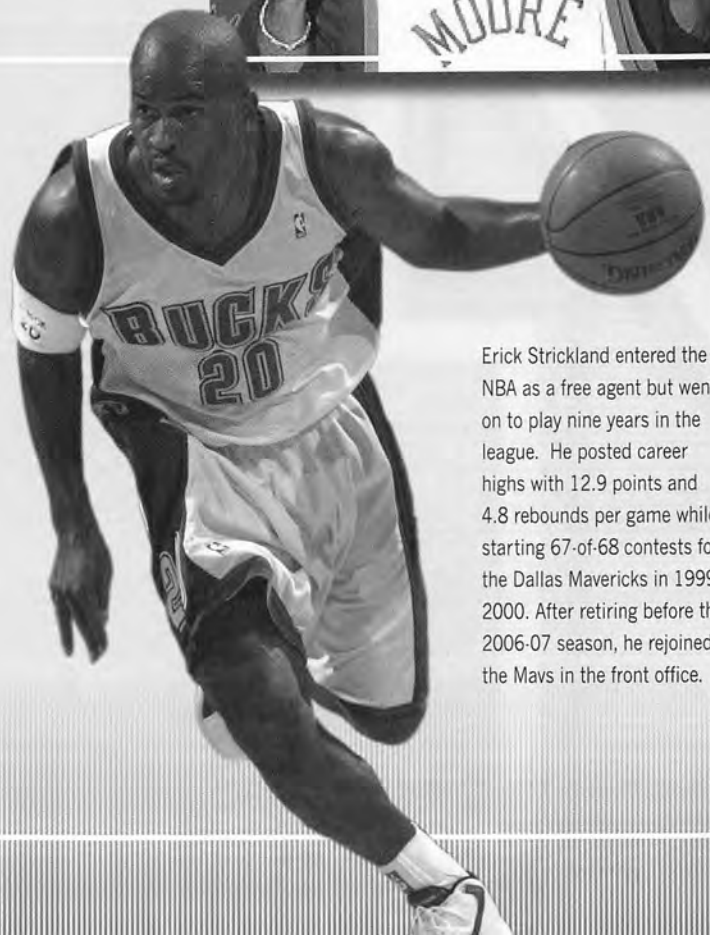
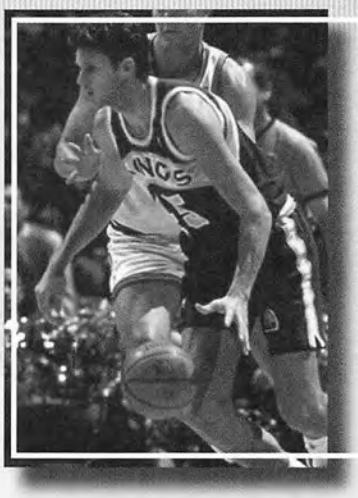
Mikki Moore has had a nine-year NBA career and will play for the Sacramento Kings in 2007-08. Last year with the New Jersey Nets, Moore became the first non-drafted player to lead the league in field-goal percentage as he hit 60.9 percent of his attempts from the field.

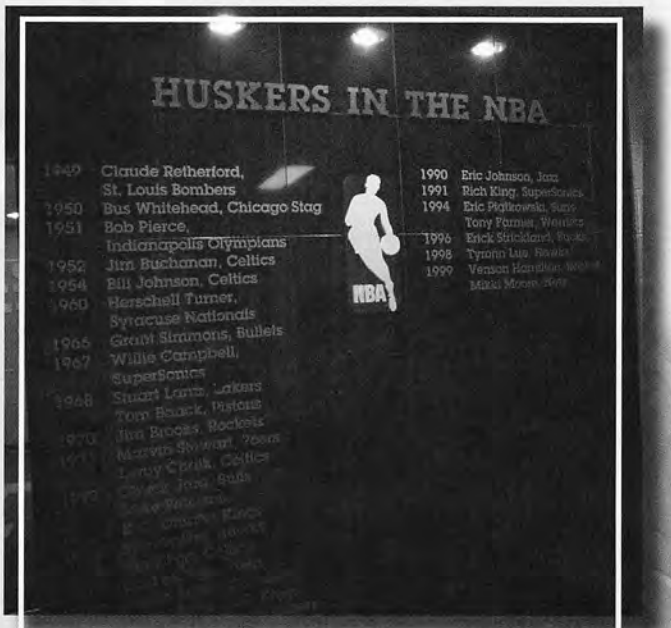




Erick Strickland entered the NBA as a free agent but went on to play nine years in the league. He posted career highs with 12.9 points and 4.8 rebounds per game while starting 67-of-68 contests for the Dallas Mavericks in 1999-2000. After retiring before the 2006-07 season, he rejoined the Mavs in the front office.

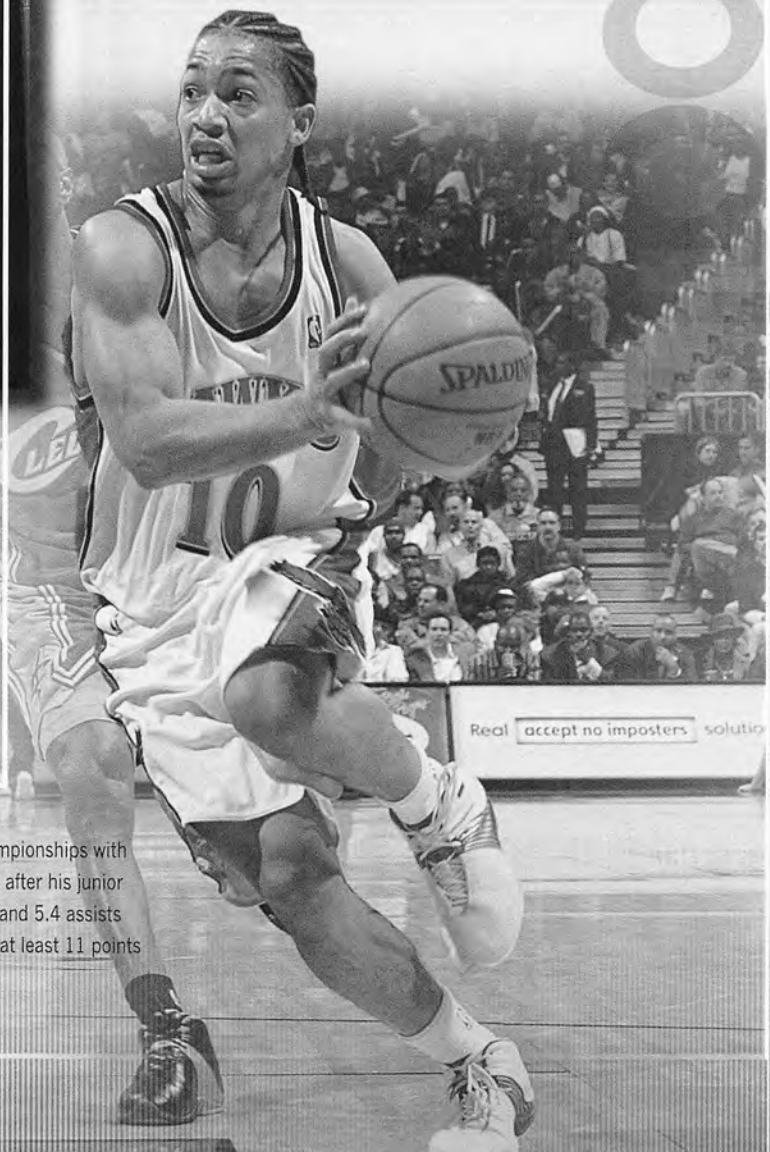


Rich King (left), a 1991 first-round draft pick, played center for the Seattle Super Sonics from 1991 to 1995. Dave Hoppen (right), Nebraska's all-time leading scorer, was drafted by the Atlanta Hawks in 1986 and was the second pick of the 1988 expansion draft by the Charlotte Hornets.



HUSKER NBA FACTS

- Through the years, Nebraska has had 26 players drafted by teams in the National Basketball Association.
- In the 1990s, Nebraska had three first-round selections in the NBA Draft. Rich King was the 14th selection in 1991, Eric Piatkowski was picked 15th overall in 1994 and Tyronn Lue was selected 23rd in 1998. Lue entered the draft following his junior season.
- Nebraska has had four players on NBA rosters at the start of each of the past three seasons. The total number of former Huskers on active rosters in the NBA ranked fourth among Big 12 Conference teams last year.



A nine-year NBA veteran, Tyronn Lue won a pair of NBA Championships with the Los Angeles Lakers earlier this decade. A first-round pick after his junior season at Nebraska, Lue averaged a career-best 13.5 points and 5.4 assists per game in 2004-05 for the Atlanta Hawks, and has posted at least 11 points per game each of the past three seasons.

HUSKER CENTURY

Entering its 112th year of Husker basketball, Nebraska is looking to build on two of the strongest decades in school history. Nebraska has averaged more than 18 wins per season over the past 20 years, while making 12 postseason tournaments during that span.

The 1990-91 team won a school-record 26 contests against eight losses while on its way to the first of four straight NCAA Tournament appearances. Nebraska had a pair of eventual first-round NBA Draft selections on that squad in center Rich King and guard Eric Piatkowski.

1897-1906
Nebraska posted a 59-26 (.694) record in its first decade of basketball, including three perfect seasons. In those 10 years, the Huskers were coached by Frank Lehmer, T.P. Hewitt, E. Berry, Fred Morrell, Walter Hiltner and R.G. Clapp.

1907-16
The last five teams of the Huskers' second decade all posted winning records. The 1911-12 team (below) won the school's first Missouri Valley Conference title and then repeated as champs in 1912-13 and 1913-14.

1917-1926
Nebraska fashioned its first-ever 20-win season in 1919-20, finishing 22-2 and setting a school record for wins that stood until 1990-91. During the decade, Nebraska was 111-71 (.610) and had six winning campaigns.

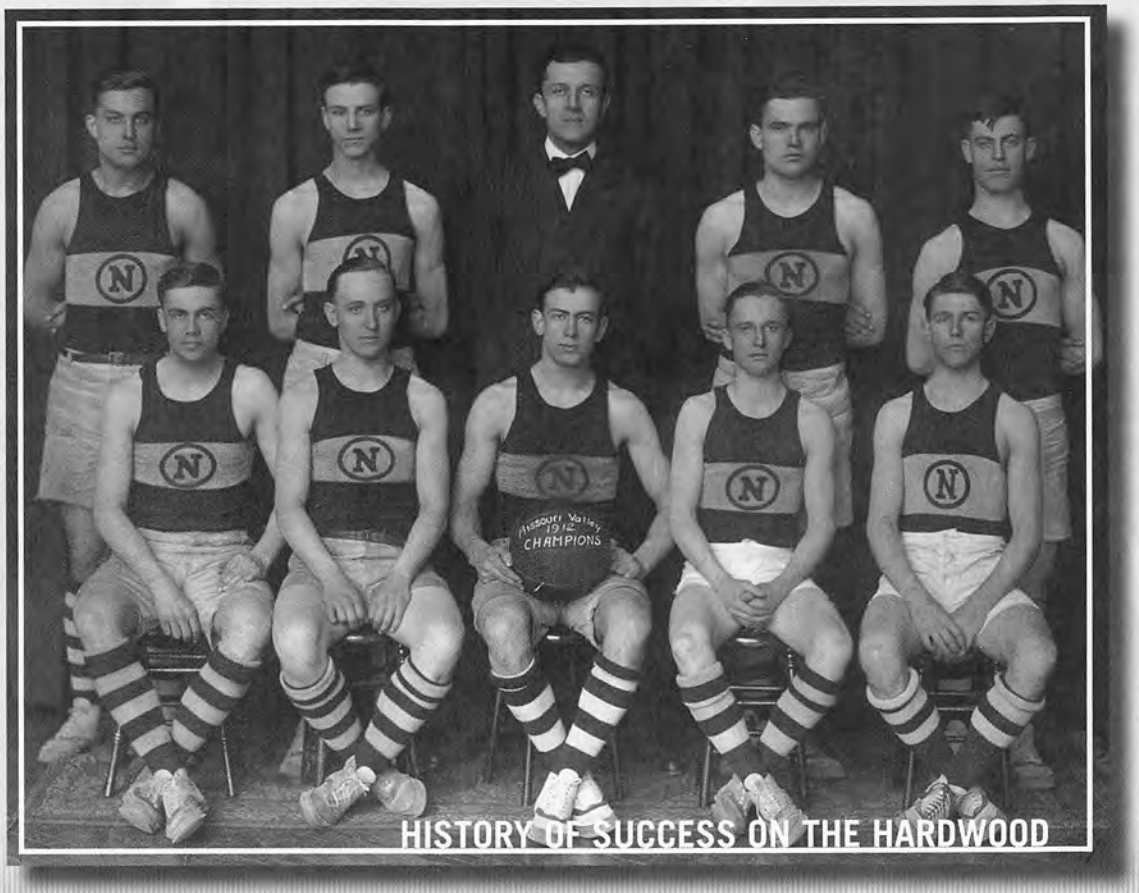
Program Quick Facts

- The Huskers own 1,315 all-time victories, including 11 20-win seasons.

- Nebraska has had 24 1,000-point scorers in program history, most recently by Aleks Maric in 2006-07. Herschell Turner was the first to accomplish the feat in 1960.

- Aleks Maric became only the second Husker ever with 1,000 points and 600 rebounds before the start of his senior season. Dave Hoppen also accomplished the feat in 1985.

- Dave Hoppen owns the school record with 2,167 points between 1983 and 1986. He is the only 2,000-point scorer in school history.



1927-1936

NU opened the decade in the Nebraska Coliseum, but finished under .500 at home in 1925-26. In 1928-29, Nebraska joined Missouri, Kansas, Kansas State, Iowa State and Oklahoma to form the Big Six Conference.

Stu Lantz (above) capped an otherwise disappointing Husker decade by leading Nebraska to a second-place Big Eight finish and first-ever NIT appearance in 1965-66.

1937-1946

Nebraska's record of 65-120 (.351) in the decade was its worst ever. Twice, in 1943-44 and 1944-45, the Huskers mustered only two wins. Sid Held and Don Fitz earned first-team All-Big Six honors in 1940-41.

1947-1956

The Huskers were 102-141 (.420) in the decade. However, the 1948-49 team tied for first in the Big Seven Conference and beat Oklahoma to advance to the NCAA District Tournament. Claude Retherford was a first-team All-Big Seven pick that season and led the team in scoring. In 1949-50, Bus Whitehead earned first-team all-conference honors as Nebraska tied Kansas and Kansas State for the Big Seven championship.

1957-66

The Huskers' 20-5 record in 1965-66 was their first 20-win season since 1919-20. Lantz, who finished second to KU's Jo Jo White in the Sophomore-of-the-Year balloting, would go on to become a third-round NBA draft pick. For the decade, NU was 102-142 (.418).

1967-1976

Nebraska finished above .500 for the decade with a 147-111 (.570) record. Marvin Stewart became the first player to average 20 points in a season in 1970-71. The Huskers closed out the decade with a third-place Big Eight finish in 1975-76 and said goodbye to the Nebraska Coliseum. Jerry Fort earned three straight first-team all-conference awards from 1974 to 1976.

1977-1986

The Cornhuskers posted a 175-119 (.595) record in the decade, including a 15-14 ledger in 1976-77, the first season at the Bob Devaney Sports Center. In 1977-78, the Huskers earned their second postseason tournament bid and first since 1966-67, advancing to the second round of the NIT. NU posted 20 wins twice during the decade (1977-78, 1982-83).

1987-1996

The Huskers enjoyed their most successful decade, winning 20-or-more games five times. Nebraska advanced to the NCAA Tournament four times, won its first-ever Phillips 66 Big Eight Tournament trophy in 1994 and captured the NIT Championship in 1996. For the decade NU was 185-131 (.585).

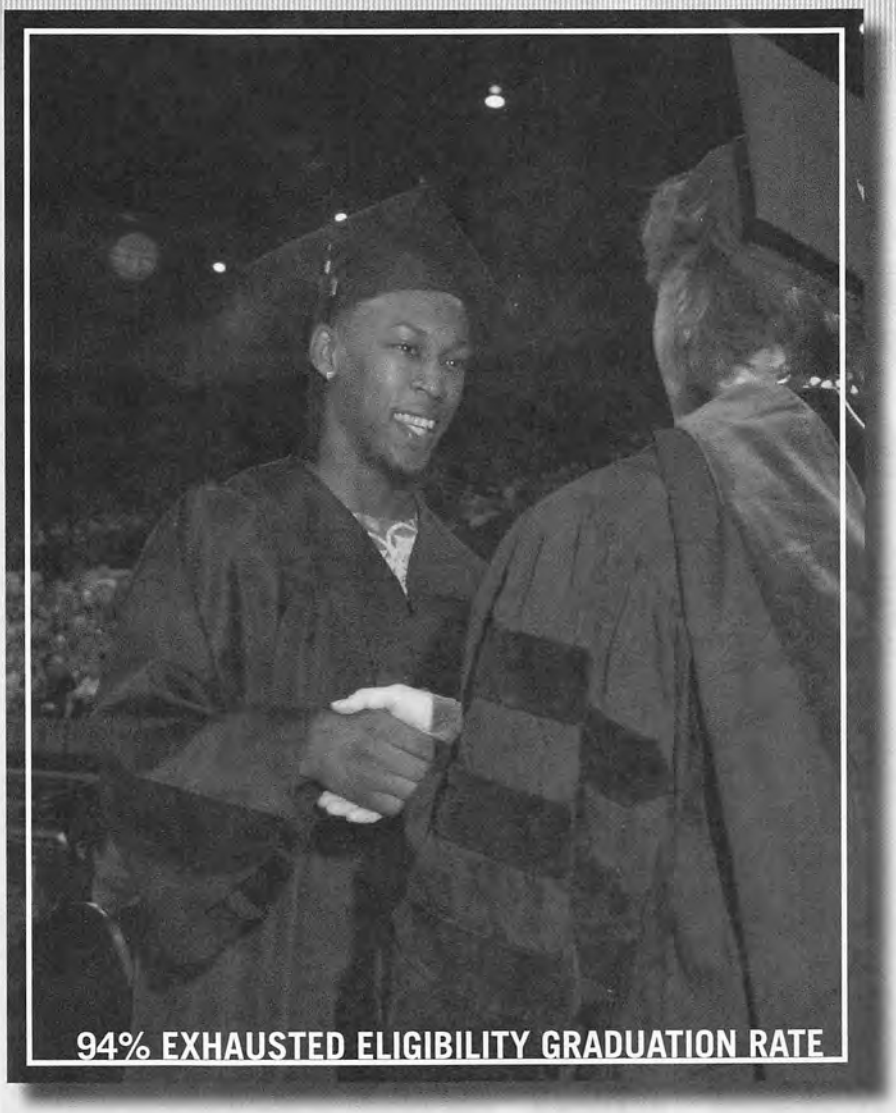
1997-Present

Nebraska has continued its success while starting its second century of play. The Huskers have added a pair of 20-win seasons to bring Nebraska's total to 11 in history. NU was also one of just 15 schools to appear in nine consecutive postseason tournaments from 1991 to 1999.

Eric Piatkowski (below) helped Nebraska to its first Big Eight Tournament title – and first league title of any kind in more than four decades – when he propelled the Huskers to three straight wins in 1994. Overall, the Huskers have won eight conference titles and advanced to the postseason 20 times over the last 111 years since the 1896-97 squad went 2-0 to start the program. Fourteen of those postseason appearances, including five of the Huskers' six all-time NCAA Tournament bids, have come in the last 20 years.

ACADEMIC SUCCESS

The success of Nebraska athletes reaches far beyond athletic competition. More Husker student-athletes have been selected to CoSIDA Academic All-America teams than from any other school in the nation, and more Huskers have earned academic all-conference honors than athletes from any other league school. NU has led the Big 12 in graduation rates in seven of the conference's first 11 years.



Nebraska Academic Highlights

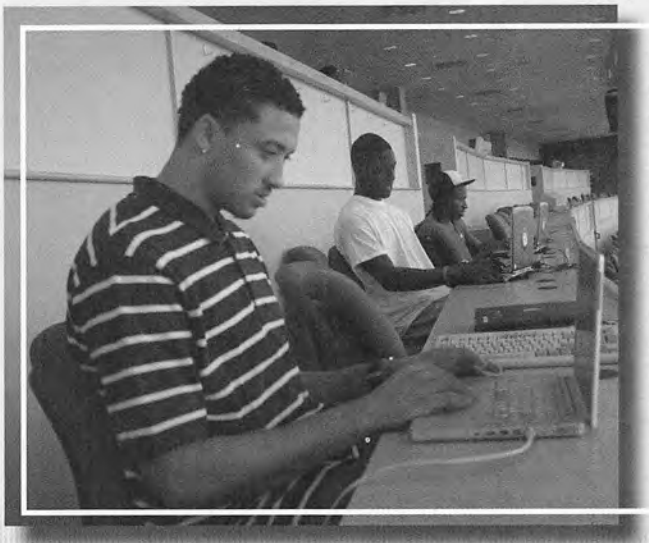
• Nebraska has the highest number of first-, second- and third-team CoSIDA Academic All-Americans in the nation with 252, 59 more than any other school. NU has had 122 of those earn first-team honors, including 71 since 1990.

• A total of 15 Husker student-athletes have earned the NCAA Today's Top Eight Award, the highest honor bestowed on a student-athlete by the NCAA.

• NU boasts a 94-percent Exhausted Eligibility Graduation Rate for student-athletes.

• In 2005, Nebraska received the National Consortium for Academics and Sport Award of Excellence for highest combined total in community outreach and degree completion.

• Nebraska student-athletes earned 126 academic all-conference awards across all sports, including one basketball honoree in 2006-07. Nebraska is second in the league with 15 first-team basketball selections over the past four seasons. Nebraska has also had four academic all-district selections over the past six years.



The academic support team helps student-athletes prepare for the rigors of college classwork by utilizing good time management skills. Every underclassman and first-year player on the basketball team has a dedicated study time for classwork each day.

NATIONAL POWERS

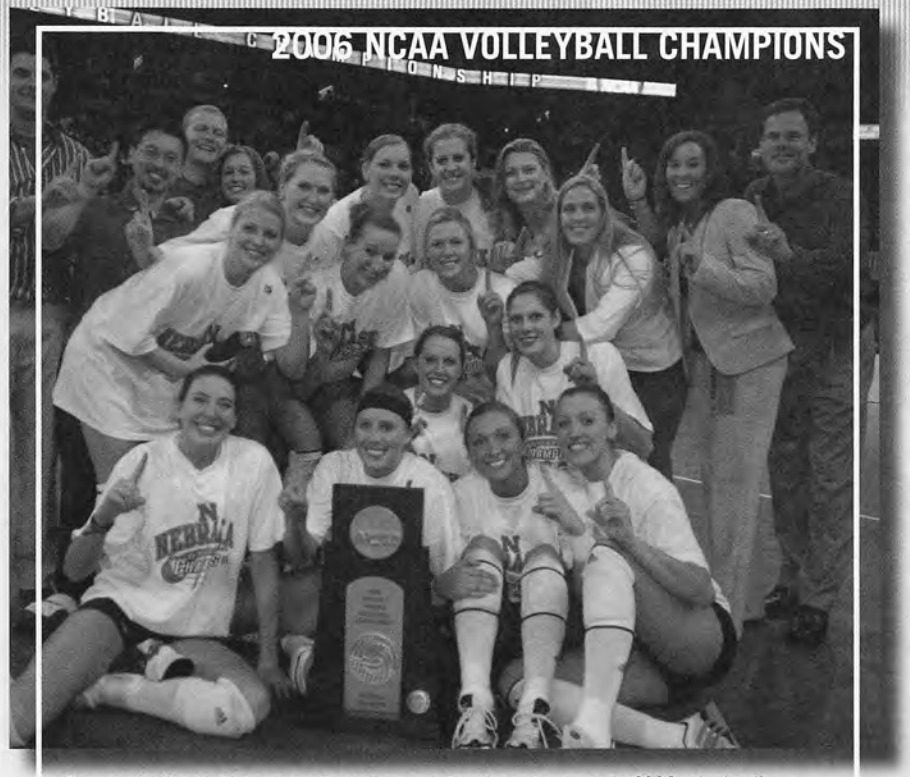
One of the nation's premier athletic programs, Nebraska is dedicated to and successful in all 23 of its varsity sports. In 2006-07, eight of Nebraska's teams finished among the top 25 in their respective sports, including five top-10 finishes in volleyball, rifle, bowling, men's and women's gymnastics. Nebraska has won 23 team national championships since 1970, including the 2006 NCAA volleyball crown.

Peak Performances

Sarah Pavan of the Nebraska volleyball team was one of three Huskers to earn the highest athletic honors in their sports in 2006-07. Pavan was the AVCA National Player of the Year, while bowling's Amanda Burgoyne was the NCAA Player of the Year and wrestling's Paul Donahoe captured the national crown at 125 pounds. Pavan went on to earn collegiate athletics' highest honor, as she was named the 2006-07 Collegiate Woman Athlete of the Year, becoming the first Husker to bring home the Honda-Broderick Cup.

In 2006-07, Nebraska produced 28 individual All-Americans that captured 37 All-America awards in their respective sports.

Nebraska finished either first or second in the conference in 18 sports, including Big 12 titles in volleyball, women's gymnastics and men's indoor track and field.



Coach John Cook's Nebraska volleyball team enjoyed great success in 2006, winning the program's third national championship in the last 12 seasons. The Huskers advanced to the NCAA title match for the sixth time in school history and rolled to a victory over Stanford in front a record crowd of more than 17,000 fans at the Qwest Center Omaha.

Center of Attention

In August 2006, less than two months before the start of fall practice, Doc Sadler was hired as the 26th head coach in Nebraska men's basketball history. After arriving with great fanfare and making a tremendous first impression throughout the local basketball community, the primary topic when talking about Husker hoops focused on how many wins the young team could collect under its new mentor.

Sadler, however, was not concerned with wins or losses. He asked for only one thing from each player: go as hard as you can as long as you can every time you hit the floor.

Seventeen wins later, Sadler was not satisfied. Despite over-achieving with an inexperienced and injury-depleted team, Sadler made Husker fans around the nation take notice and begin to adjust their expectations of what a successful season at Nebraska should look like.

Fast-forward to fall practice 2007.

The Huskers enter this year with another untested roster after adding eight scholarship newcomers to the mix. Nebraska has only one returning scholarship player with more than one year of Division I action under his belt. No other BCS school is as inexperienced. But when that one returning player is 6-11 center Aleks Maric, attitudes change from that of skepticism to a hint of hope and excitement in the air.

With Maric, a preseason All-Big 12 first-team selection by the coaches and a third-team preseason All-American by Athlon Sports, Sadler has one of the top interior post players in the country around which to build his second Cornhusker squad. Maric is the top returning scorer and rebounder in the Big 12 Conference after posting 18.5 points and 8.7 rebounds per game last year. In fact, Maric is third in scoring among all returning players from BCS conference schools.

Despite the already lofty rankings, Sadler still expects the big Australian to make another tremendous leap in production this season.

"Aleks has to have the best year he's had since he's been here," Sadler said of what Nebraska needs from its captain.

"I think the only way you can do that is to keep everything in perspective and have fun. Unfortunately he's the only senior on this team, but that's the way it is. Last year we had two seniors, so you don't normally have a lot of upperclassmen who can help. But there's going to be a lot asked of Aleks. The thing he can't lose perspective of in all that is it needs to be as much fun as it can be."

With Sadler, the Huskers have found that they can have as much fun as they want as long as they are going full speed when they step on the court. Intense, competitive, fierce and driven are words that describe Sadler's coaching style and are the main reason why he's found success where ever he's landed in the coaching ranks.

Coach Doc Sadler will look for leadership out of a handful of returning players, including sophomore guard Ryan Anderson.

The expectations are no different for this season than last when Sadler said the only way to have a successful year was to reach the postseason. Like last year, Sadler does not want to put wins and losses as a defining argument for 2007-08.

"With the late start, last year I didn't have much of an opportunity to have an impact by bringing players in," Sadler said. "So because of that, I don't think we're in a position to talk about wins and losses yet.

"We're in position, especially with eight new players, where we're going to try to build a foundation of the program that we're going to carry over for the next 10 years. For me to put a number on wins or losses this season, we're not even close to being there yet. We're just trying to play hard every day and we still have a ways to go."

Sadler started laying that foundation last year when the intensity was turned up past any level Husker fans had seen in recent years. But that's the only way Sadler knew how to go about his business, by grinding it out and working harder than everyone else.

"This program is going to be built on hard work," Sadler said. "I believe that has to come from everyone who is going to have anything to do with the program, including the staff.

"On the court, the returning guys may be able to pass that on. More than anything, they can set an example with the intensity that we're going to require here."

Along with intensity and desire, Sadler knew right away last season that the Huskers would need an influx of athleticism to compete on a regular basis in the Big 12 Conference. Long regarded among his peers as one of the top recruiters in the country, Sadler set about bringing in a class that he believes is high on character as well as athletic ability, pushing Nebraska closer to where he believes it needs to be in order to compete for a top-four spot in the league.

"There's no question we've gotten closer to where we need to be. We're not there yet, but we're closer," Sadler said after landing a class that was ranked among the top 25 in the nation by several major recruiting analysts.

"I am excited because I think athletically, and then depth-wise, we're in a much better position right now than we were a year ago. I think as a whole, the team, from point guard on down, is more athletic. It's bigger. The wings, I think no question, are going to be as competitive athletically as most people we play, and when that happens I think that improves all of it."

In addition to ability, style of play will also be important for the Huskers in 2007-08. Last year, Nebraska had numerous injuries to adjust from, and during times when Maric was out of the game, fielded a lineup with no one taller than 6-4. No matter the situation, Sadler will seek out new ways to help the Huskers produce the desired result.

"This league is going to be one where we have to find a unique style of play," Sadler said. "I don't think that anyone can line up and say, 'We'll take our best 13 players and you take your best 13, and let's play traditional.' I think we've gotten closer to beginning to find that unique style."

Sadler also is pleased with the ability for the Huskers to provide better competition in practice this season. Last year, Nebraska relied heavily on walk-ons during practice as there were times where the Huskers had as few as six healthy scholarship players to work out at times heading into conference games.

"If it would not have been a team that gave terrific effort, it would not have improved last year because there wasn't any competition for playing time in my opinion," Sadler said. "I think that's going to change and be a huge, huge benefit for us this year."

One area of concern that Sadler attempted to address in the offseason was the team's confidence. Sadler's hope was that the players worked at practice-level intensity throughout the summer in preparation for the long, grueling season.

"As a program, I think the area that we needed to work on was confidence, which is an issue," Sadler said. "You become more confident by working hard and knowing you're prepared.

"The thing I wanted to happen in the offseason was with the weight program and the things players do on their own. They need to do it all offseason with the same intensity that we try to have during the year. That will build their confidence in knowing what they're doing, and I do feel like that's happening."

Unlike last season when injuries limited the Nebraska roster, there will be key position battles and competition for playing time that will go a long way toward determining how good the Huskers' success this year. At center, the battle will be one player against himself as center Aleks Maric holds the only guaranteed starting spot on the floor.

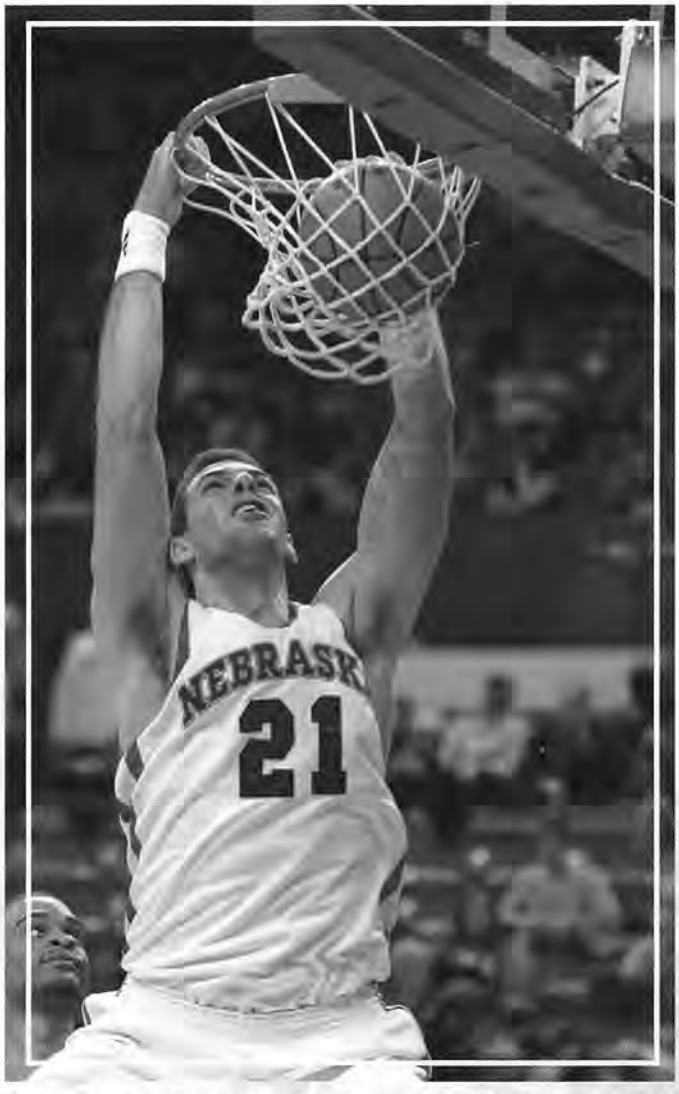
The lone senior on the 2007-08 roster, Maric returns to Lincoln to cap off what has turned into one of the most prolific careers in Nebraska history.

Last season, the Sydney, Australia native saw his game flourish under Sadler while scoring more points than his first two years combined. He finished the year with 1,111 points and 680 rebounds for his career, totals that make him only the second player in school history with at least 1,000 points and 600 boards before the end of his junior season. He is also only the 24th 1,000-point scorer in school history. With a season similar to last year, Maric would finish in the Nebraska top 10 for scoring and second in rebounds.

Maric has an uncommon combination of size and strength that serves him well in the rigors of Big 12 Conference play. He picked up the pace against the top competition last year, averaging 19.3 points and 9.4 rebounds per game in league play, nearly a point and a rebound more than his season averages.

"It's a great opportunity to be able to coach a player like Aleks Maric, who has a chance to be a first-team all-league player and even make some All-America teams," Sadler said.

"As a coach, you always want that opportunity because I think when you've got a player like that, it's going to give you an opportunity to be competitive against a lot of different teams that maybe you normally wouldn't be. And when you get a chance to coach a player that plays that position, I think it's fun. Unfortunately, I think a lot of unknowns go with this team this year, but at the same time, I'm really excited about Aleks."



Senior center Aleks Maric is a preseason first-team All-Big 12 selection in 2007-08 and will contend for postseason All-America honors.

While everything will run through Maric this season, one key will be finding time for him to come off the floor. A consistent backup will be valuable and Sadler feels the Huskers may have someone who can handle the job in Chris Balham.

A sophomore, Balham has made huge strides in the past year under Sadler. The improvements came despite suffering an illness last year that left him hospitalized and took away his leg strength for a good portion of the early season. Although he only missed a couple of games, Balham spent most of the year regaining his stamina and building confidence in his abilities to provide solid minutes off the bench.

Balham's effort – the one thing Sadler always asks for – was not questioned after he saved the day at Missouri. Coming off the bench late in the game, Balham snagged a pair of offensive rebounds and hit 3-of-4 free throws to help NU to a come-from-behind road victory.

"I think Chris Balham has improved a lot," Sadler said. "You are never going to have a lot of depth inside, at least not enough that you feel comfortable with because there are really just not a lot of guys out there who can play inside. But I feel comfortable with what we have with Aleks and the guys who will have to carry it behind him."

While Maric and Balham will play primarily in the paint, nearly everyone else on the roster will be expected to be interchangeable on the court.

"I think that's the uniqueness of our program. The 2-3-4 positions are basically all the same," Sadler said. "I think all three of those positions are wing guys and I want all three of them to be able to shoot it. And I think that's what we've got.

"There's no difference between those positions. Anyone playing there has to be able to shoot. There are point guards and there is an inside position player, and the other three spots are all players. I don't think you can put numbers or names on them. They're just players."

Leading the list of returnees who exemplified Sadler's approach is sophomore Ryan Anderson. At 6-4, Anderson may have seemed out of position at times last year when he was the second-tallest starter for the Huskers during Big 12 Conference action. But with the unique style Sadler is employing with the Huskers, Anderson quickly found a niche as his offensive ability from anywhere on the court more than made up for his lack of size on the defensive end.

Anderson's strong desire to succeed and enthusiasm made him a natural leader on the floor even as a true freshman, and he made strong impressions on the Husker staff early in the season. He hit the game-winning shot at the buzzer in the first exhibition of the year and in Nebraska's first game against a ranked Division I team, Anderson poured in 19 points on 7-of-8 shooting to help the Huskers knock off in-state foe Creighton. He went on to average a team-high 15.3 points per game against ranked squads on the year.

A native of Seattle, Anderson was the sixth Husker freshman in school history to average double figures as he produced 10.1 points to go with 4.6 rebounds per game. He posted 48 3-pointers to rank second on the team and second in the Husker freshman record book.

Also returning on the wing are Sek Henry and Paul Velander, while newcomers Ade Dagunduro, Steve Harley, Shang Ping, Alex Chapman, Alonzo Edwards and Toney McCray will also be in the mix for playing time.

Henry, who was the first player recruited to Nebraska by Sadler, started last season in strong fashion and showed glimpses of outstanding ability while starting 18 games and averaging 5.8 points per contest. He played both on the wing and at the point, giving Sadler a versatile player in the lineup. Velander, who had played a total of three minutes in his first two years in the program, blossomed under Sadler's watchful eye, playing nearly 15 minutes per game and averaging 4.3 points per game. Velander ranked third on the team with 32 3-pointers and was a spark off the bench with his energy and effort.

Harley and Dagunduro may be the newcomers most ready to provide an immediate lift after posting impressive junior college careers. Harley was a first-team All-American last year and averaged nearly 20 points per game over the past two seasons. Dagunduro has a unique skill set with good size (6-5, 190) and the quickness and length needed to help NU play the disruptive defensive style that Sadler encourages.

Providing size and a possible tough matchup problem on the wing will be Ping, Chapman and Edwards, while McCray adds impressive slashing ability and shooting from the outside. The big guys are capable of stepping outside the 3-point line and combined the recruiting class has a little mix of everything Sadler was looking for.

"Character is probably as big a positive as anything about this class, but athleticism was a priority," Sadler said. "Overall the athleticism has improved across the board with these new guys. Those two things are the two biggest positives of this class. I've said before that you need players who know how to play, but you also want guys with character and I think we have both."

Sophomore guard Sek Henry gives Nebraska added depth on the wing and at the point.

Anyone who watched Nebraska play last season knows that by the end of the year the ball went into the post to center Aleks Maric on nearly every possession. Sadler knew enough about his big Australian post man to get him enough touches to make him effective. Maric had to do the hard work, but nearly as much credit should have gone to former Husker Charles Richardson Jr., the diminutive point guard who ran the show from Day One of the Sadler era.

Richardson will be difficult to replace not only because of what he produced on the box scores, but because of the intangibles that he brought to the position. Despite being outsized against nearly every opponent, his durability and experience of playing in more than 110 games during his career was invaluable to the Huskers' effort.

Richardson had one of the most productive seasons in Nebraska history, as he averaged 5.77 assists per game to rank 14th nationally and become only the second Husker ever to average more than 5.0 assists per game.

"Point guard is probably the biggest question mark to what kind of season we're going to have, because the position is going to be fielded by people that haven't played much college basketball, if any," Sadler said.

Sadler knows that replacing Richardson's leadership and experience will take time, but finding a way to bridge the gap this season will go a long way toward helping the Huskers achieve their postseason goal.

"The key to this year will be point guard play, simply because we're so young at the position," Sadler said. "You look around any league, whether it's high school or in the pros, and the teams that are successful have good point guard play. I think the little success we had with wins and losses last year was directly related to Charles Richardson having the best year he ever had."

The Huskers have the luxury of returning some experience at the position with sophomore Jay-R Strowbridge. Despite averaging just 3.9 points in 19 minutes per game, Strowbridge showed strong play at times and gives Nebraska a larger, more physical option at the point.

Strowbridge brings a versatile game to the floor. He set a personal high as he posted eight assists without a turnover in a victory over Wyoming last year and finished the season by setting a Nebraska freshman record hitting 46.3 percent from beyond the 3-point line. His average was the third-best mark ever at Nebraska.

Strowbridge also has a penchant for playing a physical brand of defense, something that is pleasing to Sadler's sensibility. At times last year, Strowbridge was the Huskers' key defensive specialist, harassing an opponent's top scorer into subpar performances in several league games.

Jay-R Strowbridge will be in the mix to take over the starting point guard duties in 2007-08.

While Strowbridge may have a chance to take over the primary role at the point, a pair of freshmen – Cookie Miller and Brandon Richardson – will also be in the mix.

"Jay-R can do so many things, but I'm also happy with the new guys," Sadler said. "I think in four years we're going to be sitting here kind of like this year, trying to figure out how we're going to be able to replace them because I think they can be that good."

The ultra-quick Miller was among the top prep school point guards in the country last season and previously was a three-time all-state selection in West Virginia. A flashy ball distributor, Miller plays bigger than his 5-7 frame would forecast. At 6-0, Richardson is the tallest option of the three point guards and enters his freshman campaign with solid credentials after earning all-state honors the past two years in California. Richardson brings a controlled demeanor to the floor and along with Miller, could provide a explosive scoring threat.

"I like our talent. I like the players we have, but the question is 'Will they be able to carry it over to a tough environment?'," Sadler said. "I think conference play will be the key. They are going to have some tough times. Even though I know they will be a big part of this team this year, I have to understand that it's a process and it will be my responsibility to make sure we don't risk them losing confidence. I have to help them with that.

"They think they're ready to play and play anywhere, but until you get that experience that Charles Richardson had last year, maybe they really don't know what is being asking of them."

2007-08 Season Notebook

Maric Commands Attention

Senior center Aleks Maric will be the center of attention every time he steps on the floor this season as the leading returning scorer and rebounder in the Big 12 Conference. He averaged 18.5 points and 8.7 rebounds per game last year, both career highs.

After progressively increasing his output each of the past three years, Maric is looking for his best season yet in 2007-08. If he reaches that goal, Maric could move into the top five on the Nebraska all-time scoring chart. With 1,111 points through three seasons, he needs 498 points to pass Jaron Boone (1,609 points from 1993 to 1996) for fifth place all time at Nebraska. He would need to average more than 20 points per game to reach Andre Smith's fourth-place total of 1,717 career points.

Early Honors

Aleks Maric was named to the preseason All-Big 12 first team by the league's coaches on Oct. 9. Last year, Maric was a second-team all-league selection by both the coaches and media.

Maric became the first Husker since Kimani Ffriend before the 2000-01 season to be honored. Overall, he was the fourth Husker to earn first-team preseason honors since the formation of the Big 12, joining Tyronn Lue (1997-98), Venson Hamilton (1999-00) and Ffriend. Hamilton went on to win the Big 12 Player-of-the-Year award following his senior season.

Experience At A Premium

Nebraska enters the 2007-08 season with five returning scholarship players and eight scholarship newcomers. Of the five returnees, only one – center Aleks Maric – has more than one year of Division I action under his belt.

The lack of experience likely puts Nebraska in a unique situation as a poll of media relations directors from around the country during the preseason indicated that every other BCS conference school has more than one returning scholarship player with at least two years of Division I experience.

Diverse Lineup

Entering the year, Nebraska has 19 players on the preseason roster and only two – walk-ons Nick Krenk and Cole Salomon – hail from the Cornhusker State.

The unique layout of the roster places players from a total of 12 states and two foreign countries. Nebraska leads all Big 12 schools with four players from the state of California. In addition, NU has two players from the Pacific Northwest, two from Texas and three from the East Coast, making it possibly one of the most diverse teams in the country.

Nebraska is also represented by two players from foreign countries. Senior Aleks Maric was born and raised in Australia but also has a great pride in his Serbian heritage. Junior Shang Ping is a native of Haerbin, China, and is believed to be one of only three Division I Chinese players this season.

In addition to Maric and Ping, sophomore Chris Balham grew up in France until the eighth grade when his family moved to the United States.

Bombs Away

Last year, the Huskers made 244 3-pointers on the season, the second-highest total in school history, while hitting a solid 37.5 percent from beyond the arc. Nebraska lost its top 3-point threat in graduated senior Marcus Perry, but the Huskers return a trio of shooters who could again make their mark from downtown.

Returning this season are junior Paul Velander and sophomores Ryan Anderson and Jay-R Strowbridge. The trio combined for 105 of the 3-pointers last season, including 48 by Anderson, the second-highest total by a freshman in school history.

All three players etched their names into the Husker record books. Anderson is the top returnee in terms of made 3-pointers while Strowbridge was the most accurate. Despite having less than half of Anderson's attempts, Strowbridge's 25-of-54 performance meant a 46.3-percent accuracy, the top mark ever by a Husker freshman and the third-highest percentage in single-season history regardless of class.

Junior guard Paul Velander looks to be the Huskers' long-range threat again in 2007-08 after connecting on 32 3-pointers last year.

Newcomers Earn Praise

While they still have a lot to prove on the floor to Coach Doc Sadler, the newest group of Huskers were welcomed to Lincoln with impressive fanfare by the recruiting analysts. As a group, this year's recruiting class was ranked among the top 25 in the country by several top analysts, including No. 11 by Van Coleman (CSTV.com) and No. 21 by Bob Gibbons (ESPN.com). Clark Francis of HoopScoop had the Huskers as high as No. 5 among early signing classes.

Individually, several new Huskers joined the program after all-star caliber careers in junior college and high school. Guard Steve Harley, a transfer from South Plains (Texas) College, was a two-time All-American, including earning first-team honors last year, and was ranked No. 4 in the country among guards by nbadraft.net. Shang Ping was ranked No. 8 at small forward by the same service. Among the freshmen, Alonzo Edwards was ranked No. 18 among small forwards in the nation and in the top 125 overall by ESPN.com.

Schedule Notes

• During the 2007-08 season, Nebraska will face eight teams that played in the postseason last year, including six from the Big 12 Conference. The eight teams include: Kansas, Texas A&M, Texas, Texas Tech, Creighton and Oregon in the 2007 NCAA Tournament and Oklahoma State and Kansas State in the 2007 National Invitation Tournament. Overall, 10 of the Huskers' 29 regular-season games in 2007-08 will come against teams that played in the postseason a year ago.

• After playing in a regular-season exempt tournament and a 'classic' event each of the past two years, Nebraska will play a regular 13-game non-conference schedule for the first time since 2004-05.

• During the regular season, the Huskers will play 18 games at the Bob Devaney Sports Center, one off the building record set two years ago in 2005-06. Nebraska will add a 19th home game to its ledger when it plays host to likely top-15 opponent Oregon at the Qwest Center in Omaha on Dec. 15.

• Last year Nebraska posted a 12-4 record at home, the fourth straight season the Huskers won double-figure games at home. Nebraska has never had a losing season in the Devaney Center since the building opened for the 1976-77 campaign. Overall, Nebraska is 368-118 (.757) at home at the Devaney Center.

• Nebraska has just two road non-conference games slated for the 2007-08 regular season. The Huskers will leave the state of Nebraska just once before Big 12 action begins, with a trip to Bowling Green, Ky., to take on Western Kentucky on Wednesday, Dec. 5. NU's other road trip will be a contest 55 miles up I-80 when the Huskers take on Creighton in Omaha.

• The Huskers will be seen on television within the state at least 18 times during the regular season, including every road game for the first time in school history. It will be the second straight season that every conference road game will be televised as part of an extension of an agreement with FSN Midwest. The Huskers have averaged more than 12 televised contests (national, regional and local) each of the past six years.

• NU will have at least 11 games on the ESPN family of networks via the Big 12 Conference television package. Nebraska will be seen nationally at least three times for the second straight season as it will have games on ESPN, ESPN2 and ESPNU.

|+| Honors Candidate

One of the top low-post players in the country, Aleks Maric is the top returning scorer (18.5 ppg) and rebounder (8.7 rpg) in the Big 12 Conference and will contend for All-America honors in 2007-08. A second-team all-league selection following last season, Maric was named a 2007-08 third-team preseason All-American by Athlon Sports magazine and was a preseason All-Big 12 selection by the coaches.

Among players from BCS conferences, Maric is third among returning scorers from last year, trailing only Chris Lofton of Tennessee (20.8 ppg) and Sean Singletary of Virginia (19.0 ppg). Maric is also sixth among returning BCS conference players in field-goal percentage and seventh in rebounding average.

Already among the best centers all-time at Nebraska, Maric is only the second player in school history to record at least 1,000 points and 600 rebounds before the end of his junior season. By matching his production from last year (556 points, 260 rebounds), he would finish his career ranked fifth all-time on the Nebraska scoring chart and second in rebounds. Entering the season, he needs just 103 rebounds to take over second place on the career chart and has a chance to rank on top 10 career lists in at least eight other categories.

After a solid start to the season, Maric produced at an all-conference level down the stretch of the Big 12 season and was selected by the coaches and media to the All-Big 12 second team, while earning a nod to the media's All-Improved Team for the second straight season. He was the first Husker to be named to the all-league first or second team since 2001 when guard Cookie Belcher was a second-team selection.

The Husker big man also earned all-region second-team honors from the National Association of Basketball Coaches for his outstanding performance and from the United States Basketball Writers Association (USBWA). Maric made a lasting impression on the voters during his last four home games when he averaged 32.8 points and 13.0 rebounds per game. He had games of 41, 31, 36 and 23 points in that span, including becoming the first Husker ever to record consecutive games of 30 or more points (31 vs. Missouri; 36 vs. Iowa State).

On the year, Maric averaged 18.5 points and 8.7 rebounds per game while leading the Big 12 Conference in field-goal percentage by hitting 56.5 percent from the floor. Maric's scoring average was the fourth-highest in the league while his rebounding mark trailed only Kevin Durant (11.1 rpg), the No. 2 selection in the 2007 NBA Draft. Maric and Durant were the only two players in the conference to average at least 8.0 rebounds per game for the year.

Maric's numbers were not only among the best in the conference, but also ranked favorably around the nation. He finished the season ranked 34th in field-goal percentage, 43rd in rebounding and 51st in scoring after posting 27 double-figure scoring contests and 10 games with at least 10 rebounds. In fact, he ended the season by posting six straight double-doubles.

Maric opened the season in an extremely efficient manner with 29 points in 29 minutes in the opener against Nebraska-Omaha, just two weeks after having an emergency appendectomy. He was 11-of-18 from the floor against the Mavericks before coming back five days later to lead Nebraska past No. 20 Creighton. He connected on 8-of-11 attempts from the floor, good for 17 points to go with nine boards. For his efforts in the first week of the season, Maric was named the first Big 12 Player of the Week for the 2006-07 season.

Showing a better offensive consistency than any point in his career, Maric recorded 12 contests of at least 20 points, including six of 26 or more points. He also posted at least eight field goals in 10 games and had 20 games with at least 10 field-goal attempts.

Over the last eight games of the year, he posted two of the top seven single-game scoring performances in school history. After combining for 49 points over his previous four games, Maric had a monster game against Kansas State when he finished with 41 points, one point shy of Eric Piatkowski's school single-game record and the fourth-highest scoring game in Big 12 Conference history.

Maric dominated the Wildcats by hitting 13-of-19 field-goal attempts to post the highest single-game total by a Big 12 player on the season, and one of only eight 40-plus point games since the formation of the Big 12 Conference. He set a school and league record with 25 free throw attempts and his 15 made free throws were just one off the school conference record.

By getting to the line so frequently, Maric set a school conference mark for both free throws made (88) and attempted (132). Maric's 88 free throws broke a 40-year-old NU league-only record of 84 free throws by Stuart Lantz in 1967-68, while his attempts bettered Kimani Ffriend's 131 attempts in 2000-01. Maric's 147 free throws were fourth in NU history and his 216 attempts were five off the school mark.

Maric finished with 556 points on the season, eighth in NU single-season history and one point more than his career total entering the year. He was the first Husker since Tyronn Lue in 1998 to post at least 550 points in a season. Among his other impressive numbers were his 260 rebounds – the eighth-highest total ever at Nebraska – and 203 made field goals, just four shy of cracking the single-season chart.

|+| 2006 Summer

Maric entered his name into the NBA Draft on April 28, the first Husker underclassman to declare for the draft since Tyronn Lue in 1998. While Lue went on to be a first-round pick, Maric withdrew his name and returned to Nebraska.

Maric went home during the summer to try out for the Australian Senior National Team, the Boomers. After starting with 33 players, the team went through four rounds of tryout sessions before Maric was named to the 12-man team roster in June. He was removed from the team due to a shoulder injury before it went to the World Championships in Japan.

Maric flourished as the season progressed, finishing as Nebraska's top rebounder and third-leading scorer while helping the Huskers to their first upper-division conference finish since 1998. Maric was a dominant force in the paint as he averaged 10.9 points per game while posting 8.1 rebounds per contest. His rebounding average ranked third among all Big 12 players and Maric's 251 rebounds were the third-highest total ever by a Nebraska sophomore and ranked 11th on the Husker single-season chart. He missed making the top-10 list by one rebound.

With the strong rebounding performances – he had 12 double-figure rebounding games, including five straight in one stretch – Maric posted 10 double-doubles on the year, including a Big 12-leading seven in conference play. His 10 double-doubles tied the Husker sophomore record set by Venson Hamilton (who went on to become the 1999 Big 12 Player of the Year) and Carl McPipe.

Maric also ranked third in the Big 12 Conference in double-doubles, trailing only Texas' LaMarcus Aldridge and P.J. Tucker, who each finished with 16. Maric's seven double-doubles in conference-only games were a league high, two better than Tucker and three better than Aldridge. That trio was the only three Big 12 players with more than two double-doubles in league play.

Maric finished the conference season averaging a team-best 12.9 points and 9.4 rebounds per game. His rebounding average was the best among all Big 12 players during conference play.

Defensively Maric also picked up the pace in the conference season as he posted 23 of his blocked shots against Big 12 teams. He finished the league campaign ranked seventh in the conference-only standings. For the year, he moved into fifth on the Nebraska sophomore season chart.

Maric led Nebraska to a 3-0 record on the opening weekend of the year, including a win over Louisiana Tech. Maric played a career-high 38 minutes against the Bulldogs while posting 22 points with 14 rebounds, his second double-double of the weekend. Maric's effort came against a Bulldog squad led by 2006 NBA second-round selection Paul Millsap.

Maric turned in his third double-double in the first five games when he posted 15 points and 11 rebounds in a Husker victory over NCAA Tournament-bound Marquette. He then struggled over the Huskers' next five games before heading home to Australia for a week at Christmas.

Finally rejuvenated from a long year, Maric took just three games before returning to form when he posted 15 points and a season-high 17 rebounds on the road vs. Kansas State. While helping NU open league play with a 2-0 record for only the second time in the Big 12 era, Maric had 13 rebounds in the first period, just two off the NU single-half record set more than 30 years ago.

Maric went on to score double-figure points in 11 of 16 conference games. He set the Nebraska and Big 12 Conference sophomore record with a 37-point effort in a road victory at Iowa State. Maric hit 13-of-15 attempts from the field and 11-of-15 shots at the free throw line while posting 16 rebounds and four blocked shots.

Maric scored 19 points and added eight rebounds with four assists (no turnovers) in a first-round victory over Missouri in the Big 12 Championship. With a victory the following day over nationally ranked Oklahoma, the Huskers reached the Big 12 semifinals for the second time in school history.

The win also propelled NU into the postseason for the second time in three years. Nebraska fell in the first round of the NIT at Hofstra. Despite missing the previous two days of practice with an illness, Maric posted nine points, 12 rebounds and a career-high five blocked shots at Hofstra.

|+| 2005 Summer

Maric returned to Australia immediately after the spring semester ended, just in time to participate in tryouts for the Australian U-21 National Team, known as the Crocs. He easily made the roster and spent the majority of the summer traveling the world.

During that time, the Crocs played in international tournaments in Slovenia, Greece and Canada as warm-ups for the FIBA World Championships for Young Men held in Argentina from Aug. 5-14. Overall, Maric saw action in 36 games during the summer, effectively giving him another season of preparation.

Maric guided the Crocs to the medal round with a 4-0 record. Australia struggled in the round and finished just outside of medal consideration in fourth place, while posting a 6-2 record.

Maric averaged 10.6 points per game while hitting 50.9 percent from the floor. He also added a team-best 9.4 rebounds per game to rank second in the 11-team field. Maric trailed only Peter Ramos of Puerto Rico, who tallied 9.5 boards per game. The 7-3 Ramos was a 2004 Olympian for his native country and played in a reserve role for the Washington Wizards earlier that year.

|+| 2004-05 (Freshman)

Maric had an outstanding rookie campaign as he averaged 8.0 points with a team-high 6.3 rebounds per game. Maric played in 27 games and ranked third on the squad by hitting 47.9 percent from the field. He was also one of five Huskers to hit better than 70 percent (71.6) from the free throw line.

Maric ranked 11th in the Big 12 Conference and was second among freshmen in rebounding. He finished with a team-high 5.4 boards per game to tie for 18th in conference-only games. Maric helped NU rank first in all games rebounding margin (+5.4) and second in rebounding average in all games (38.3).

The Aussie recorded a double-double in his first career game and went on to tie the NU freshman record with three double-doubles on the season. Maric picked up 12 points and 14 boards against Arkansas-Pine Bluff in the season opener and added another double-double with 10 points and a season-high 15 boards in his first road game at UAB on national television.

Maric tied the record with 13 points and 12 boards in NU's biggest road victory of the year at NCAA Tournament-bound Iowa State. He had a double-double in the first half before foul trouble slowed him in the second frame.

In the previous game, Maric only came away with two boards but posted a season-high 15 points and added three assists without a turnover in Nebraska's upset of No. 4 Oklahoma State. It was one of five double-figure scoring games by Maric in the Huskers' final eight games of the season. Maric had posted six double-figure scoring games in NU's first 19 contests.

Maric missed NU's final non-conference game and played at less than 100 percent during the following two league games after a bout with the flu. He quickly rounded back into top form against Baylor when he hit 4-of-6 field-goal attempts to produce 10 points. He also added seven boards and posted a season-high three blocked shots. Maric finished the year with 16 blocks to rank eighth on the NU freshman chart.

Over the final eight league games, Maric averaged 10.0 points and 5.9 rebounds while hitting an impressive 59.6 percent (31-of-52) from the field. He also hit 78.3 percent (18-of-23) at the free throw stripe.

|+| Before Nebraska

Maric came to the United States in October 2003, and quickly made an impact. In one season of high school basketball at Burlington (N.J.) Life Center, Maric averaged 19 points and 12 rebounds per game for Coach Darryl Gladden.

Maric was quickly ranked among the top 70 prep players in the country by hoopscooponline.com. He was ranked No. 22 nationally among fifth-year players by the recruiting service, and was the No. 9 senior in the state by the recruiting web site NJHoops.com. Maric was listed No. 61 nationally by Bob Gibbons, and was the No. 8-ranked fifth-year player in the New York/New Jersey area and a four-star recruit by TheInsiders.com.

Maric played at the Australian Institute for Sport under Coach Marty Clarke before coming to the United States. AIS is a national development center for the country's elite athletes. At AIS, Maric averaged 10 points and 13 rebounds in 2002-03. He went on to help the Australian Under-20 National Team win the gold medal at the World Championships in Greece in 2003. Under the guidance of Coach Rob Beverage, Maric helped his New South Wales team to the silver and gold medals the previous two years, respectively.

Maric also played competitive soccer for seven years as a goal-keeper before turning his talents to the hardwood.

|+| Before Nebraska

A proven scorer and rebounder at the junior college level, Ade Dagunduro (pronounced ah-deh dah-gun-der-oh) looks to bring his immense athleticism and energy to Nebraska and the Big 12 Conference this season. Dagunduro enters his first season with the Huskers with a chance to log extensive minutes as his solid frame and outstanding end-to-end defensive abilities are perfectly suited for Coach Doc Sadler's aggressive defensive style.

Dagunduro joins the Huskers after a standout season at Antelope Valley (Calif.) Community College, where he led the Marauders to a 31-7 overall record last season. Antelope Valley earned a No. 3 seed from the Southern California region in the state junior college tournament and finished as state runner-up. Behind Dagunduro's play, the Marauders made their second final four appearance in four years, and third in program history.

Dagunduro posted team highs in scoring average (18.2 ppg), rebounding average (8.8 rpg) and steals (86) while starting 34 of 36 games in 2006-07. He also ranked second on the team in field-goal percentage (50.1, 233-of-505), free throws made (134) and attempted (205) and assists (106) and was third in blocked shots (27).

While leading Antelope Valley in scoring 15 times during the season, Dagunduro scored a season-high 30 points against Mt. San Jacinto. He also led the team in rebounds 20 times, including 12 double-figure efforts with a high of 16 boards against L.A. Valley.

For his efforts, Dagunduro earned all-state and first-team All-Foothills Conference accolades after leading the squad to the league title with 18 more wins than the previous season. He also was named MVP at three tournaments and was an all-tournament team selection at the state junior college championships. Dagunduro redshirted his first year at Antelope Valley.

Before entering junior college, Dagunduro played one season at Inglewood High School, leading the team to the Division II state title game and earning second-team all-state honors. He then played the 2004-05 season at Mt. San Antonio College, where he averaged 12.7 points and 5.8 rebounds per game. He also recorded 55 steals in 25 contests for Mt. SAC while earning first-team all-conference honors as a freshman.

|+| Personal

Ade is the son of April Williams and Olasupo Dagunduro, and was born May 22, 1986. His full given name is Adeola, and he has two brothers, Olatokunbo and Olayinka. Olatokunbo (Ola) was a two-year letterwinner for the NU football team (2005-06), and signed an NFL free agent contract with Dallas before the season. Ade is majoring in sociology at Nebraska.

Following his standout year at Antelope Valley, Dagunduro was recruited by Missouri, Miami, USC, UNLV, Penn State, Marshall and Pepperdine before choosing to sign with the Huskers in the spring of 2007.

|+| Why Nebraska?

"Mainly the tradition. And my brother (Ola) playing (football) here gave me a little more knowledge about Nebraska than other places."

|+| What do you like most about the coaching staff?

"Just how down to Earth they are. A lot of coaches like to sugarcoat things, but they were real from the start and I could see that."

Steve Harley #4

|+| What made you decide to come to Nebraska?

"As soon as I found out about the city and that it's like back home, that helped. And the coaches. I like the coaching staff because they're down to Earth. They're your friends off the court, but on the court, they don't play around."

|+| What's your goal this year?

"Just to win as many games as possible."

|+| Before Nebraska

After using summer school to complete his associate's degree, Steve Harley made it to the Lincoln campus the week before fall semester. His arrival was one of the most anticipated by a Husker basketball player in years after Harley produced an outstanding junior college career the past two seasons.

Harley finished his sophomore campaign in 2007 as a first-team junior college All-American. It was the second consecutive season he earned All-America accolades as he was selected to the second team in 2006. Harley was also named to the all-conference and all-region teams each year, and was selected to play in the 2007 NJCAA Basketball Coaches Association All-Star Classic.

Harley's accolades came after he led South Plains (Texas) College to a No. 20 final national team ranking in NJCAA Division I. The Texans, coached by Steve Green, ended the year with an outstanding 26-7 overall record behind Harley's play, which included a team-best 19.2 points per game. He added 3.9 rebounds and 2.8 assists per game. Harley shot 51.9 percent (256-of-493) from the floor and hit 103 free throws after getting to the line a team-high 156 times. He also led the team with 72 steals and logged 1,137 minutes (34.5 mpg) on the court, 140 minutes more than anyone else on the team.

A year earlier, Harley made teams around the country take notice as he helped South Plains to a 24-8 record, averaging 20.7 points, 4.1 assists, 2.9 rebounds and 2.0 steals per game.

His solid performances throughout his junior college career helped him earn a No. 4 national ranking among shooting guards by Rick Ball for The Sporting News 2006-07 Preseason Yearbook. Harley was also ranked the No. 3 point guard in the junior college ranks last year by nbadraft.net.

A native of Temple Hills, Md., Harley played his final season of prep basketball at Marriott High School for Coach Lonnie Brooks. As a senior in 2003-04, he was ranked among the top 100 players in the country by Hoopmasters.com and averaged 25 points and seven assists per game to earn all-area recognition. Harley played for Crossland High School as a junior when he averaged 28 points per game to earn all-state honors.

Harley did not enroll in college or play competitive basketball in 2004-05.

|+| Personal

Steve is the son of Laviene and Stanley Harley, and was born on Nov. 16, 1985. He has one brother, Stanley, and one sister, Sade.

Harley was recruited by a number of schools out of junior college before signing with the Huskers. Among the most interested suitors were Kansas State from the Big 12 and several teams from his native East Coast, including St. John's, Seton Hall, Canisius and Quinnipiac.

#20 Shang Ping

Junior

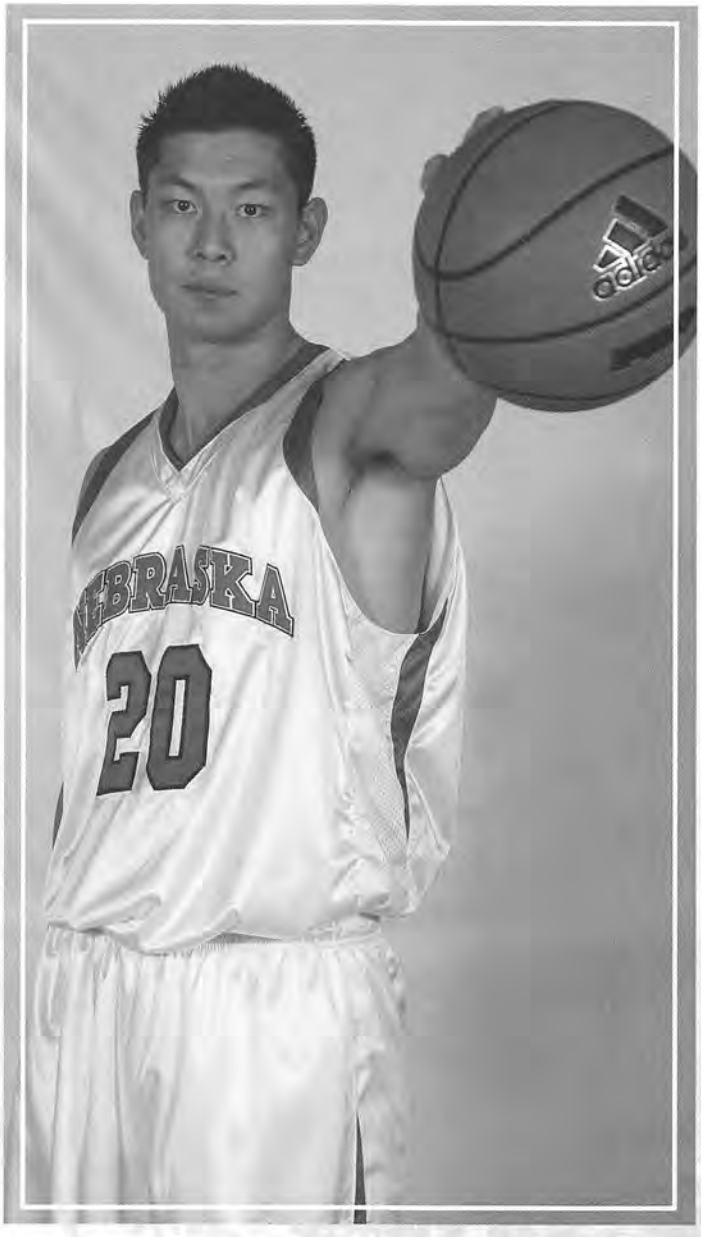
Haerbin, China
Avondal [New Zealand] HS/
Illinois Central College



|+| Before Nebraska

One of only a handful of Chinese players in Division I basketball this season, Shang Ping (pronounced shung) hopes to make an immediate impact for the Huskers this season. As of September, the only other Chinese players known to be enrolled at Division I schools were 7-2 Max Zhang at California and 6-10 Ji Xiang at Hawaii, both freshmen. Ping is also the first Asian-born player to compete in men's basketball at Nebraska.

With solid size and a tenacious demeanor, Ping is an aggressive player who goes hard every time down the court, one of the many traits that Coach Doc Sadler looks for in a player. Ping has decent range on the offensive end and is a force on the glass. Likely to play both small and power forward, Ping is expected to play a complementary role in the paint to all-conference center Aleks Maric.

Ping showed a physical presence in the paint as a freshman at Illinois Central College in 2005-06, when he averaged 14.5 points and nearly six rebounds per game for Coach Tony Wysinger. His impressive play caught the eyes of coaches around the league as he was named all-conference and all-region at the end of 2006.

After a breakout season, Ping earned MVP honors at the Midwest High School/Junior College Showcase during the summer of 2006 and was selected as a preseason junior college All-American last year before being sidelined for much of the campaign. He was also named the No. 6 small forward in junior college by nbadraft.net before the season.

Despite battling nagging injuries, Ping averaged 7.8 points and 4.1 rebounds per game while hitting a solid 52 percent from the field to help ICC to a 27-3 record and final No. 2 national ranking at NJCAA Division II last year.

Ping went to ICC after originally coming to the United States to play at the prep school level in Massachusetts. But Ping instead chose to go to junior college near friends living in Illinois.

Before coming to the United States, Ping played high school basketball at Avondal High School in New Zealand for Coach Anthony Keung. Ping averaged 20 points and nine rebounds per game and led the team to a No. 4 national ranking before being named to the Auckland-Waitakere Under-20 Boys Team in 2003. Previously he played for the Chinese Under 18 team from 1997 to 2000 and was a Nike Asian Camp attendee in Tokoyo, Japan, in 1998.

Paul Velander (pronounced vuh-land-er) had a strong first season under Coach Doc Sadler. Despite battling through injuries (shoulder and ankle) for the second straight season, Velander finished his sophomore campaign ranked third on the team in 3-pointers (32) while averaging 4.3 points per game. After playing just three minutes in two games as a redshirt freshman a year earlier, Velander became a solid weapon on the perimeter for the Huskers and saw action in 27 contests (396 minutes) last season.

Velander made his only career start against Oklahoma State in the regular-season finale and made the most of the opportunity. He hit 5-of-10 shots from the floor, including tying his career high with four 3-pointers, while drilling 6-of-7 at the charity stripe to produce a career-high 20-point performance in the 85-73 Husker victory.

The double-figure scoring effort was one of five on the season for Velander, although it was his only time scoring more than nine points in a conference game. He also scored 12 points on the road against Oregon, which went on to reach the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament, and at Miami. He hit four 3-pointers against both the Ducks and Hurricanes.

Velander made it back-to-back double-figure scoring games each time. He connected for 10 points against Alabama A&M following the Oregon contest and had 10 points against Savannah State after the Miami trip.

Providing some of the strongest long-range shooting on the squad, Velander posted at least one 3-pointer in 11 of his last 12 games overall, including each of the final eight contests. After a slow start to the Big 12 slate when he hit just 4-of-18 from beyond the arc, Velander became a dangerous outside threat for the Huskers as he knocked down 15 of his final 40 attempts from long range.

Overall, Velander hit 37.5 percent (33-of-88) from the floor including a solid 37.6 percent (32-of-85) from beyond the arc. He also connected on 82.6 percent (19-of-23) from the free throw line to rank among the team leaders in accuracy at the stripe. Velander added 19 steals on the year, including 10 steals over his last five games.

Off the court, Velander was a first-team academic All-Big 12 selection.

2005-06 (R-Freshman)

Velander suffered a preseason injury in his left ankle that required surgery and he was relegated to the bench for the majority of the campaign. He saw action in just two contests for a total of three minutes. Velander played his first career game against Baylor, and notched his lone assist of the season. He also saw two minutes against Colorado in the Huskers' victory at home.

2004-05 (Freshman)

Velander redshirted during his first season with the Huskers.

Before Nebraska

Velander averaged 16.8 points and 5.3 rebounds per game as a senior at Blacksburg. He added 3.0 assists and a solid 2.7 steals per contest. A threat from outside the arc, Velander hit 41 percent from 3-point range in 2004. He also led the team in free throw percentage four straight seasons, including hitting 82 percent shooting at the line as a senior. Velander was also named the team's defensive player of the year.

Velander earned first-team All-Blue Ridge Conference honors as a senior under Coach Doug Day, and was named to the all-district tournament team. He was selected to play in the VHSCA All-Star Players Game following his senior season, where he scored 11 points for the West.

A varsity starter all four years, Velander averaged more than 10 points per game all four seasons. He recorded more than 1,000 career points and hit better than 40 percent from 3-point range for his career. As a sophomore, Velander led Blacksburg to the state title game where it lost by three points. He averaged a tournament-best 19.5 points while hitting 9-of-15 attempts from 3-point range.

During the club season, Velander played for Coach Ron Giddings and the Richmond Squires AAU team, and was a member of the Southwest Virginians, which was the runner-up at the Youth Basketball of America national tournament.

In the classroom, Velander was a four-year honor roll student. He also earned the National Scholar-Athlete Award from the U.S. Army in 2004.

Ryan Anderson made an immediate impact for the Huskers as a freshman. Despite playing out of position in the 4 spot, Anderson racked up solid numbers as he was second on the team with 10.1 points and 4.6 rebounds per game.

Anderson's scoring average and 283 total points ranked sixth and ninth, respectively, in the NU freshman record book. In fact, he was only the sixth freshman in NU history to average double-figure points. In a well-rounded rookie campaign, Anderson also ranked in the NU freshman top 10 for field goals (103, eighth), rebounds (129, seventh), 3-pointers (48, second) and steals (25, eighth).

Ranking second on the team, Anderson hit an impressive 47.0 percent from the floor on the year. While he had relatively few attempts, Anderson was just as solid from the charity stripe as he hit 74.4 percent (29-of-39).

Despite being slowed by an ankle injury during the start of the conference season, Anderson was still one of the most deadly 3-point shooters in Nebraska history. He finished the season leading the Huskers with 48 3-pointers while his 43.2 percent shooting from outside the arc was second on the team and seventh in Nebraska history.

In his most prolific game of the year, Anderson posted 29 points in a road loss to Hawaii at the Rainbow Classic. Anderson, who just missed tying the NU freshman single-game scoring record of 30 points set by Tyronn Lue in 1997, drained a career-best seven 3-pointers in the contest to tie the Husker freshman record while finishing one away from the overall mark. He also made six treys at Kansas and set a single-game school accuracy record by going 5-for-5 from beyond the arc at Rutgers.

Anderson just missed out on 20-point contests three other times, including a 19-point performance when he hit 7-of-8 attempts from the floor to help Nebraska to a 73-61 victory over No. 20 Creighton. Anderson's biggest games seemed to come against the top competition as he averaged a team-best 15.8 points and 4.8 rebounds, including hitting 55.0 percent from the floor, in five games against ranked teams.

After struggling with turnovers that left him with a 22-to-36 deficit in assist-to-turnover ratio during the non-conference slate, Anderson made solid gains during league play by posting 24 assists against just 20 turnovers. He averaged 2.0 assists per game over his last 11 contests.

|+| Before Nebraska

Anderson was a highly rated West Coast recruit who was considered one of the top long-range shooters in the Northwest as a senior.

A native of Seattle, Anderson lettered four years at powerhouse Rainier Beach High School, which won the state title and was ranked No. 1 in the nation during Anderson's freshman season. That team included current NBA guards Jamal Crawford and Nate Robinson.

Anderson also helped Rainier Beach to a runner-up finish at state as a sophomore. He earned all-conference and all-city honors as a junior and senior, and added first-team all-state accolades as a senior. He averaged 19.4 points, nine rebounds and seven assists per game as a senior while the team placed fourth at state with a 23-7 record.

Anderson was ranked among the top 20 players in the western United States by Hoop Review and was named the MVP of the 2006 Northwest Shootout all-star game. He dominated the high school all-star event by scoring 39 points while grabbing 10 rebounds and dishing out four assists.

During summer AAU action, Anderson averaged 12 points, four rebounds and three assists per game while helping his Friends of Hoop squad to the semifinals of the 2005 Nike Peach Jam. Later that summer, Anderson and Friends of Hoop won the Main Event title in Las Vegas and reached the Prep Showcase championship game. At the Prep Showcase, Anderson won the 3-point contest title, defeating Kevin Durant, who went on to become the 2007 national player of the year and No. 2 pick in the 2007 NBA Draft.

Chris Balham made strides down the stretch of his redshirt-freshman campaign after an illness at the beginning of the season derailed his early progress.

Balham suffered from weakness in his legs and spent three days in the hospital in November before returning to practice. Once he was cleared to participate, Balham slowly regained his physical presence on the court and finished the year playing in 26 contests. Balham competed for a total of 131 minutes, but the illness prevented him from playing extended minutes. He played more than eight minutes in a game only four times, including just once after Christmas.

Despite not seeing much court time, Balham provided a solid foundation with his hard work and determination to improve. Balham hit 3-of-9 shots from the floor and 10 of his 22 rebounds came on the offensive end.

Balham's most important performance came on the road against Missouri when he pulled down two late offensive boards and hit 3-of-4 free throw attempts for a career-high three points to help the Huskers to a come-from-behind road victory. Balham also pulled down two rebounds on the offensive end while adding a steal and basket to help Nebraska sweep the Tigers with a win in Lincoln.

2005-06 (Freshman)

Balham redshirted his first season at Nebraska. He practiced with the team but did not compete during the regular season.

Before Nebraska

A raw talent with great potential, Balham began playing basketball after coming to the United States from France before his freshman season in high school.

Balham played three seasons at Shawnee Mission West, finishing his career by guiding his team to the 2005 Class 6A state championship game. His team finished with a 15-10 record as he averaged 11 points, 11 rebounds and four blocked shots as a senior. Balham was named all-conference, all-county and honorable-mention all-state in 2005.

As a junior, Balham averaged 9.5 points, 8.5 rebounds and 3.0 blocks while helping the Vikings to an 11-10 record. Despite finishing one game above .500, West was the leading defensive team in the state as it allowed only 41.9 points per game while holding opponents to just 38 percent shooting from the floor. Balham helped West outrebound opponents by an average of seven boards per game.

#31 Alex Chapman

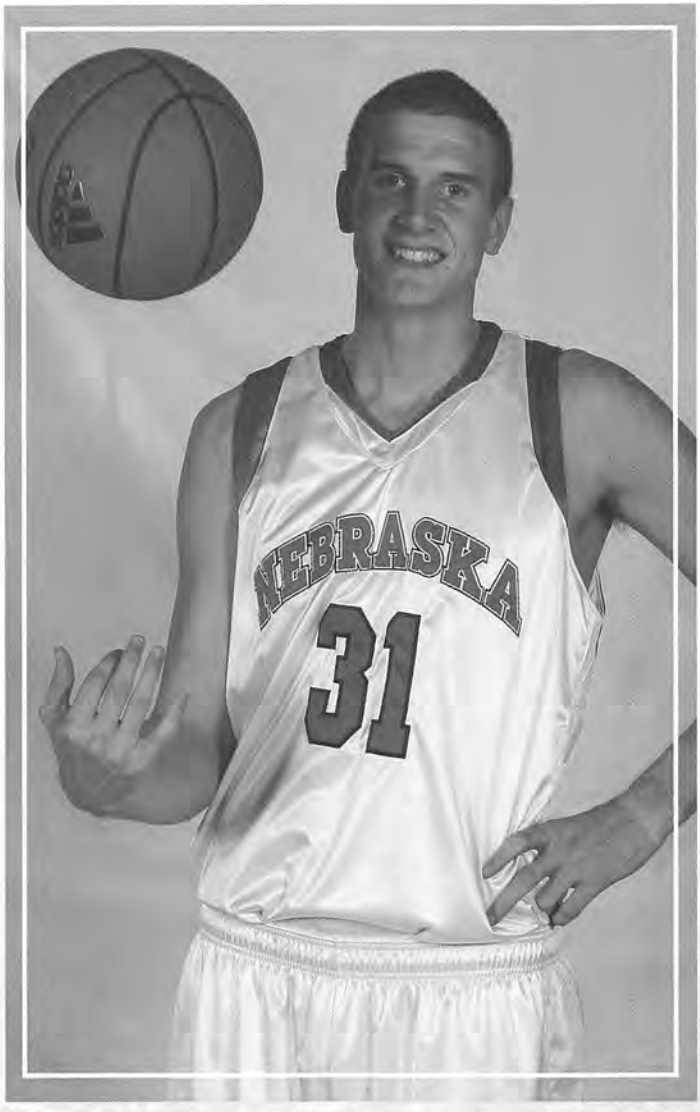
Sheridan [Wyo.] College



|+| Before Nebraska

After one season of junior college basketball, Canby, Ore., native Alex Chapman signed with the Huskers in the fall of 2006. He is the second player in as many years from the Pacific Northwest to sign with Nebraska, joining Seattle native Ryan Anderson.

Chapman was the first player to give the Huskers a verbal commitment for the 2007 recruiting class, which many analysts have placed in the top 25 in the country and near the top of the Big 12.

Chapman is an athletic big man who can get out and run with the offense that Coach Doc Sadler is trying to build. Chapman has a good touch from outside the arc and can work inside the paint as well, giving the Cornhuskers another complementary player alongside all-conference center Aleks Maric in the low post.

With the Huskers, Chapman will be a sophomore who has four years to play three. He originally went to junior college out of high school after injury cut his senior season of high school short and limited his college options. Chapman suffered another injury this September that required surgery on his knee, but his rehab was successful and he was expected to be able to compete at the start of regular-season practice.

Last year, Chapman played for Coach Joel Davidson at Sheridan College in Wyoming. Chapman was highly productive from the start as he posted 9.8 points and a team-high 6.6 rebounds per game as a freshman for the Generals. He was among the team leaders in 3-pointers (20) and field-goal percentage (46.4) while helping Sheridan average 91.4 points per game before finishing with a 27-4 record.

During his shortened senior season, Chapman averaged 16 points and eight rebounds in 13 games for Canby and Coach Dane Walker. Despite the setback, Chapman ended his career on a positive note as he was selected to the all-league and honorable-mention all-state teams. As a junior, Chapman added 7.6 points per game while helping the team to a solid 22-6 record, including an impressive 15-1 mark in Pac-9 Conference action.

In the summer, Chapman played AAU basketball with the Portland Panthers under Coach Reggie Guyton Sr. Chapman helped the Panthers to the Elite Eight of the Reebok Big Time in Las Vegas.

|+| Personal

Alex is the son of Ginny and Kenny Chapman, and was born on Aug. 28, 1987. He has one sister, Kelly, and one brother, Clint. His brother signed to play with Big 12 foe Texas where he is a freshman this year.

Alex was recruited by Texas A&M, Pacific and Portland State before signing with the Cornhuskers last fall.

|+| Why Nebraska?

"I like that we're in the Big 12. This is the highest level of play you can get. I like how they help everyone academically. They do a really good job of making sure we stay on track to graduate."

|+| What drew you to the NU coaches?

"I think Doc has a great work ethic. It's such a tough conference, so you have to be able to work hard. If you have a hard-working coach, that makes the players work hard too, and that can translate into success."

2006-07 (Freshman)

The first player to sign with Coach Doc Sadler at Nebraska (August 2006), Sek Henry was one of only two players to see action in every contest in 2006-07. Henry started 15 of the first 16 games and made 18 starts overall while averaging 5.8 points, 2.0 rebounds and 1.7 assists per game.

An athletic left-hander, Henry's strongest play was in non-conference action before the grind of the Big 12 season began. Despite the slowdown in production, Henry proved he can create offense and get to the basket as he was third on the team in free throw attempts, while connecting at a 60-percent clip and was second among freshmen scorers for the Huskers.

Henry started his career with a bang, hitting all three attempts from the floor for eight points to go with four assists without a turnover in Nebraska's season opener. He followed with at least five assists in two of the next three contests while helping the Huskers to a five-game winning streak to open the season. Overall, Henry had at least four assists in a game six times to finish third on the squad with 52 assists on the year.

By posting 11 points on 4-of-6 shooting against Alabama A&M, Henry started his hottest streak of the season as he scored in double figures in four of the final seven non-conference games, and had at least eight points in two others. Henry scored 10 points in a comeback attempt against Hawaii in the second game of the Rainbow Classic before posting a career-high 20 points in the third-place contest against Houston.

The Cougars jumped out to a 10-point lead in the first half, but the Huskers whittled away at the lead as they held UH to one field goal in the first 16:08 of the second half before eventually claiming a 70-57 victory. Henry's 20 points came on 8-of-15 shooting and he added five rebounds and two steals.

Henry had his most accurate game against Savannah State as he was 7-of-7 from the field, including draining both 3-point attempts, along with knocking down two free throws and adding five assists without a turnover.

Before Nebraska

Henry played the 2005-06 season at the Patterson School in North Carolina, where he helped the team to a 37-3 record under Coach Chris Chaney.

Rated one of the nation's best prep school combo guards by recruiting analyst Van Coleman, Henry played alongside more than a dozen Division I scholarship signees at Patterson. Dave Telep of Scout.com ranked Henry No. 24 nationally among postgraduate players that season. The lefty averaged 14 points and four assists per game, including a season-high 51 points in a contest.

Henry joined the Patterson School after playing ball at Lynwood High School, where he was a Best in the West selection and averaged 24 points, six assists and five rebounds per game as a senior while earning All-California Interscholastic Federation honors. Henry's impressive senior season earned him honors as he was selected as one of 100 finalists for McDonald's All-America honors in 2005. The original list included more than 2,500 nominations. He was also ranked No. 3 among shooting guards from the West Coast by scouthoops.com, No. 77 nationally by hoopmasters.com and took the No. 100 position in the nation by Hoop Scoop. As a junior, he averaged 20.0 points, 5.0 assists and 2.0 rebounds per game.

During AAU competition, Henry played for the highly touted Belmont Shores in the summer when he was named to the 2006 Top 30 All-Stars at the Fullcourt Press All-West Camp. He was labeled "a highly potent offensive weapon" at the camp. Henry also played for the H-Squad under coach Rick Issac and led the team to the 2006 Rumble in the Bronx title when he scored 23 points in the championship game, including seven 3-pointers, the last of which came in the final seconds of the game. Following his senior season he averaged 20.8 points per game for the H-Squad while helping the team to the finals of the 2005 Tournament of Champions.

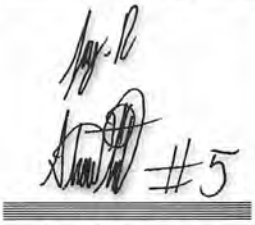
#5 Jay-R Strowbridge



Sophomore
Guard • 5-11 • 185
Ardmore, Ala.
Sparkman HS

2006-07 (Freshman)

Jay-R Strowbridge proved his ability to step in as the Huskers' backup at the point while also providing NU with another scoring threat from long range as a true freshman. He started 13-of-29 contests while averaging 3.9 points and 2.1 assists per game, and ended his rookie campaign as the most accurate freshman 3-point shooter in school history.

Strowbridge's impressive physical ability helped him to quickly integrate into Coach Doc Sadler's defensive schemes. Strowbridge provided strong pressure on defense, especially when matched against the opponent's top playmakers. His most prominent defensive performance was showcased in the Huskers' come-from-behind road victory at Missouri when Strowbridge locked down the Tigers' top scoring threat, Stefhon Hannah, holding him to six points, nearly 10 points below his average.

On the offensive end, Strowbridge was just as effective. He hit 40.9 percent (36-of-88) from the floor, including a team-leading 46.3 percent (25-of-54) from 3-point range. Strowbridge's 3-point percentage was a Nebraska freshman record and ranked as the third-best 3-point percentage in school history. He was one of three Huskers to rank in the top 10 for 3-point percentage last year, along with returning sophomore Ryan Anderson (43.2) and graduated senior Marcus Perry (41.1).

Strowbridge made his collegiate debut a memorable one as he came off the bench to hit 2-of-3 treys to spark Nebraska to a nine-point win over No. 20 Creighton. He also had a strong offensive game off the bench at Missouri when he ignited the come-from-behind road victory by hitting all three 3-point attempts, pushing Nebraska back from a nine-point deficit early in the first period.

In his first career start against Wyoming at the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii, Strowbridge hit 4-of-7 attempts from the floor and all five free throw attempts for a career-high 14 points while playing 30 minutes. He added eight assists against zero turnovers and went on to rank fifth on the squad with 50 assists on the year.

Strowbridge posted his second double-figure scoring game against Oklahoma State in the regular-season finale with 11 points while adding five assists and a career-high tying four rebounds.

Before Nebraska

Strowbridge was a late addition to the Husker roster after signing with Nebraska in May 2006. Before joining the Huskers, Strowbridge helped Coach Luther Tiggs and Sparkman High School to a 59-14 record over his final two prep seasons, including a 32-4 record and an Elite Eight appearance at the state tournament as a senior. Strowbridge averaged nearly 19 points, five assists and three steals per game to earn all-state honors and was named the metro area player of the year in 2006.

As a junior, Strowbridge averaged 12.5 points, four rebounds and four assists per game while guiding the Senators to a state semifinals berth. He was named the Northwest Region 8 MVP for his efforts. As a sophomore, Strowbridge added 11.2 points per contest.

Following the 2005 campaign, Strowbridge was named the MVP of the Alabama High School North-South All-Star Game after scoring 20 points to go with six assists, two rebounds and a steal in 29 minutes. He also had an impressive showing with his performance at the 2006 Mississippi-Alabama All-Star Game when he was named most valuable player after scoring 18 points for his home state.

On the AAU circuit, Strowbridge played for the Alabama Hoyas and Southeast Elite under coaches Bill Harris and Mark Komara in 2005. He averaged 21.2 points and four assists per game while guiding his team to a top-16 berth in the Vegas RBK Showcase.

The son of Charles and Barbara Strowbridge, Jay-R was born Feb. 19, 1988. His given name is Charles Strowbridge II, and he has one brother, Tadairius, and one sister, Toya. Strowbridge originally signed with Murray State in the fall of 2005, but was released from his initial letter-of-intent following a coaching change. He also received interest from Tennessee, Stanford, Oklahoma, UAB and Wichita State among others.

Alonzo Edwards #15

Freshman
Forward • 6-7 • 225
Houston, Texas
Klein Forest HS

|+| Why Nebraska?

"The opportunity to help the program to another level."

|+| What do you like about the coaches?

"I like it that they push you hard. Even though you think you can't do it, they still push you so you can keep pushing through. The coaches never let you quit. They'll work out a workout plan for you so you can get acquainted with the system and everything."

|+| Before Nebraska

The first high school prospect to commit to Coach Doc Sadler's 2007 recruiting class, Alonzo Edwards brings impressive size, power and versatility to the perimeter for the Huskers.

At 6-7, 225 pounds, Edwards has prototypical size to play at power forward in the Big 12 Conference, but also possesses a deft touch and good range on the offensive end. Edwards can also play on the wing, making him what Sadler termed "possibly the best athlete" in this year's recruiting class, which was ranked by many major recruiting analysts as one of the top 25 classes in the country and among the best in the Big 12 Conference.

Edwards made solid contributions to his Klein Forest High School squad by leading the Golden Eagles to a 23-9 record as a senior. He also helped Coach Cary Black's team to district and regional championships. Edwards was named first-team all-state and all-conference, while earning All-America honors.

A solid finisher around the basket and an aggressive rebounder, Edwards averaged a double-double during his senior season in 2007 with 15 points and 10 rebounds per game, the second straight season he posted a double-double over a year. As a junior he grabbed 18 points, 12 rebounds and three blocked shots per game while earning all-district accolades and leading Klein Forest to a 22-15 record.

Edwards' strong play during his high school career helped him earn a top-25 ranking within the state of Texas by several publications. Overall, he was ranked as high as No. 13 in the state by texashoops.com, and he picked up a top-10 ranking in the city of Houston, one of two Huskers on this year's squad ranked among the top 10 in the city (also Toney McCray). Edwards earned a three-star ranking from Rivals.com and was ranked among the top 125 players nationally by ESPN.com, including No. 18 at small forward.

Away from the hardwood, Edwards earned one varsity letter in football as a wide receiver and also lettered one year in track and field.

During the summer, Edwards played AAU ball for Houston Select and Coach David Salinas as well as with the Houston Knights. He scored a career high 44 points in a game against the So-Cal All-Stars.

|+| Personal

Alonzo is the son of Regina Edwards and Felix Potes, and was born on Sept. 11, 1988. He was also raised by his uncle, Kenneth Lathan, and he has one sister, Ariana, and one brother, Javier. Edwards is planning to major in marketing at Nebraska.

Edwards was heavily recruited by several BCS conference schools, including Texas, Syracuse, USC, Boston College, Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Miami, before choosing to sign with the Huskers.

#30 Toney McCray

Freshman
Guard • 6-6 • 185
Missouri City, Texas
Fort Bend Elkins HS

|+| Before Nebraska

Toney McCray came on strong during his senior season of high school and was a fast-rising prospect before becoming the Huskers' final signee in the 2007 spring semester.

A talented wing player with a smooth game, McCray can stroke the long ball and has the ability to work inside the paint. He has a soft touch and can finish around the basket. On the defensive end, he has long arms and great range with good speed.

McCray came to the Huskers after an impressive senior season at Fort Bend Elkins High School where he averaged a solid 16 points, six rebounds and 2.5 assists per game in 2006-07. He hit 50 percent from the floor and 75 percent from the free throw line according to his head coach, Albert Thomas.

McCray helped Elkins to a 31-5 record last season and a No. 5 ranking by the state high school association. Elkins won the district title and reached the third round (regional quarterfinals) of the state tournament before bowing out to Kingwood.

Following his senior season, McCray was named the Most Valuable Player in the district, one of three players from Elkins to earn first-team all-district accolades last year. McCray also earned all-region honors from the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches and was named to the all-tournament team at the Spring Creek Classic in Arlington, Texas. McCray put on a display with his athleticism during an all-star event as a senior when he earned the Best Dunker title at several events.

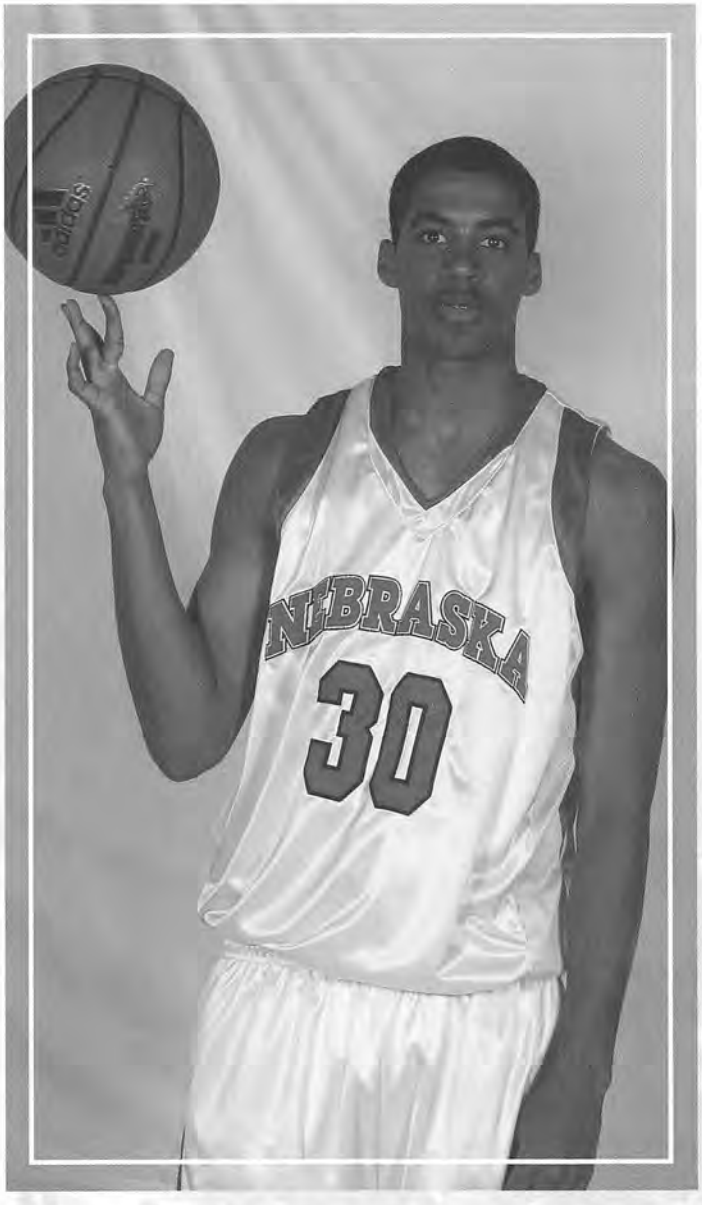
The strong senior season helped McCray earn a ranking among the top 20 recruits in the state according to texashoops.com. He was also one of two Husker recruits, along with Alonzo Edwards, to be ranked among the top 10 players in the city of Houston, making Nebraska the first school outside of the state of Texas in at least five years to sign two of the top 10 players in Houston.

McCray did not play basketball during his junior season as he was held out while undergoing examinations for a medical condition. The testing was necessary as his older brother, Jason, died from a heart attack in 1998 at age 19 while playing basketball.

|+| Personal

Toney is the son of Valda and Tony McCray, and was born on April 13, 1989. He has one sister, Danielle. McCray's cousin is former Nebraska quarterback Steve Taylor. Toney is planning to major in communication studies at Nebraska.

Because of missing his junior season, McCray was not heavily recruited until late in his senior campaign, but then saw heavy interest from several major programs including Georgia, UConn, Washington State and Baylor before choosing to sign with Coach Sadler and the Huskers.



|+| Why Nebraska?

"It was Doc Sadler. He's a hard-working coach. He's well-respected and I think he was the best coach out of all the coaches that recruited me during the process."

|+| What's your goal this season?

"Our goal is to make it to the NCAA Tournament as a team. That's everyone's goal, not just mine. And we want to win the Big 12 (Championship)."

Cookie Miller #24

Freshman

Charleston, W.Va.
Capital HS/
Harmony Community
[Ohio] School

|+| Why Nebraska?

"As soon as I met Doc Sadler, he was straight up with me and told me that it's not guaranteed I will be a starter, but the spot is open. That really influenced me. All the rest of the schools tried to get me to sign as soon as I came in, right then. But these coaches said to take my time and do whatever I need and they would still be here for me."

|+| What's your goal?

"Our goal is to make the NCAA Tournament."

|+| Before Nebraska

An ultra-quick point guard with explosive athletic ability, Cookie Miller joins the Husker program with a favorable comparison to last year's senior leader, Charles Richardson Jr. At 5-7, Miller may be diminutive in stature but provides a large presence on both ends of the basketball court while possessing incredible floor vision and speed.

Miller comes to Lincoln with strong credentials after a stellar prep career in his native state of West Virginia and then at Harmony Community School in Ohio. During the 2006-07 season, Miller averaged 18.1 points, 8.4 assists and 2.3 steals per game for Harmony Community and Coach Mark Metzka. Miller helped Harmony to a No. 5 national prep school ranking last season.

A year earlier, Miller averaged 17 points and nearly 12 assists per contest under Coach Rodney Crawford while finishing high school. He added a school-record 22 assists in a game for Harmony, and was given a three-star rating and ranked as the No. 12 player in the state of Ohio by Rivals.com last year.

At Capital High School in Charleston, W.Va., Miller led coach Carl Clark's team to a 21-5 record and a state semifinals berth in 2005. Miller earned state player-of-the-year honors and was named captain of the all-state squad, his third selection to the all-state first team. Miller finished as the school's career leader with more than 1,500 points.

During the summer, Miller also played AAU ball at the highest levels as he was a member of the D-1 Greyhounds based out of Cincinnati. Among his teammates with the Greyhounds were top-10 national recruits O.J. Mayo (signed with Southern California) and Bill Walker (signed with Kansas State). At the 2006 ABCD Camp, Miller was ninth among campers in assists per game (3.1 against 1.6 turnovers), fourth with 1.7 steals per contest and added a solid 3.0 rebounds per game.

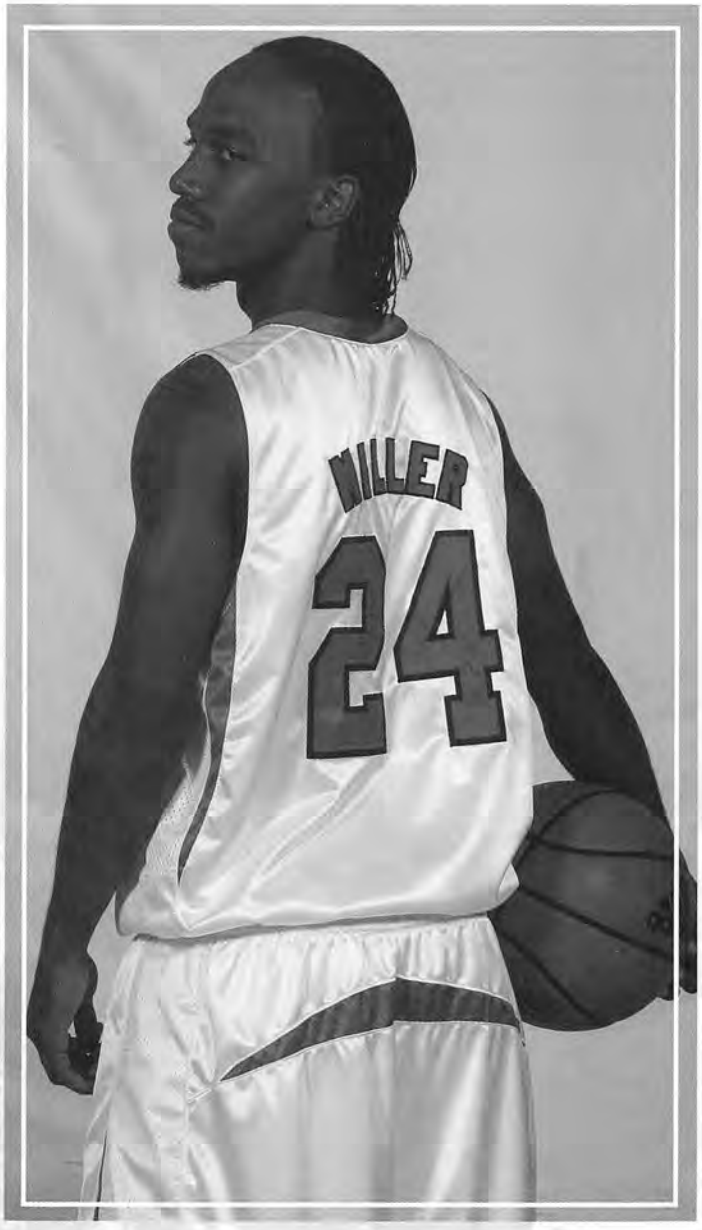
Cookie, whose given name is Wendell, is the son of Marty and Cookie Miller, and was born on May 30, 1987. He has four sisters, Peaches, Nikky, Michelle and Lemesha. He plans to major in accounting at Nebraska.

Cookie chose to join Doc Sadler and the Huskers after receiving strong recruiting interest from a number of schools in the East, including Xavier, Rhode Island, Akron, Toledo and Cleveland State.



#3 Brandon Richardson

Freshman
Guard • 6-0 • 160
Los Angeles, Calif.
Hawthorne HS

|+| Before Nebraska

An athletic guard who can play both the point and scoring guard, Brandon Richardson was one of three high school players to sign in Coach Doc Sadler's first fall recruiting class, along with Alonzo Edwards and Cookie Miller. Richardson brings solid size when at the point guard position and has shown an ability to provide a comfortable flow to the game while involving his teammates. When looking to score, Richardson has the ability to put the ball on the floor or pull up from outside the arc, providing a solid scoring threat at the point.

According to Sadler, Richardson also has a strong competitive drive and comes from a winning program – two key areas Sadler looks for in recruits.

Richardson helped Hawthorne High School and Coach Mike Rios to 36 wins over his final two seasons. Following each of his last two campaigns, Richardson was named a first-team all-state selection by the state high school coaches association. After his senior season, Richardson also earned Nike All-America honors.

A three-year starter, Richardson garnered all-conference accolades four times in his career, including earning first-team honors each of his last three seasons. Richardson was also named the league's Most Valuable Player, and was an all-area and All-California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) first-team selection after leading his squad to the playoffs as a senior. In the first round of the state playoffs, Richardson scored a career-high 38 points and came back to add 31 points in the second round before the team was knocked out of contention for the state title.

Overall, Richardson scored at least 20 points in 13 of 28 games as a senior. He averaged 20.4 points and 7.0 rebounds per game in 2006-07 while topping the 2,000-point scoring plateau. Richardson was an immediate contributor for Hawthorne beginning in his freshman year, and exploded onto the scene as a junior when he posted 22.5 points, 5.5 rebounds, 3.7 assists and 3.0 steals per game. He helped Hawthorne to a 19-10 overall record as a junior, including a perfect 10-0 mark in league action. It was the first time in school history the team went undefeated in league play and the first league title since 1991.

|+| Personal

Brandon is the son of Denise and Gentry Richardson, and was born on Dec. 31, 1988. He has one brother, Trey. Brandon was heavily recruited by several West Coast schools, including drawing offers from Pacific, Cal State Fullerton, Utah and Idaho among others. He was the first California high school product to sign with the Huskers under Coach Doc Sadler, and the third native Californian to sign with the Huskers in the past two years along with Sek Henry and Ade Dagunduro.

|+| Why Nebraska?

"The graduation rate, the conference and the coaching staff."

|+| What do you think of when people talk about Doc Sadler?

"Doc Sadler is a hard-working guy and he's willing to push everybody. Off the court you see his human side, but on the court it's all about business. I like him for being able to have both sides and still push us."

After serving as a marketing student assistant in the athletic department for a year, he joined the Nebraska basketball team as a manager for the 2006-07 campaign. After injuries depleted the team in the first month of practice, Krenk was asked to participate as a walk-on player and add depth at point guard. Just one day after his first official practice as a player, Krenk played in the Huskers' season-opening contest against Nebraska-Omaha, logging a season-high 13 minutes of action.

Atwater, Minn.
Atwater-Cosmos-Grove City HS

|+| 2006-07 (R-Freshman)

Ben Nelson joined the Husker program as a walk-on following open tryouts during the first semester before official practices began. Despite the late start, he contributed to the Huskers' improvement throughout the season by serving primarily as a practice player, although he saw some game action late in the year. In practice, Nelson provided needed depth in the paint against all-conference center Aleks Maric.

On the season, Nelson appeared in three contests for a total of nine minutes. All three of Nelson's appearances came during Big 12 Conference action, including two contests on the road. He was one of two new walk-ons (also Nick Krenk) to earn a varsity letter after making the travel squad for every league contest.

Nelson's most extensive action came with five minutes against OU. He also logged three minutes at nationally ranked Kansas and had one minute at home vs. Colorado when he recorded his only shot attempt of the year.

|+| Before Nebraska

Looking back on Kenneth "Doc" Sadler's coaching career, it's obvious why he was the perfect choice to become the 26th head coach in the history of the Cornhusker men's basketball program:

• Sadler's a veteran Division I coach who has been associated with 11 postseason teams. Only four times at this level has a team with Sadler on the sideline not played in the postseason.

• He has helped 19 players reach the pinnacle of their sport – the National Basketball Association. He personally recruited eight of those players.

• He has an all-star coaching heritage after starting in the business at his home state school, Arkansas, with future Hall of Fame Coach Eddie Sutton. That puts him in the same coaching family under Mr. Henry Iba, a legend and Hall of Famer in his own right.

Along with Sadler's personal tradition of success, his other unique attributes – the winning attitude, energy, passion and workmanlike approach – are exactly the reasons why it was easy for Sadler to get up and running quickly in his first year at Nebraska despite taking over the program at such a late date.

|+| Building Blocks

Sadler was hired on Aug. 8, 2006, and had less than 90 days before the start of fall practice to get his staff in order, finish the current schedule and round out the roster, including re-recruiting players from the previous season. As he accomplished each task with resounding success, Sadler's drive and determination rewarded the Husker faithful with immediate dividends, not only on the court but also with a feeling that the program was again headed in a positive direction.

The 2006-07 Huskers posted a 17-14 record under Sadler despite battling numerous injuries and competing with a small lineup that included only one player over 6-4 averaging more than 7.0 minutes per game. Sadler's 17 wins ranked third all-time among first-year Nebraska head coaches and the five straight wins to open the season were the most at Nebraska by a first-year mentor in eight decades. Among the early season victories was his 50th as a head coach, a 73-61 win over No. 20 Creighton that stopped a six-game regular-season win streak by the Bluejays over NU.

Nebraska also posted a seventh-place showing in the Big 12 Conference after being picked to finish near the bottom of the league's preseason polls. Behind Sadler's prodding, the Huskers had opportunities in the last two weeks of the regular season to push for an upper-division finish before falling just short.

The modest success in his first year at Nebraska was enough to leave Sadler with an impressive total of 65 wins in three years – or nearly 22 victories per season as a Division I head coach. With just 32 losses, he holds an outstanding .670 winning percentage at this level.

Nebraska's immediate improvements under Sadler were a direct reflection of his simple approach and ability

|+| Starting Strong

Doc Sadler has a history of starting strong. As a first-year Division I head coach, Sadler's UTEP team posted the seventh-highest single-season victories total in NCAA history. At Nebraska, Sadler helped the 2006-07 Huskers post 17 wins, the third-highest total ever by a first-year mentor at Nebraska.

to get the most out of his players. Sadler demands that his players give maximum effort every time they step on the court – whether in practice or a game. He reciprocates by providing players the freedom to create offensively while trying to help the team win.

The biggest benefactor of Sadler's creative style in 2006-07 was Nebraska junior center Aleks Maric, who blossomed into arguably the Big 12's top post player. Maric was one of the league's most improved players while averaging 18.5 points and 8.7 rebounds per game – making him the top returning scorer and rebounder in the Big 12 in 2007-08 – and hitting a league-high 56.5 percent from the floor. Only the second Husker ever to post 1,000 points and 600 rebounds before the end of his junior season, Maric earned second-team All-Big 12 accolades, the first Husker in six years to earn the distinction.

Maric was far from the only beneficiary of Sadler's savvy coaching. Four other Huskers entered the Nebraska record books in 2007, including seniors Charles Richardson Jr. (third in NU single-season assists) and Marcus Perry (sixth in NU single-season 3-pointers). After posting impressive numbers on the court, Richardson and Perry also became the first Huskers to earn their degrees after playing for Sadler. Former NU guard Marcus Neal Jr. also returned to the campus to earn his degree in the summer of 2007, for a total of three Husker men's basketball graduates in Sadler's first year in Lincoln.

Following the season, Sadler was honored to receive an invite to serve as a Trials Team Coach for the U.S. Under-19 World Championships team, the first stint of his career working with USA Basketball. Selected to the position by his peers, Sadler coached invited participants at the Dallas Mavericks' facilities and helped the coaching staff choose the team that went on to win the silver medal at the 2007 U-19 World Championships.

Sadler is used to getting the most out of every situation he encounters, including the chance to take over a Husker program that has at times struggled for national recognition on the basketball court.

"Someone asked me why I would come to Nebraska. It's pretty simple," Sadler said. "I've got a chance to coach at a place that has had (252) academic All-Americans. I've got a chance to coach at a place that has won (23) national championships.

"You don't win national championships because of great coaches. I truly believe this. Because you've had (252) academic All-Americans, you've got some high-character people. And you've got an athletic department and a university that cares about kids. You do not have that kind of success just because of wanting it. You've got a lot of people working for that to happen. Because you've got everybody working together, you've won (23) national championships.

"What more could a coach want than that? I can't think of anything else."

|+| Moving Up

Before Sadler, 47, brought his engaging personality and hard-nosed basketball style to the Big 12 Conference, he spent two impressive seasons as head coach at Texas-El Paso, where he helped continue the long-standing tradition of success in Miners basketball. Sadler's UTEP teams boasted 48 victories in his two years as head coach and won 72.7 percent of their games. Including his first season with the Miners as an assistant coach, Sadler helped UTEP to 72 victories over three years, ranking the Miners 20th nationally in victories during that span.

A native of Greenwood, Ark., Sadler made one of the most successful Division I coaching debuts in college basketball history, as his 2004-05 Miners squad ran to an impressive 27-8 record and an NCAA Tournament berth. UTEP won a school-record 14 Western Athletic Conference (WAC) games and its first WAC Tournament title in 15 years to earn the league's automatic bid to the Big Dance.

The 27 wins were one off the UTEP school record and ranked Sadler seventh in NCAA history for victories by a first-year Division I coach.

Sadler led UTEP to 21 victories in 2005-06 and an NIT berth while overcoming several injuries that depleted the team of its top scorers for a majority of the season. Sadler's squad relied on defense and finished the campaign ranked 15th nationally by allowing only 59.5 points per game. His disciplined approach showed on the court as the Miners placed ninth nationally with only 14.9 fouls per game and ranked 28th in rebounding margin (+4.7).

The Miners went undefeated at home in league play and earned an 11-3 mark to rank third in the final league standings. UTEP set a C-USA record by allowing just 56 points per game in conference play in 2005-06, and also allowed teams to hit just 40.6 percent from the floor on the year, the program's best mark since 1974.

While solid defense is a staple of his teams, Sadler understands the need to put creative scorers in a position to flourish. That was especially noticeable in his first UTEP team, as the 2005 Miners set the school record for points scored (2,616, 74.7 ppg), assists (579) and free throw percentage (.792).

Sadler helped two players, Omar Thomas and Filberto Rivera, earn first-team All-WAC honors in 2005, the first time UTEP had a pair of players on the first squad in 20 years.

Thomas also earned MVP honors after an outstanding performance at the league tournament. A year later, John Tofi, one of two 1,000-point scorers on the squad, was the third Miner to earn a first-team all-league certificate under Sadler.

The Miners gained three straight postseason appearances with Sadler on the bench. Before taking over as head coach, Sadler was an assistant at UTEP under then-head coach Billy Gillispie (currently head coach at Kentucky) in 2003-04 when the Miners made their first NCAA Tournament appearance in more than a decade. Under Gillispie and Sadler, UTEP tied the biggest turnaround in NCAA history that season as it went from six to 24 wins in Sadler's first season assisting the Miners.

Honing His Skills

Sadler honed his coaching skills in his native state as he served as a head coach in the junior college ranks for five years at Arkansas-Fort Smith from 1999 to 2003. The success at UTEP should have come as little surprise to anyone who knew Sadler, as he posted a 120-39 record in Fort Smith.

As a head coach, his teams have posted winning marks every season while six of his squads have won at least 20 games. Overall, he owns a 185-71 (.723) career record as a college head coach across all levels.

Sadler served two stints at Arkansas-Fort Smith, first as an assistant coach in 1988-91 and then again during the 1997-98 season. He took over as head coach and athletic director in 1998 and served in that capacity until 2003 when he left to join Gillispie at Texas-El Paso.

Sadler's teams won the Bi-State East Conference title each of his last four years at Arkansas-Fort Smith. The 2001 and 2002 NJCAA Region II Coach of the Year, Sadler led the Lions to the region title and an appearance in the NJCAA national tournament while winning 30 games each of those seasons. Off the court, his teams had a 95 percent graduation rate during his tenure and every sophomore over his last two seasons at UAFS was awarded a scholarship to a four-year institution, including eight Division I scholarships.

Honing his administrative and fundraising skills, Sadler oversaw a department that posted a 72.4 winning percentage across all sports under his guidance while he also spearheaded efforts to build a new basketball arena for the university.

Passion for Winning

Considered by many to be a tremendous tactician and strategist, Sadler is equally as impressive on the recruiting paths. Sadler has signed eight players who have gone on to play in the NBA, including Michael Batiste, Tony Battie, Cory Carr, Mark Davis, Darvin Ham, Eddie House, Maurice Jeffers and Jason Sasser.

Sadler has also coached 11 other players who reached the NBA – Greg Anderson, Mario Bennett, Randy Brown, Isaac Burton, Byron Irvin, Joe Klein, Andrew Lang, Ron Riley, Alvin Robertson, Darrell Walker and Rickie Winslow. Overall, Sadler's total is an impressive number with 19 former pupils who reached the highest level of professional basketball.

Sadler has a passion for winning, but it is his ability to build relationships and then develop players both on and off the court that served him well during his 12 years as an assistant coach. Along with his NBA and all-conference picks, Sadler has seen his players succeed in the classroom, including 10 Miners on the 2005-06 team who earned at least a 3.0 grade-point average in the first semester.

As an assistant coach, Sadler served stints at seven current Division I schools, including Arkansas (1982-85, under Coach Eddie Sutton), Lamar (1985-86, under Coach Pat Foster), Houston (1986), Chicago State (1987-88, under Coach Tommy Suitts), Texas Tech (1991-94, under Coach James Dickey), Arizona State (1994-97, under Coach Bill Freider) and UTEP (2003-04, under Coach Billy Gillispie).

Over 12 full seasons as a Division I assistant coach, nine of his teams reached the postseason, including ASU's 1996 team that reached the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament. At Texas Tech, Sadler helped the Red Raiders to the 1993 Southwest Conference title and an NCAA appearance. He recruited talent that helped the Red Raiders to a 28-1 record and a Sweet 16 berth in 1996.

Coaching Family

The energetic Sadler also served one season as a high school coach, guiding County Line High School (Ark.) to a 38-7 record. Sadler's late father, Charles, coached football at the high school level for more than 30 years in Arkansas, and Sadler's brother, Pedro, is currently head golf coach and assistant basketball coach at Fort Smith Southside High School.

Sadler, who was a student manager for the Arkansas Razorbacks under Coach Eddie Sutton, earned his bachelor's degree in physical education in 1982 before beginning his collegiate coaching career with Sutton at Arkansas. Sadler added a masters of science degree in education from Northeastern State in 1991. Sadler and his wife, Tonya, who is also a native of Greenwood, Ark., have two sons, Landon (14) and Matthew (11).

What Others Are Saying . . .

"Doc Sadler is a terrific coach, and I think that he is an inspired choice for Nebraska. He is a technically sound coach, and he understands how to teach the game. But better yet, he is a passionate basketball man who will bring excitement, discipline and winning ways to Nebraska basketball. I think Doc Sadler is a great choice and one of the up-and-coming coaches nationwide."

|+| Jay Bilas, College Basketball Analyst

"Doc is a student of the game and has worked under some really good coaches, with Coach James Dickey and Pat Foster and Billy Gillispie. He's been with good coaches and I think he certainly knows the X's and O's and is very good at recruiting.

"He has good relationships with his players and the one thing I always admired about his players – and fortunately we never had to play against his team – is the intensity his teams play with.

"I think he will be an asset to the Big 12 Conference. He's an outstanding basketball coach, and more so a better person."

|+| Eddie Sutton, future Hall of Fame coach

"Doc is the best person I have ever had the joy in meeting and getting to know. He is one of the few people who puts everyone at ease without even trying. What you see is what you get. He makes everyone feel confident because his disposition is so sunny.

"He isn't just successful; he has been ultra-successful at every single level. There is no question he will be a great coach at Nebraska. He was one of the top at UTEP in winning percentage and that's a school with a great history and a national championship.

"Doc has a great ability to push his players to the limit and then some. He is tough but has an amazing ability to build relationships with players and they are willing to play hard for Doc. He can be tough sometimes but he does it in a way where they will still like him. He's also a great X's and O's guy and is one of the best recruiters out there.

"He can get a player from anywhere. He will be in the top two or three for recruits even when he isn't supposed to be. First impressions are the most important thing and he makes as good a first impression as anyone around. It's normally pretty hard to follow a first impression but it seems like he just gets better every time you come in contact with him. Nebraska is getting the total package."

|+| Billy Gillispie, Head Coach, Kentucky

A Conversation with Coach Sadler

|+| Q: What will be the biggest strength for this coaching staff?
A: "The experience. You're talking about four guys who had high-level Division I assistant positions and some have even had head coaching experience. I'm a person who likes to have a lot of suggestions and input from my staff and I think that's something that we'll definitely get here."

|+| Q: What type of kids are you targeting each year in recruiting?
A: "I think first they have to fit in with what we want to do here at Nebraska. The players that I want to be recruiting have to be players who can compete in the top four in this league because that's where I want to finish in the Big 12. I think if you get into one of the top four spots in the Big 12, then you have a chance to win a national championship. That's been proven in the past. This league is so competitive that you have to be able to be one of those teams in the top four."

|+| Q: What do you look for in a recruit, the most specific ingredient?
A: "I think probably more than anything else what we are looking for is talent. But right behind talent, I want character. I think you have to have character with a young person who wants to be successful in life. I don't think talent alone will do it. I think you have to have talent and character hand-in-hand to win championships."

|+| Q: What are your views on playing true freshmen?
A: "I think that's the society that we live in. Everybody wants that immediate satisfaction. Right now the opportunity for players to come in immediately is there. I want to get to a situation where this program is one that players want to come in and bide their time. But right now we're not at that level. I want to get to that level. But the opportunity to come in right now is tremendous."

|+| Q: What do you want fans to see from a Doc Sadler-led team?
A: "We're going to get it up and down. I'm real simple. I'm going to ask so much of these guys on the defensive end of the floor, more than they might expect. But we're going to go as fast as we can to the other end and if we get a good shot, then we're going to shoot it quick. If we don't, we're going to wait until we do get a good shot. So it's going to be baseline to baseline, 94 feet of action."

|+| Q: How important is it to have such a nationally recognized support system behind the name Nebraska when you're recruiting?
A: "I've said this before that the University of Nebraska has won 23 national championships. The biggest reason for that is all the support staff that is here. There are more than 220 employees that work in the athletic department and only about 80 are coaches. So there's more than 140 other people who are here just to help them be successful at things other than the sport they are here to play. I would say the biggest reason that Nebraska has enjoyed that success in all programs is the support staff."

|+| Q: What are your thoughts on Nebraska being a "football" school?
A: "I think the greatest thing about this athletic program is that because of the interest in the football program, it gives all the programs – including basketball – the best of everything. If we didn't have that interest in football, the basketball team, and all other teams, wouldn't have the best support staff in the country. But because of that interest, everything that a young person needs to be successful is here and available. And that's because of the money generated by football."

|+| Q: Can you talk about the free-substitution rule you use?
A: "I really believe in putting a high priority on peer pressure. If a teammate on the bench doesn't feel like one of his teammates is putting forth the effort that they need to put forth and (the teammate on the bench) will put more effort into it, then I want them to get off the bench, go in and do that. Obviously, I hope that we have a team at the level that I want it to be at where we're playing hard all the time and there won't be a loose ball that we don't get on the floor for. But if that's not the case, then I want the rest of their teammates to show them the effort they need to play with."

1992 to 1998 (assistant)

One of the nation's top young assistant coaches, Tony Benford returns for his second season on the bench in Lincoln in 2007-08. He is a veteran Division I assistant coach with strong coaching and recruiting ties throughout the Big 12 and Pac-10 geographic regions as well as in his native state of New Mexico.

Benford spent eight seasons in the Pac-10 Conference at Arizona State before joining Coach Doc Sadler's first staff at Nebraska for the 2006-07 season. Benford also spent a brief stint in El Paso, Texas, on Sadler's UTEP staff in the summer of 2006 before he followed Sadler to Lincoln.

During his first campaign at Nebraska, Benford helped the Huskers to 17 wins while just missing out on an upper-division finish in the conference standings. Benford spent significant time working with Husker center Aleks Maric, the leading returning scorer and rebounder in the Big 12 in 2007-08 after posting 18.5 points and 8.7 rebounds per game as a junior.

Off the court, Benford helped the Huskers make significant strides on the recruiting trail. Nebraska's eight-man recruiting class for 2007 was ranked among the top 25 in the nation by at least three major recruiting analysts, including ESPN.com's Bob Gibbons (21st), CSTV.com's Van Coleman (12th) and HoopScoopOnline.com's Clark Francis (5th).

Following the 2006-07 season, Benford earned well-deserved recognition as he was ranked No. 31 on a list of the top assistant coaches in the nation by Basketball Times magazine and Hoop Scoop. The list compiled the 100 top assistant coaches among the 331 basketball schools at the Division I level.

In his previous stint, Benford served on the Arizona State bench as an assistant coach for his first six years in Tempe. He was then named associate head coach for his last two seasons with the Sun Devils.

During his time at Arizona State (1999 to 2006), Benford recruited and coached Pac-10 Players of the Year Ike Diogu (2005) and Eddie House (2000), and also brought in all-freshman team performer Jeff Pendergraph in 2006. Benford helped the Sun Devils to four postseason appearances during his tenure, including a spot in the second round of the 2003 NCAA Tournament.

Before joining the ASU staff, Benford spent six seasons as an assistant coach at New Mexico (1993 to 1998), helping the Lobos to five NCAA Tournament bids while winning 73.2 percent of its games (139-51 record). New Mexico picked up a pair of Western Athletic Conference tournament titles (1993 and 1996) and a regular-season championship (1994) with Benford on the sideline. During his stint with the Lobos, Benford coached the top four scorers in program history, including all-time leading scorer Kenny Thomas, who Benford recruited to New Mexico.

Benford started his career coaching youth teams, including four years at All Saints School in Lubbock, Texas, where he served as head coach of the junior high squad.

Sadler and Benford have a long-standing friendship that dates back to their time together at Texas Tech. Sadler served three years as an assistant coach for the Red Raiders, recruiting several players that helped TTU to a conference title and NCAA Tournament appearance in 1993. Benford returned to the Lubbock, Texas, school to complete his degree in 1992.

Benford finished his playing career at Tech in 1986 and during his playing days, he helped Texas Tech to two Southwest Conference Tournament titles (1985, 1986) and the SWC regular-season championship in 1985. He was an all-conference pick as a senior and was the league tournament most valuable player.

A native of Hobbs, N.M., Benford was a 1986 fourth-round NBA Draft selection by the Boston Celtics. He played professionally in Holland during the 1986-87 season.

As a prep all-star, Benford was a Converse All-American and the New Mexico Player of the Year after pouring in 27.5 points per game as a senior. He led Hobbs to the state title in his final season, earning MVP honors of the state championship tournament after posting 29 points in the title game.

Benford and his wife, Deborah, have two daughters, Audriana (18) and Milena (10), and one son, Tony Jr. (15). Benford also has a son, Jeremy (25). Audriana is in her first year as a student at UNL in 2007-08.

Philip Mathews

Philip Mathews

Assistant Coach
Second Year

A former head coach for more than 20 years at the Division I and junior college levels, Philip Mathews returns to Lincoln for his second season on the Husker bench working side-by-side with Coach Doc Sadler in 2007-08.

Mathews returned to the Division I level in 2006-07 as an assistant coach on Sadler's first staff at Nebraska. It was Mathews' first time at the NCAA's highest level since serving a head coach at San Francisco for nine years.

In his first season with the Huskers, Mathews helped push Nebraska to 17 wins including just missing out on an upper-division finish in the Big 12 Conference. Mathews' veteran knowledge benefited the Huskers as a whole, but his coaching specifically influenced the play of the guards, including record-setting point guard Charles Richardson Jr. On the season, Richardson ranked second in the Big 12 and 14th nationally in assists per game (5.77) and his 179 assists ranked third on the NU single-season list.

Mathews' contacts around the nation helped the Huskers make significant strides on the recruiting trail. Nebraska's eight-man recruiting class for 2007 was ranked among the top 25 in the nation by at least three major recruiting analysts, including ESPN.com's Bob Gibbons (21st), CSTV.com's Van Coleman (12th) and HoopScoopOnline.com's Clark Francis (5th).

In his last stint at the Division I level, Mathews guided the San Francisco Dons program from 1995-96 to 2003-04. His team won at least 16 games in each of his first three seasons and among the early highlights was a 19-11 mark in 1997-98 that led to San Francisco's first NCAA Tournament appearance in 16 years.

Two years later, Mathews again led USF to another 19-win season. Two of his last three squads posted winning overall records and all three finished in the top four in the West Coast Conference standings. He finished his career with a 139-123 record in nine seasons at San Francisco.

Like Sadler, Mathews honed his coaching skills in the junior college ranks. Mathews compiled a combined 349-73 record in 12 years as head coach at the junior college level and his squads won a conference title 11 times during his tenure.

Mathews' first stint as head coach at the junior college level came at Ventura College, where he spent 10 seasons (1986-95) compiling a 298-56 record. His teams won 10 straight Western States Conference titles. Before his arrival, Ventura had not won a league championship in 17 seasons.

All but one of his teams earned at least 20 victories and six times – including each of his last five years in charge – his teams won at least 30 contests. During the 1994-95 campaign, Ventura went 37-1 and ranked second nationally while winning the second California state junior college title under Mathews. Eleven players recruited to Ventura for that season earned Division I scholarships.

Following his stint at San Francisco, Mathews spent the next two seasons as the head coach at San Bernardino Valley College, where he helped the Wolverines to an impressive 51-17 record. In his first season in 2004-05, San Bernardino went 27-5 and won the conference title with a 13-1 record. Mathew's first San Bernardino Valley team saw every player on the roster move on to a four-year school with a scholarship.

Mathews entered the coaching ranks as an assistant at UC Irvine for the 1973 season. He spent the next year at the high school level before returning to Irvine for four years (1975-78). Mathews then returned as head coach at Santa Ana Valley High School, where he won two league titles in three years.

Following the 1980-81 campaign, Mathews returned to the college level where he was an assistant for four years at Cal State Fullerton (1982-85) before taking over the reins at Ventura College.

A two-year basketball letterwinner at UC Irvine, Mathews earned his bachelors degree in comparative cultures in 1972 and added a masters degree in education in 1975. Mathews is married to the former Margie Holland. He has four children, Sabrina (37), Akilah (30), Jordan (13) and Jonah (9).

Anwar made a positive impression in his first season in Lincoln, especially while working with the guards who helped Nebraska post the second-highest 3-point total in school history with 244 treys in 2006-07. Three Huskers finished the year ranked on the school's single-season 3-point percentage chart.

Playing a significant role in the Huskers' recruiting efforts, Anwar helped Nebraska reel in arguably its top-rated class in the Big 12 era. Nebraska's eight-man recruiting class for 2007 was ranked among the top 25 in the nation by at least three major scouting services, including ESPN.com's Bob Gibbons (21st), CSTV.com's Van Coleman (12th) and HoopScoopOnline.com's Clark Francis (5th).

Anwar rejoined Sadler's staff after serving two seasons under him at Texas-El Paso. During that time, Anwar was the Miners' director of operations where he was responsible for the program's budget, scheduling and practice management. He also oversaw the administrative staff and assisted with special projects, camps and on-campus recruiting.

Before joining the UTEP program, Anwar served as an assistant coach at Arkansas-Fort Smith for four seasons, including the final three under Sadler. Anwar had on-court and practice responsibilities and also served as the recruiting coordinator.

Arkansas-Fort Smith earned a 101-29 record with Anwar on the bench, including a pair of top-seven national finishes in 2001 (fifth) and 2002 (seventh). The team won the Bi-State Conference East league title each of his three seasons under Sadler and produced numerous all-conference players on the court and in the classroom.

Anwar has helped several programs earn a successful record of academic success, including helping more than 20 players move on to four-year schools from Arkansas-Fort Smith.

Earlier in his career, Anwar helped more than 40 high school and prep players earn a spot on a Division I or II roster while serving as a coach at Lutheran Christian Academy (Pa.) two seasons and a year at Notre Dame Prep (Mass.).

A native of Philadelphia, Anwar earned a bachelor's degree in special education and sociology from Fitchburg State in 1998 and added a master's degree in sports management/sports leadership from Virginia Commonwealth in 2004.

He was the first coach in league history to win a championship in his initial season as a head coach, and also the youngest coach in league history to win the championship. He led his team to 13 road wins to rank second nationally across all divisions of four-year colleges. Croft's team led the conference in scoring defense as he coached four all-conference players and seven academic all-conference players.

Croft broke into the coaching profession as an undergraduate student assistant at East Central (Miss.) CC in 1991-93. In a strong move aimed to bring a new leadership style to the athletic department, University of Nebraska Chancellor Harvey Perlman drew rave reviews from the Husker faithful across the country when he selected Tom Osborne to serve as Interim Athletic Director. Osborne became the 13th person to serve in the top position in the department when he replaced Steve Pederson on Oct. 16, 2007.

Osborne agreed to take on the responsibility as interim athletic director on an open-ended basis. Perlman said he would seek a permanent replacement for the position at some point in the future, but that Osborne would be remain in the post until that time.

"I am very pleased that Tom Osborne has agreed to help bring some leadership and direction to our athletic program," Perlman said. "Tom is committed to making the entire program successful. He brings the right experience, and an understanding of Nebraska and our aspirations."

A Hall of Fame football coach, Osborne has more than the backing of Cornhusker fans as he enters a new phase in his career – he also has the credentials to lead the Nebraska Athletic Department to new heights.

Since retiring from football in 1997, Osborne has found several ways to stay active in his home state. His most visible post-coaching foray came in the political arena, as he served three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives from Nebraska's 3rd congressional district from 2000 to 2006. He also made a gubernatorial bid in 2006 before turning to academia.

A native of Hastings, Neb., Osborne is serving as a senior lecturer at Nebraska in the College of Business Administration, teaching leadership and business ethics, in the fall of 2007. He will complete the semester while working in the athletic department. Osborne has also worked as a consultant for local college athletic departments over the past two years.

"I've spent the majority of my life working with the athletic department at the university and I want to do what I can at this point to continue in the pursuit of excellence that has been previously established," Osborne said.

Widely known for his leadership, integrity, honor and compassion, Osborne has poured time and effort into building a unique mentoring program within the state. The Team Mates program, founded by Tom and his wife, Nancy, in 1991, provides support and encouragement to school-aged youth with the goal of seeing children graduate from high school and pursue a post-secondary education.

Osborne still actively provides leadership in the college football ranks despite being away from the sidelines for a decade. He is currently a voter on the coaches poll for the Master Coaches Poll.

While he may hold a key position that molds the future of Nebraska Athletics, many will always remember Osborne for his legendary service to the program as a football coach.

Osborne was named Nebraska's 25th head coach following the 1972 season and worked the sidelines for 25 years, the longest tenure in school history. Under Osborne's direction, the program achieved remarkable success, exceeding any in its rich history. The Cornhuskers mounted a 255-49-3 record under Osborne, good for a winning percentage of .836. The 255 victories are the sixth-most all-time among major college football coaches while the winning percentage ranks fifth all-time.

His achievements were so highly regarded that the National Football Foundation waived its three-year waiting period so that he could be inducted into its Hall of Fame in December of 1998. He is one of only four coaches in history (along with Eddie Robinson of Grambling) to have the mandatory three-year waiting period waved.

Osborne's coaching career came to a poetic end in the 1998 Orange Bowl. In his final game, the Huskers defeated No. 3 Tennessee, 42-17, giving him a share of a third national title in his final four seasons. The victory left Osborne as the first coach in college football history to retire as a reigning national champion, along with the nation's best active winning percentage (.836, 255-49-3).

Osborne guided the Huskers to back-to-back titles in 1994 and 1995, then capped his career by sharing the 1997 title with Michigan. Nebraska's back-to-back national titles in 1994-95 made Osborne the first coach to accomplish that feat since Bear Bryant led Alabama to titles in 1978-79. Under Osborne, NU became just the second school all time and the first since Oklahoma in 1955-56 to post back-to-back perfect national championship seasons. In fact, Osborne's last five Nebraska teams put together the best five-year run in collegiate football history with an amazing 60-3 record, including five consecutive 11-win seasons.

Osborne-coached Nebraska teams captured 13 conference crowns, including six of his last seven seasons on the sideline. All 25 of his Husker teams won at least nine games and went to a bowl, while 15 won 10-or-more games.

In the classroom, Osborne's teams were just as successful as they were on the field. Under Osborne's guidance, the Husker football program totaled 65 CoSIDA Academic All-America awards in 25 years, averaging more than two selections per season. To put Osborne's dedication to developing complete student-athletes in perspective, he accumulated more football Academic All-Americans in his 25 years as coach than any other football program in the nation has produced in its history, as Notre Dame has produced the second-most football Academic All-Americans all-time, totaling 50 selections dating back to 1952.

Prior to becoming head coach, Osborne spent five seasons as assistant coach to Bob Devaney, helping the Huskers win back-to-back national championship in 1970 and 1971. Osborne succeeded Devaney, who also served as Nebraska's Athletic Director from 1967 to 1993, in 1973.

Osborne and his wife, Nancy, have three adult children, Mike, Ann and Suzanne and four grandchildren.

Marc Boehm

Executive Associate A.D.

A member of the Nebraska athletics senior administration since May 2003, Marc Boehm (pronounced BAME) serves as Executive Associate Athletic Director and is the top assistant to the athletic director. Boehm fulfills the director's responsibilities in his absence and serves as chief operating officer.

Boehm oversees the efforts of several areas within athletics, including external operations, facilities, events and the strength and conditioning department. Boehm also oversees the Nebraska men's and women's basketball programs, as well as the Husker soccer program.

As the primary administrator for the NU basketball program, Boehm played an integral role in the hiring process when Doc Sadler was selected to be the Huskers' new coach on Aug. 8, 2006. Sadler had the Huskers on the brink of the postseason in the final weeks of his first campaign in Lincoln and then signed a recruiting class ranked among the top 15 in the nation by several services.

Previously, Boehm provided guidance to HuskerVision and Nebraska's Internet presence, Huskers.com, while assisting the athletic director on special projects, including television and radio contracts. Boehm has worked tirelessly with Fox Sports Net and the Big 12 Conference to provide the men's basketball team with an extensive television package each of the past three seasons.

Under Boehm's guidance, the men's and women's teams have combined for six postseason appearances in the past four years. The women's team made its first NCAA Tournament appearance under Coach Connie Yori and seventh in school history in 2007. The men have seen recent success as well, reaching postseason play twice during Boehm's tenure.

Boehm's efforts to enhance NU's gameday atmosphere were not restricted to the basketball programs. He was instrumental in conceptualizing and developing the Husker Nation Pavilion, which quickly became the premier pregame event around home football games.

Boehm also took the lead role in obtaining First National Bank and Ameritas as premier sponsors for the Nebraska Athletic Department for a combined deal worth more than $7 million over a three-year period. First National Bank and Ameritas joined ALLTEL, Pepsi and adidas as premier corporate sponsors for Husker athletics.

Boehm held the same position at Pittsburgh from 1997 to 2003. Boehm assisted in the rise of the Panthers' basketball program with the men's team posting back-to-back Sweet 16 appearances in the NCAA Tournament. During construction of the Panthers' new athletic facilities, Boehm played a central role in Pitt's athletic teams moving to the UPMC Sports Performance Complex, Heinz Field and the Petersen Events Center.

Boehm served as interim athletic director at Pittsburgh for nearly five months before coming to Nebraska. During that time, he hired new men's (Jamie Dixon) and women's basketball (Agnus Berenato) and soccer (Sue-Moy Chin) head coaches for the Panther program. Under Dixon's direction, the Panthers have advanced to six straight NCAA Tournaments, while Berenato has rejuvenated the women's program with its first-ever NCAA Tournament appearance in 2007.

Boehm also spent five years as associate executive director of the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl. He directed and managed a 125-member fund-raising committee of Arizona business people responsible for generating more than $4.5 million in cash and in-kind partnerships. Previously he spent four years as associate executive director and public relations director of the Sun Bowl from 1987 to 1991.

Born in Grand Island, Boehm earned his bachelor's degree in communications from Kansas State in 1984 and added a master's degree in sports management from St. Thomas (Fla.) University in 1985. Boehm and his wife, the former Janelle Broderick of Minot, N.D., have three boys, Broderick, Christian and Lukas John.

Husker-Cowboy Notes

- The 2007 regular-season game was postponed from Jan. 13 to March 5 because of a winter storm in Oklahoma. It was the first weather-related postponement of a Big 12 game since the league formed in 1996. NU won the game, 85-73 and then lost three days later to OSU in the Big 12 Championship, 54-39.
- Nebraska and OSU played the seventh overtime game in series history in 2004, with the No. 7-ranked Cowboys pulling out a three-point win at home, 87-83.
- Nebraska owns the series lead despite winning just 10 of the past 31 meetings.
- OSU has won eight of the last 15 meetings in Lincoln after going winless in its first 13 games at the Devaney Center.
- Nebraska ended undefeated OSU seasons twice in the 1990s. In 1996-97, OSU was 11-0 before a 67-62 Husker win in Stillwater. In 1991-92, OSU entered the game in Lincoln with a 20-0 record and ranked second in the nation, but Nebraska rolled to an 85-69 win.
- The Huskers dropped a 52-32 decision to the Cowboys in a 1949 NCAA District Playoff game at Kansas City, Mo. That game was NU's first-ever postseason tournament game.

2006-07 Season Notes

Dealing with the unexpected became a way of life for the Nebraska men's basketball team in 2006-07 as it faced many unique situations that possibly no other team in the country had to encounter. Through it all, Nebraska managed to put up a solid 17-win campaign and was scrapping for its postseason life until the final week of the regular season.

The biggest surprise of the year may have come in the offseason. In the first week of August, Coach Barry Collier resigned his position to become the Athletic Director at his alma mater, Butler University. With Collier's departure, the Huskers were in position to make a bold move to hire an up-and-coming coach late in the summer. Athletic Director Steve Pederson wasted no time as just one week after Collier left for his Indiana roots, Pederson introduced Doc Sadler as the 26th head coach in Nebraska basketball history on Aug. 8, 2006.

The arrival of Sadler marked a new era in Husker hoops. The Greenwood, Ark., native brought a different style of play, looking to push the ball up the court as quickly as possible and defend the length of the floor back to the opposing basket. While only one late addition – freshman Sek Henry – was recruited by Sadler, it was the coach's easy-going attitude off the court and the no-nonsense approach on it that quickly converted his new players into believers.

Along the way, the Huskers fought through numerous injuries, so many that at one point only six scholarship players were able to practice at one time. In fact, Charles Richardson Jr., the diminutive point guard and team iron man, was the only Husker that did not miss either a whole practice or a game with an injury or illness during the season.

Even when it wasn't fighting the injury bug, Nebraska was limited in what it could do on the court, especially in the paint. NU played the full conference schedule with a maximum of 10 scholarship players, including only one over 6-4 who averaged more than seven minutes per game.

That single player over 6-4 was the one who could make the biggest difference, center Aleks Maric. Maric had a breakout junior season, averaging 18.5 points and 8.7 rebounds to lead Nebraska to a 17-14 overall mark. Along the way, the Huskers tied for seventh place in the league standings with a 6-10 record, easily outdistancing the preseason predictions that had Nebraska among the bottom two or three teams in the league.

Doc Sadler brought energy and enthusiasm to the program when he was named head coach on Aug. 8, 2006. In his first season, Sadler led the Huskers to a 17-14 record and a tie for seventh place in the Big 12 standings.

|+| Huskers Open Sadler Era on Strong Note

Despite the mid-August starting date, Coach Doc Sadler got his program up and running in quick fashion. The Huskers took note as they did the same on the court by running out to a 5-0 record to begin the year.

After splitting their exhibition schedule, the Huskers opened the regular season with Division II Nebraska-Omaha. Aleks Maric poured in 29 points in 29 minutes, just two weeks after having an emergency appendectomy. The Huskers put an exclamation point on the opening series of home games with a 73-61 victory over No. 20 Creighton, giving Sadler his first victory over a ranked team in five tries and handing him his 50th career Division I win.

With five victories to open his career, Sadler became the first first-year Husker mentor in more than eight decades to start 5-0. The last NU coach to record the feat was Paul Schlisser, whose 1919-20 team opened the year 6-0. Schlisser went on to earn a 22-2 record, the most wins by a first-year Husker coach. Sadler ranks third on the list behind Schlisser and Nebraska's all-time winningest coach, Danny Nee, who had 21 wins in 1986-87. With 17 victories on the year, Sadler improved his career Division I total to 65 wins in three seasons.

|+| Maric Gains Several Postseason Honors

Junior center Aleks Maric earned several postseason honors in 2006-07. His first honor came when he was named to the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) second team for District 12. He was then named to the All-Big 12 second team by both the league's coaches and the Associated Press and was selected to the Big 12's All-Improved Team, picked by a panel of media who regularly cover the league. Maric was the first Husker since Cookie Belcher in 2001 to be named to the Big 12 first or second team.

One of the top post players in the nation, Maric ranked in the top four in the Big 12 standings in both scoring and rebounding average. The Sydney, Australia, native also led the league in field-goal percentage by hitting 56.5 percent from the floor to pace the Huskers and was third in the league with 11 double-doubles. It was his second straight season with at least 10 double-doubles, including a personal-high streak of six straight over the final six games of the season.

Maric, who earned accolades as the Big 12 Player of the Week in November, was an honorable-mention All-Big 12 (coaches and AP) selection as a sophomore and was named to the 2006 All-Improved Team by the media.

|+| Dominating the Paint

Aleks Maric was the focal point of the Husker offense all year long, but at no point was he more effective than the final five games of the campaign when he averaged 25.0 points and 13.6 rebounds per contest. During that stretch, Maric topped 20 points four times, including each of the final four regular-season contests. In fact, he scored more than 30 points in consecutive games against Missouri (31) and Iowa State (36), the first time in Nebraska history a player had recorded back-to-back 30-point games.

Those were not Maric's only games topping the 30-point mark in 2006-07. Two weeks earlier, the big man had the most dominant game of his career – and one of the most dominant games in Nebraska history – when he scored an NU home-court record 41 points against Kansas State. Maric hit 13-of-19 attempts from the field against the Wildcats and set the Big 12 Conference record with 25 free throw attempts. He ended the game one point shy of the school record but still produced just the fourth 40-point game in Nebraska history and only the eighth since the formation of the Big 12 Conference.

Overall, Maric scored double figures in all but three contests in 2006-07, including 12 games of at least 20 points. His 556 points ranked eighth in school single-season history and were one more than the total from his first two years combined.

|+| Little Man Plays Big Game

Point guard Charles Richardson Jr. was more than just a fan favorite during his senior season as he became a fixture on the court and a steadying force for the inexperienced Huskers. Richardson was one of only two players on the squad – along with Aleks Maric – who entered the season with more than one year of Division I experience.

Wielding a deft passing touch, Richardson ranked among the league and national leaders with 5.77 assists per game. His average ranked third on the NU single-season list, as did his 179 assists, while his career total of 399 left him in sixth place in Nebraska history. Richardson had a career day in the Huskers' first road trip of the season when he posted 15 assists, the third-highest total by a Big 12 player since the formation of the league in 1996.

Richardson was also an iron man on the court. The only player who did not miss a whole game or practice with an injury or illness, Richardson logged 1,125 minutes, the sixth-highest total in school history.

Richardson's 36.3 minutes per game ranked third in the league. Against Missouri on Feb. 24, he played all 45 minutes of an overtime game, a career high. It was the most minutes by a Husker in one game since Larry Florence played 45 minutes in the season-opening overtime victory against Eastern Illinois in 1999.

Richardson played every minute of eight games on the year. In fact, Richardson played 427 of the final 445 minutes over the last 11 games of the season. The last Husker to record more than eight games of at least 40 minutes played in a season was Dave Hoppen when he set the single-season record with 1,155 minutes played as a junior in 1985. Hoppen played all 40 minutes in 17 contests that season. Teammates Brian Carr and Curtis Moore also got into the act that year with 14 and six games, respectively, of at least 40 minutes played.

|+| Anderson Makes Solid Debut

With only two players with more than one year of Division I experience returning from a 19-win team, the Huskers knew heading into the 2006-07 campaign that they would rely heavily on newcomers and youngsters to pick up much of the offensive slack alongside all-conference center Aleks Maric. The only question was who would be the one to step up.

That question was answered early and often by freshman Ryan Anderson became a freshman phenom for the Huskers. The Seattle native finished the year second on the team with 10.1 points and 4.6 rebounds per game, while ranking among the top 10 freshmen all-time at Nebraska in points scored, field goals, rebounds, 3-pointers and steals. Though he battled an injury early in the conference season that slowed his production for a couple of weeks,

Marcus Perry was lethal from long range as he ranked among the top 10 all-time at Nebraska for 3-pointers made (67) and 3-point percentage (41.1) as a senior.

Charles Richardson Jr. finished the season with the third-highest assist total in Nebraska history by posting 179 assists in 2006-07. His 5.77 assists-per-game average ranked 14th nationally and he was only the second Husker ever to average more than 5.0 assists per game.

Anderson put up some of his best games against the top competition as he averaged a team-best 15.8 points over four games against ranked teams while hitting 55.0 percent from the floor.

Anderson was second on the squad with 48 3-pointers, the second-highest total by a freshman in Nebraska history. He tied the NU single-game 3-point percentage record with a 5-for-5 effort from beyond the arc at Rutgers and equalled the Husker freshman record with seven 3-pointers against Hawaii. Anderson was dominant against the Rainbows as he finished the game with 29 points, six rebounds, five assists (one turnover) and a steal in a career-high 38 minutes. The 29 points were the second-highest freshman single-game scoring total in NU history, trailing only Tyronn Lue's 30 points in a game in 1996.

|+| Comeback Kids

Despite a history of struggling to come back from large deficits in the past, the 2006-07 Nebraska squad under Doc Sadler increasingly showed toughness and determination to come back after being down by significant deficits.

Four times during the year the Huskers trailed by at least nine points and still managed to find the mental toughness to rally for a victory, including both wins over Missouri. Nebraska posted its largest road comeback in the Big 12 era when it won at the buzzer against Texas Tech in a game where the Huskers trailed by 13 points at halftime.

Nebraska's Largest Comebacks in 2006-07

Opponent	Trailed By	Final Score
at Texas Tech	13 points	NU 61-59
vs. Houston	10 points	NU 70-57
Missouri	10 points	NU 82-77 (ot)
at Missouri	9 points	NU 66-61

Possibly the most impressive comeback happened in Hawaii at the Rainbow Classic when Nebraska trailed Houston by 10 points but stormed back for a 13-point victory. NU turned up the defensive intensity and held the Cougars with one field goal over the first 16 minutes of the second half, including a stretch of nearly 14 minutes without a single basket.

|+| Perry Leads Long-Range Attack

Senior guard Marcus Perry was injured for most of the season and hardly practiced over the final six weeks of the regular season, but with his impressive performances on the floor it was hard to keep him out of the lineup. Battling severe foot problems, Perry still managed to record a team-best 67 3-pointers, a mark that ranked sixth in NU history. His effort helped the Huskers to the second-highest 3-point total (244) in the team record book.

Perry was one of the most accurate long-range bombers in the country as he hit 41.1 percent from beyond the arc, a mark that ranked 10th on the Nebraska single-season chart. He was one of three Huskers to move onto the top-10 list in 2006-07, as he was joined by freshmen Jay-R Strowbridge (3rd, .46.3) and Ryan Anderson (7th, 43.2). Perry scored a career-high 25 points twice during the season and hoisted seven treys on two occasions, just missing the school record by one 3-pointer.

Graduated Seniors

Charles Richardson Jr.

5-9, 165, G, 4 VL
Maywood, Ill.
(Proviso East)

Charles Richardson Jr. completed his four-year career at Nebraska ranked third all-time in assists with 399. He posted 179 assists during his senior campaign, only the second player in NU history to record more than 165 assists in a season.

Richardson guided Coach Doc Sadler's first Nebraska team with precision, often setting up center Aleks Maric, who ranked fourth in the league in scoring and first in field-goal percentage because of Richardson's deft passes. Richardson handed out a career-high 15 assists at Rutgers. The total was the third-highest single-game mark in the Big 12 era and was just three off the Nebraska school record. Richardson was an iron man as a senior when he played 1,125 minutes, the sixth-highest total in school history.

Marcus Perry

6-2, 185, G, 2 VL
Anniston, Ala.
(Anniston/
Southern Union State CC)

Marcus Perry ended his career on a high note as he was third on the team with 9.5 points per game despite playing much of the season with a serious foot injury. He was NU's most dangerous long-range threat with 67 3-pointers, a mark that ranked sixth in the Nebraska single-season record book.

Perry nearly entered his name into the single-game record book as well, as he posted seven 3-pointers on two separate occasions, just one off the NU mark. Perry posted a career-high 25 points on Senior Day against Oklahoma State, hitting 8-of-12 shots from the floor, including 7-of-10 from beyond the arc. Perry was named the MetroPCS Classic game MVP after pouring in 25 points on 8-of-13 shooting (seven 3-pointers) against Miami earlier in the year.

Bob Devaney Sports Center

Named after longtime athletic director and football coach Bob Devaney, the Bob Devaney Sports Center is home to the Nebraska men's and women's basketball, gymnastics, women's swimming and diving, track and field and wrestling teams.

The Bob Devaney Sports Center received extensive renovations in 2000, featuring two HuskerVision replay screens, hustle stat boards and digital message boards. The new sound system, lighting system and ring of honor add to the atmosphere in the arena, as does the addition of chairback seating on the arena floor.

Also in 2000, fans at the Devaney Center saw the addition of a Husker Hall of Fame and a Husker Walk of Fame. The displays in the concourse areas highlight more than 100 years of Nebraska athletics and more than 25 years of women's athletics at the university. In 2004, courtside seating was put in place, giving the Devaney Center an added home-court advantage with fans closer to the action.

With a capacity of 13,595, the Devaney Center has hosted numerous NCAA postseason events since opening its doors in 1976. The Husker men's basketball team has enjoyed playing on the Devaney Center court, as NU has an all-time record of 368-118 (.757) at home. Nebraska has posted less than eight home victories just once (1976-77) in the 30-year history of the Devaney Center.

The Husker men's basketball team has seen recent renovations to the team's locker room and ready room, as well as in the coaches' offices. Renovations in the locker room in 2007 included new lockers for players and an upgrade in the player lounge area to seat more players at one time comfortably. A year earlier in the fall of 2006, the coaches offices and reception area also underwent a significant renovation. In 2004, the court was refinished, and was redesigned for just the third time ever, giving it a more classic look.

The Devaney Center boasts a top-notch weight room in the facility, making strength training a useful tool before or after practice. The weight room is part of three weight rooms available to NU student-athletes, as the Husker Power program is the model of excellence in strength training for schools around the nation.

The History of NU Basketball

By Mike Babcock

As near as anyone can determine, the University of Nebraska was first represented by a men's basketball team on Feb. 2, 1897, just six years after Dr. James A. Naismith set down the rules of the game at the International YMCA Training School in Springfield, Mass.

A team from the Lincoln YMCA was the opponent, and Nebraska posted an 11-8 victory at Grant Memorial Hall, the home of the Huskers for all but two seasons until the Coliseum opened in 1926. The same teams played in Grant Hall three weeks later with a similar result, as NU won 23-14. Nebraska had to rally in the second game. The Hesperian, a student newspaper, reported: "At the end of the first half the score stood 9 to 6 in favor of the visitors but during the second half our boys took a brace and some excellent work was done."

Such was the modest beginning of a program that has enjoyed its greatest success since 1980 as it has earned a 484-366 record and 17 postseason appearances – including five NCAA Tournaments – while adding a Phillips 66 Big Eight Tournament title in 1994 and the 1996 National Invitation Tournament championship title.

Nebraska doubled its schedule in 1898, losing twice to the Lincoln YMCA and splitting two games with the Omaha YMCA. A 16-12 loss against the Omaha YMCA provided evidence as to why Nebraska finished 1-3 that season. According to The Hesperian account: "The great difficulty of the University team was mere recklessness. Our boys have been playing with a loose interpretation of the rules. The officials were strict and of course the resulting advantage was in favor of Omaha." Then as now, overly aggressive play had its drawbacks.

Nebraska played teams from other universities for the first time in 1899, winning two games against Nebraska Wesleyan and one against Doane en route to the unofficial state championship. The next season, Nebraska played an out-of-state opponent for the first time, defeating the University of Kansas, 48-8, at Lincoln. That game still ranks as the worst loss for a Jayhawk team and was the first for either school against a present-day NCAA Division I school and the first matching present-day Big 12 Conference institutions.

The Kansas team was coached by Dr. Naismith. The Nebraska student yearbook, Sombrero, wrote: "A closely contested game was looked for. The Jayhawkers were, however, completely outclassed, the score being 48-8." Based on the victory against Kansas and four other similarly decisive victories, "the basketball team for this year was undoubtedly superior to any in the west," the Sombrero concluded. It would be several years before such a claim could be made again.

Nebraska hired its first full-time coach in 1911. E.O. "Jumbo" Stiehm, who scored 24 points against Nebraska as a Wisconsin basketball player in 1908, coached both football and basketball. His first Husker basketball team won 14 of 15 games, its only loss coming at Minnesota, 40-15. The student newspaper, The Daily Nebraskan, blamed the loss on Nebraska's inability to adjust to the Gophers' "100-foot floor."

Bus Whitehead was a two-time All-Big Seven selection in 1949 and 1950.

A Daily Nebraskan account of Nebraska's 29-28 season-ending victory against Kansas at Lincoln in 1912 provides evidence that some fans' behavior hasn't changed much over the years.

"The game as a whole was entirely unsatisfactory, being marred by rough tactics of the visitors, incompetent work on the part of the referee and interruptions by the audience, which were in part justifiable."

Nebraska shared the Missouri Valley Conference championship with Kansas in 1912 and 1914 and won the title outright in 1913 under Stiehm's leadership. The 1913-14 team was "so fast it took a movie camera to catch 'em," according to the Cornhusker student yearbook. It was described as a "point-a-minute" team, which wasn't quite accurate. Typically, games lasted 40 minutes (though that wasn't always the case), and Nebraska averaged 30 points per game. Guard Sam Carrier became Nebraska's first All-America basketball player in 1913. He and Carl Underwood led the Huskers to 17 victories in 19 games. Underwood was the Missouri Valley Conference scoring leader with 66 points in 10 conference games.

Chuck Jura earned All-Big Eight honors in 1972 for Head Coach Joe Cipriano.

Nebraska won another conference title outright in 1916, after Sam Waugh replaced Stiehm as the Cornhuskers' coach for one season. Stiehm, who coached the first game of the season before giving way to Waugh, had planned to remain at Nebraska through the basketball season before leaving to become coach and athletic director at Wisconsin. But the Nebraska Athletic Board decided to replace him.

Waugh was succeeded by E.J. "Doc" Stewart, whose three Cornhusker teams had a combined record of 29-23. Nebraska was 22-2 in 1919-20 and 11-3 in 1920-21 under Coach P.J. Schissler. After the 1919-20 season, Schissler challenged the University of Chicago to a game, but to no avail. The Cornhuskers also were invited to a postseason AAU tournament in Atlanta but didn't go.

Schissler's teams played as independents. Nebraska lost its affiliation with the Missouri Valley Conference because of a decision to play a football game against Oklahoma in Omaha in 1919. Conference rules prohibited such games (Oklahoma had not yet joined the Missouri Valley Conference). Nebraska returned to the Missouri Valley Conference in 1921, and Owen Frank replaced Schissler as basketball coach. The remainder of the Roaring 1920s was, for the most part, undistinguished.

Basketball was rough and tumble. There was a center jump after every basket and no requirement to cross mid-court in 10 seconds or less. The ball was a lot different, too, more like a medicine ball, which contributed to some dull games.

The most significant event during the 1920s was the building of the Coliseum, which was dedicated on Feb. 6, 1926. The Cornhuskers dropped a 25-14 decision to Kansas in the first game at their new home, which was built at a cost of $445,000 and seated 8,000 for basketball. Prior to that, Nebraska played most of its home games in Grant Hall, which seated about a fourth as many fans as the Coliseum and was located just to the north of where the Sheldon Art Gallery now stands.

Athletic Director Fred Leuhring arranged for Nebraska to play its home basketball games at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum in 1921, in order to accommodate more spectators. The Cornhuskers played two seasons at the Fairgrounds Coliseum, which had a wider court than Grant Hall.

The first game there was played on Jan. 14, 1921. Nebraska defeated conference opponent Grinnell 31-10 before an audience of 1,500, according to newspaper estimates. After two seasons, the Cornhuskers returned to Grant Hall, which had been remodeled, and continued to play home games there until the NU Coliseum opened.

Nebraska ended the decade with an 11-5 season under Charles T. Black, a former Kansas All-American in 1928-29. In the next 19 seasons, the Huskers had just two winning records, back-to-back campaigns under Coach W.H. Browne in 1935-36 and 1936-37. The 1937 team tied Kansas for the Big Six championship, after finishing second to the Jayhawks in 1936.

Claude Retherford was the leading scorer on NU's 1949 Big Seven Championship team.

The 1930s produced four more Cornhusker All-Americans: center Don Maclay in 1931, guard Steve Hokuf in 1933, guard George Wahlquist in 1936 and guard Robert Parsons in 1937. Maclay was the Big Six scoring leader in 1930, scoring 112 points in 10 league games.

Harry Good was hired as head coach in 1946 and after two losing seasons, turned Nebraska's fortunes around. In 1948-49, Good's Huskers went 16-10, tied Oklahoma for the Big Seven regular-season championship and defeated the Sooners, 57-56, in a conference playoff to qualify for an NCAA playoff game. The NCAA Tournament was structured differently then, and the Cornhuskers needed to win that playoff to advance into the NCAA field. They lost to Oklahoma A&M, the Missouri Valley Conference champion, 52-35, at Kansas City, Mo. Coach Henry P. Iba's Aggies went on to finish second to Kentucky, coached by Adolph Rupp, in the NCAA Tournament.

In 1949-50, Nebraska again won 16 games and shared the Big Seven crown with Kansas and Kansas State. That marks the last time the conference had a three-way tie at the top. "We were King in our day," Claude Retherford once told a newspaper reporter. "They were firing football coaches left and right, but we packed 'em in. Oh, people were interested in football, but basketball was THE game on the Nebraska campus when we played." Retherford earned All-Big Seven recognition in 1949 after leading the conference in scoring with a 12.4 points-per-game average.

The Cornhuskers had another first-team All-Big Seven performer in 1949, Milton "Bus" Whitehead. The 6-10 center from Scottsbluff, Neb., also earned all-conference honors in 1950, when he averaged a then-school-record 15.7 points per game. Whitehead was named to the District V All-America team by Collier's Magazine. Whitehead also was the first Cornhusker selected to play in the East-West All-Star Game in New York City's Madison Square Garden. When he graduated, Whitehead held nine school scoring records.

Nebraska basketball experienced another drought beginning in 1950-51, with 15 consecutive losing seasons. Despite playing for a team that finished last in the Big Seven in 1952, Husker guard Jim Buchanan earned All-America and all-conference honors. And even though the late Jerry Bush, dubbed the "Big Bear of the Coliseum," never produced a winning team in his nine seasons as head coach at Nebraska, his colorful personality and uncanny ability to fashion upsets kept Cornhusker fans entertained.

The most dramatic upset during Bush's tenure as coach came on Feb. 22, 1958, against Kansas. The Jayhawks featured 7-foot center Wilt Chamberlain and were ranked fourth in the nation when they came to Lincoln. Earlier in the season, the Jayhawks had defeated the Huskers, 102-46, at Lawrence, Kan., with Chamberlain matching Nebraska by scoring 46 points. Nebraska scored a 43-41 victory in the rematch, when 5-9 guard Jim Kubacki hit a 15-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining.

But that's only part of the drama. Kubacki, a senior from Toledo, Ohio, spent all but the final 6:53 of the game sitting on the bench in street clothes, forced there by a knee injury and the kind of fate from which legends are built. When the Cornhuskers' captain, Gary Reimers, left the game with leg cramps, Kubacki convinced Bush to let him suit up. Four minutes and seven seconds later, Kubacki went into the game. Two minutes and 44 seconds after that, he hit the winning shot.

Bush also had the distinction of coaching the school's first 1,000-point scorer, guard Herschell Turner, who came from Indianapolis, Ind., where he was rated the second-best high school player in the state as a senior, behind only crosstown-rival Oscar Robertson. Turner earned All-America honors in 1959 and followed with All-Big Eight honors in 1960 and ended his Cornhusker career with 1,056 points.

Following the 1962-63 season, Bush was replaced as head coach by Joe Cipriano, who brought the nickname "Slippery Joe" and up-tempo basketball to the Coliseum. His teams pressed full-court and ran a fast-break offense, which led the Big Eight in scoring average in 1966, 1967 and 1968.

Cipriano's first two teams had a combined record of 17-33. But his third team, in 1965-66, was one of the most successful in school history, finishing 20-5 and second to Kansas in the Big Eight. All-Big Eight guard Grant Simmons, the first Cornhusker to earn academic All-Big Eight honors, was the team's leader.

The 1966-67 team finished 16-9 and made the school's first appearance in the 16-team National Invitation Tournament, played at New York City's Madison Square Garden. Guard Stu Lantz was a two-time All-Big Eight pick and led the Cornhuskers in scoring and rebounding in both 1966-67 and 1967-68.

Guard Marvin Stewart and center Chuck Jura earned All-Big Eight honors for Cipriano in 1971 and 1972, respectively. Guard Jerry Fort, who finished his career with a then-school-record 1,882 points, was the first Nebraska player chosen first-team all-conference three times, from 1974 through 1976. With Fort's leadership, Nebraska began a string of 14 winning seasons.

In the fall of 1976, Cornhusker basketball moved out of the Coliseum and into the state-of-the-art Bob Devaney Sports Center. Located on the State Fairgrounds, the $13 million athletic complex was financed by a special cigarette tax.

Cipriano coached Nebraska to another 20-victory season in 1977-78. The Cornhuskers, led by All-Big Eight guard Brian Banks, finished with a 22-8 record and advanced to the second round of the NIT. Despite failing health – a battle against cancer that he finally lost – Cipriano shared coaching duties with his assistant, Moe Iba, in 1979-80, and took Nebraska to the NIT again. For their efforts, the duo shared United Press International Big Eight Coach-of-the-Year honors.

Cipriano brought Nebraska into the modern era, coaching 17 seasons and 450 games. His record was 253-197, and those 253 victories represent nearly one-fifth of Nebraska's all-time total. Following Cipriano's death, Iba was named head coach, and he continued Cipriano's winning ways. In Iba's six seasons on the bench, Nebraska was 106-71 and advanced to postseason play four times.

Center Andre Smith was the 1981 Big Eight MVP and twice earned All-Big Eight honors. However, it was the late Jack Moore, a 5-10 playmaker from Muncie, Ind., who captured the hearts of Nebraska fans from 1980 through 1982. Moore earned All-Big Eight honors in 1982, when he won the Naismith Award, given annually to the nation's top player under 6-feet tall. The first three-time academic All-Big Eight pick in Nebraska history, Moore scored 1,204 points and hit .901 from the free throw line during his career.

The cornerstone of Iba's teams from 1983 through 1986 was Omaha, Neb., native Dave Hoppen, a three-time All-Big Eight center and the first Nebraska basketball player to have his jersey number (42) retired by the school. In 1982-83, Hoppen's freshman season, the Cornhuskers were 22-10 and won three games in the NIT before losing to DePaul in the semifinals at Madison Square Garden. The Cornhuskers returned to the NIT each of the next two seasons, advancing to the second round both times.

Hoppen's college career, though, was ended by a knee injury he sustained in a game at Colorado on Feb. 1, 1986. He finished as the school's all-time scoring leader with 2,167 points and broke or tied 19 school records during his four-year stay. After Hoppen's injury, Iba's team regrouped and went on to earn the school's first-ever "official" NCAA Tournament berth. Nebraska lost to Western Kentucky in the first round of the Southeast Regional, 67-59. Following the game, Iba announced his resignation.

On March 27, 1986, Danny Nee was officially introduced as Nebraska's 24th basketball coach. During a news conference to announce his hiring, Nee said a "new era" in Cornhusker basketball was beginning.

Nee's 14 teams appeared in postseason play 11 times and topped the 20-victory mark in seven seasons. In his first season, Nebraska was 21-12 and finished third in the NIT.

After a 13-18 record in his second season, the Cornhuskers got back over the .500 mark with a 17-16 record in 1988-89 and advanced to the second round of the NIT.

Nebraska missed the school single-season record for losses by one in 1989-90 (10-18), then won a school-record 26 games, with only eight losses, in 1990-91. The Cornhuskers reached the Big Eight Tournament championship game for the first time and advanced to the NCAA Tournament, losing to Xavier 89-84 in the first round of the regionals at Minneapolis, Minn.

The 1990-91 team included two first-round NBA draft picks, senior Rich King and redshirt freshman Eric Piatkowski. The 7-2 King was the tallest player in Cornhusker history.

Piatkowski, Nebraska's sixth-man in 1990-91, went on to win first-team all-conference honors twice. He ranks second on the Cornhuskers' career-scoring list with 1,934 points, and he is the only Nebraska player to finish with at least 1,900 points, 600 rebounds (669) and 300 assists (322). In 2006, Piatkowski became the third Husker, joining Hoppen and Stu Lantz (No. 22), to have his jersey number (52) retired.

Three more NCAA Tournament appearances followed the record-shattering 1991 season. In 1992-93, the Huskers registered their highest league finish under Nee by tying for second in the Big Eight.

In addition to reaching the NCAA Tournament for a fourth consecutive season and recording back-to-back 20-victory seasons for the first time in school history, Nee's 1993-94 team made history by winning the school's first Phillips 66 Big Eight Tournament title. The Cornhuskers defeated Oklahoma, Missouri and Oklahoma State, in that order, to earn the tournament championship.

Nebraska's NCAA Tournament run ended at four in 1994-95, but the Huskers kept their postseason streak alive with an NIT berth, advancing to the second round. The 1995-96 team struggled down the stretch but was back in the NIT and capped its season with a run to the tournament title.

The Huskers won two games on the road and scored more than 80 points in four of their five postseason games. They finished with a 60-56 victory against St. Joseph's at Madison Square Garden.

"The NIT run was incredible when you look at the teams we beat and how we beat them," Nee said after the remarkable run. "I don't care what anybody says, it was domination."

The 1996 NIT championship team was one of the most talented in school history. Two future NBA players, Erick Strickland and 1998 first-round draft pick Tyronn Lue, were in the backcourt. And two other players on the team scored 1,000 career points, Jaron Boone and freshman Venson Hamilton, who would finish his career in 1999 as the school's all-time leading rebounder and shot-blocker.

Lue's contributions as a freshman to the NIT championship team were only a preview of what was to come. The lightning-quick, 6-0 point guard finished his career as the seventh-leading scorer in school history, and he ranked in the top 10 in 12 other career categories. His leadership carried the 1996-97 Cornhusker team, the first to play in the Big 12, to another NIT appearance.

Behind a late-season run, which included Nebraska's longest conference winning streak in 20 years, Nee's 12th team finished fourth in the Big 12 and returned to the NCAA Tournament. The bid was the Cornhuskers' fifth during the 1990s and extended the school-record postseason run to eight.

The streak reached nine in 1999, as the Cornhuskers just missed an NCAA Tournament bid and advanced to the second round of the NIT. In the process, NU reached the 20-victory mark for a second consecutive season, and Hamilton was named Big 12 Player of the Year.

The optimism that preceded the 1999-2000 season, Nee's last, quickly faded with the loss of guard Cookie Belcher, who was sidelined by a wrist injury and forced to take a medical redshirt. The Cornhuskers were off-balance almost from the beginning of the season and fell far short of expectations.

Even though Nee became the winningest coach in school history in 1999-2000, getting victory No. 254 to pass Joe Cipriano in the Cornhuskers' final home game against Colorado, his final team finished with an 11-19 record. The 19 losses tied for the most in school history.

With then-Director of Athletics Bill Byrne setting his sites on bringing NU basketball back to national prominence, he hired Barry Collier as the Cornhuskers' new coach on April 5, 2000.

In Collier's first season with the Huskers, Nebraska finished with a 14-16 mark as Belcher returned to the lineup and earned second-team All-Big 12 Conference honors while finishing third in NCAA history for career steals with 353.

The following season, Nebraska collected just 13 wins but set a solid foundation for the future. The Huskers set a school record for 3-point field goals and had the second-fewest turnovers in school history, both of which ranked in the national top 10. Cary Cochran led the nation at the free-throw line by hitting at a 92.1-percent clip.

The Huskers hit a bump in the road in 2002-03, as Nebraska went just 11-19 but started to make major gains the following season when Nebraska ran to an 18-13 record and its first postseason bid in five years. Nebraska won its first two games in the 2004 NIT, including an exhilarating 71-70 road victory over in-state foe Creighton in the opening round. After a home-court victory over Niagara, the Huskers' season came to an end three days later in a valiant effort at Hawaii when NU came back from 17 points down at halftime to tie the game before the first media timeout of the second period.

Brian Conklin, a 6-11 forward, led Nebraska's charge against Hawaii and, for that matter, all season long as he was a lethal threat from long range. Like every Collier-led team, the Huskers were strong shooters from outside the arc, where Conklin hit a school- and Big 12-record 55.9 percent (66-of-118) from 3-point range, including a gaudy 66 percent in league-only games.

Nebraska struggled the following season but an influx of young talent helped the Huskers remain at .500 with a 14-14 overall record. Freshman guard Joe McCray led the way as he set an NU freshman scoring record with 15.5 points per game and drained a Big Conference freshman record 80 3-pointers on the year. He was only the second Husker ever to record at least 80 treys in a season and crushed the former Tyronn Lue excited Husker fans for three years before declaring for the NBA Draft following his junior season in 1998, when he was NU's third first-round pick of the 1990s.

Venson Hamilton was the second Husker to be named conference player of the year when he earned the award in 1999.

school freshman record of 44 set by Piatkowski more than a decade before.

Along with McCray, 6-11 center Aleks Maric made an immediate impact as he broke the NU freshman rebounds record and ranked in the rookie top 10 for blocked shots. Maric – the first Australian to ever play basketball for the Huskers – was a force in the paint as he tied the school freshman record for double-doubles.

The Huskers made their second postseason appearance in three years in 2006 before finishing with a 19-14 record. It was the most wins under Collier and the first time his Huskers won a game at the Big 12 Championship. Another talented freshman aided Nebraska's cause as Jamel White led Nebraska to the semifinals of the conference tourney for the first time since winning the Big Eight Tournament title in 1994.

Collier looked to have a solid base in place for 2006-07 before abruptly resigning in early August to take the position of athletic director at his alma mater, Butler University, ending his career at Nebraska with an 89-91 overall record.

The late opening posed little challenge for former Athletic Director Steve Pederson. A week later, on Aug. 8, 2006, Pederson introduced Kenneth 'Doc' Sadler as the 26th head coach in program history.

"Someone asked me why I would come to Nebraska. It's pretty simple. I've got a chance to coach at a place that has had (252) academic All-Americans. I've got a chance to coach at a place that has won (23) national championships," Sadler said at his hiring press conference. "Now you don't win national championships because of great coaches. I truly believe this. Because you've had (252) academic All-Americans, you've got some high-character people. And you've always got an athletic department and a university that cares about kids.

"You do not have that kind of success just because of wanting it. You've got a lot of people working for that to happen. Because you've got everybody working together, you've won (23) national championships. What more could a coach want than that? I can't think of anything else."

In Sadler's first season, the Huskers earned a respectable 17-14 mark, including a 6-10 record in league play. The Huskers ran to a 5-0 start, including a 73-61 win over No. 20-ranked Creighton in Sadler's first regular-season game against a Division I opponent. He was the first Husker first-year mentor to win the first five games of his career in more than eight decades.

Sadler helped center Aleks Maric to second-team all-league honors and Charles Richardson Jr. ranked 14th nationally in assists while guiding his offense. Sadler's trademark defense also helped NU to 12 home wins, including victories over four teams that qualified for postseason play.

Jack Moore Award

Husker seniors Charles Richardson Jr. and Marcus Perry were honored as the 2007 Jack Moore Award winners as the team's Most Outstanding Players.

Perry finished the campaign ranked sixth in the NU single-season record book with 67 3-pointers while ranking sixth in the Big 12 Conference in 3-pointers per game (2.48) and 3-point percentage (41.8). Perry completed his career ranked sixth all-time in the NU record book for 3-point percentage (39.4).

Richardson posted 5.8 assists per game, an average that ranked second in the Big 12 and 14th nationally. His 179 assists were the third-highest total in the NU single-season record book as he became only the second player in Nebraska history to record more than 170 assists in a season. Richardson, who played 36.3 minutes per game and ranked in the top 100 nationally with 1.8 steals per game, also became only the second player in NU history to average at least 5.0 assists per game for a full season.

The award is named for late-Husker guard Jack Moore, a 5-9 playmaker who set 17 school records in a career that ended in 1982. Moore's career culminated with the 1982 Francis Pomeroy-Naismith Award as the nation's best collegiate player under six feet tall. A consensus All-Big Eight performer in 1982, Moore was killed in a plane crash in March of 1984.

1,000-Point Scorers

1. Dave Hoppen – 2,167 Points

6-11, 235, C, 1983-86, Omaha, Neb. (Benson)

Three-time All-Big Eight center Dave Hoppen finished his career as Nebraska's all-time leading scorer with 2,167 points. Hoppen, whose four-year collegiate career was cut short by a knee injury in a game at Colorado, Feb. 1, 1986, broke or tied 19 Nebraska records and five Big Eight marks during his standout career. A native of Omaha, Neb., Hoppen was the first player in Husker basketball history to have his jersey number (42) retired. Originally drafted by the NBA's Atlanta Hawks in the third round of the 1986 draft, he played with both Charlotte and Philadelphia, and a stint in the CBA. Hoppen was inducted into the Nebraska Basketball Hall of Fame in 1996.

6-7, 215, F, 1991-94, Rapid City, S.D. (Stevens)

One of only two players in school history to play on four-straight NCAA Tournament teams, Eric Piatkowski finished his career as the second-leading scorer in school history with 1,934 points. The Most Valuable Player in the 1994 Phillips 66 Big Eight Tournament, Piatkowski had a school and tournament-record 42-point outburst in Nebraska's first-round victory over Oklahoma. A two-time first-team All-Big Eight pick, Piatkowski averaged 21.5 points in his final season as a Husker, and became the first player in school history to score 1,900 points (1,934), grab 600 rebounds (669) and dish out 300 assists (322). A first-round draft pick of the NBA's Indianapolis Pacers, Piatkowski's draft rights were then traded to the Los Angeles Clippers, who he played with for eight seasons before joining the Houston Rockets during the summer of 2003. He was traded to the Chicago Bulls in the summer of 2004 and signed with the Phoenix Suns in 2006. Piatkowski's jersey No. 52 was retired by the Huskers in 2006, the same year he was inducted into the Nebraska Basketball Hall of Fame.

Nebraska Hall of Fame

Eric Piatkowski, a 13-year veteran of the NBA and one of only two former Huskers to play in four straight NCAA Tournaments, was the most recent inductee into the Nebraska Basketball Hall of Fame as he was enshrined at ceremonies on Feb. 18, 2006, at halftime of the Nebraska-Texas Tech game. Piatkowski is the fourth player from the 1990-91 squad that won a school-record 26 games to be inducted into the hall, joining Rich King (inducted in 2001), Clifford Scales (2002) and Beau Reid (2003).

A native of Rapid City, S.D., Piatkowski lettered from 1991 to 1994 while helping the Huskers to four straight NCAA Tournament appearances and an 85-39 career record including three 20-win seasons. He finished his career with 1,934 points to rank second in school history and is one of only two Huskers with at least 200 3-pointers in a career.

NU finished the 1990-91 season with its highest ranking ever at No. 9 by UPI and No. 11 by the Associated Press while gaining a 26-8 record. Piatkowski was the Most Valuable Player of the 1994 Big Eight Tournament as a senior and set the school single-game record in the first round by scoring 42 points in a 105-88 win over Oklahoma.

Following his senior season, Piatkowski was the second player in program history to be taken in the first round of the NBA Draft, going to the Indiana Pacers with the No. 15 selection. After being traded on draft day to the Los Angeles Clippers, Piatkowski has also played with the Houston Rockets, Chicago Bulls and has been with the Phoenix Suns for two years. He has played in more than 750 career games in the NBA while averaging 7.8 points and 2.3 rebounds per contest. He is the Clippers' all-time leader in 3-pointers (738) and 3-point percentage (40.2) and is second in games played with 616.

The Nebraska Men's Basketball Hall of Fame was the brainchild of longtime Husker athletic supporter Jerry Solomon, who first approached the University about the project in the fall of 1988. Solomon, along with Jack Bock, Dale Herman and Dale Jensen, provided financial support for the Hall of Fame.

The Hall is co-sponsored by the Nebraska Athletic Department and the Rebounders Club. Memorabilia on nearly every Husker Hall of Famer is on display at the Walk of Fame on the upper concourse at the Devaney Center.

The first class was inducted in 1989 with 11 members. Since then, 59 players and coaches have been inducted into the Hall of Fame, including 10 classes with at least three members. The largest class since the initial induction was in 1996 when six players and one former coach were inducted into the Hall.

Eighteen people who have played supporting roles in shaping the Nebraska basketball program have also been enshrined by earning the Bud Cuca Special Merit Award. The award was renamed in honor of Cuca in 2003 after he passed away following a battle with cancer. Cuca and Ed Childress were the first-ever recipients of the award in 1989.

In 2003, the first Distinguished Hall of Fame Alumni Award was given, honoring a former player and Hall of Fame member who has been a positive force in the state and local community since his playing days ended.

Media Information/Policies

The 2007-08 Nebraska media guide is designed to assist the media in its coverage of the Husker men's basketball program. Additional information, including releases, photographs and video may be obtained by contacting the Media Relations Office at (402) 472-2263, or in many cases can be found on Huskers.com.

Please take a moment to review the following policies and services, which are intended to assist media members in their coverage of Nebraska basketball this season.

Media Credentials

All requests for press, broadcast, photo and parking credentials for Nebraska basketball home games should be directed to Vicki Cartwright, One Memorial Stadium, P.O. Box 880123, Lincoln, NE, 68588-0123. Requests can be made in writing on company letterhead or sent via e-mail to Assistant Media Relations Director Jerry Trickie (jtrickie@huskers.com) one week before the game.

As a general rule, working space is allocated on the following basis:

1) daily newspaper and wire-service writers covering for next-day publication;
2) radio and television personnel for broadcast origination;
3) sports editors of Nebraska daily newspapers;
4) official school student daily newspaper, one seat only;
5) approved special coverage;
6) press and TV working photographers.

Generally, weekly representatives, Internet news services and non-originating radio representatives cannot be accommodated because of space limitations. Internet writers for sites affiliated with established, nationally recognized media outlets will be considered on a game-by-game basis as space allows. Credentials will not be granted for writers or photographers for Internet sites that are not affiliated with an accredited news organization.

Media Will Call

Media passes that are not mailed may be picked up at the will-call window, located under the south ramp of the Devaney Center by the men's basketball office. The will-call window opens 90 minutes before tipoff. Photo identification is required to pick up credentials or tickets.

Media Parking

Parking for the media is located across the street from the Devaney Center on the north side. The lot is accessible from 14th Street. Additional media parking may also be available on the east side of the Devaney Center on the street, as well as in other overflow lots.

Coach Sadler Interview Time

The best time for local media to reach Coach Doc Sadler for an interview is 30 minutes before practice on the Devaney Center court. All interviews with Coach Sadler must be scheduled through the Media Relations Office.

Out-of-town media are encouraged to participate in the Big 12 weekly teleconference. Coach Sadler will participate in the telephonic press conferences (see schedule at right) each week beginning at 11:30 a.m. (CST). The teleconferences begin Dec. 10 and continue throughout the season. Contact the Big 12 Conference communications staff at (469) 524-1000 for more information on joining the conference call.

Postgame Interviews

Nebraska's locker room is closed to the media at home and on the road. For home games, NU's postgame news conference will be held following a brief cooling off period in the designated postgame interview room off the southeast corner of the Devaney Center court.

The opposing team is housed in the visitor's locker room, located off the hallway at the northwest corner of the playing floor and will be available following the cooling off period. Make requests for opposing players and coaches through the visiting SID.

On the road, Coach Sadler and select players will be available upon request after the cooling off period.

Player Interviews

All media requests for interviews with Nebraska basketball players should be directed to Assistant Media Relations Director Jerry Trickie [office phone: (402) 472-7779, cell phone: (402) 540-0269] at least one day in advance. The best time for in-season interviews is before practice, depending on class schedules.

Players are usually available for telephone interviews before practice, except on game days when no interviews are allowed. Nebraska is tentatively scheduled to practice from 1:30 to 4 p.m. during the season, with practices typically at the Devaney Center. With advance notice, interviews can be arranged for other times during the day at the Devaney Center or in the Media Relations Office during the day if the player's class schedule allows.

Media are welcome to attend practice as well, which is open to the public. Check Huskers.com on the men's basketball page for updated times and sites.

Press Box Location

The press box for Nebraska basketball games is located in the lower portion of section C-12 (upper level) on the south side of the playing floor (opposite the team benches).

Television and radio crews originating an officially sanctioned broadcast of the game (see Broadcast Rights below) will be seated on the floor, with the visiting radio adjacent to the visiting team's bench when there is a TV telecast (east side of the scorer's table) and the home radio and television broadcasting teams positioned at midcourt opposite the team benches.

The camera deck is located at the top of the arena, directly behind the press box. Television crews telecasting live may shoot from either floor level (northeast or southwest baselines) or the camera deck in marked areas, but may not occupy space in the press box.

Media Work Room

The media work room is located on the south side of the lower level, across from the Ticket Office will-call. Media can use the room prior to, during and after the game to write and transmit stories. Phone and Ethernet lines will be available in the media work room. Ethernet lines are also available in the photography area on the southwest concourse level, and wireless Internet service will be available at the Devaney Center again in 2007-08. Registration is required.

Media Services

Notes, flipcards and media guides will be provided before each game. Final statistics, play-by-play sheets and quotes from each locker room will be distributed following the game. Refreshments will be available to the media in a designated area before the game.

Radio/Television Broadcast Space

Requests for live radio and television broadcast space should be made to Assistant Media Relations Director Jerry Trickie at jtrickie@huskers.com. If statisticians are needed, contact Trickie at least three days in advance.

Broadcast Rights

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Host Communications own exclusive radio broadcast rights to all of the University's men's basketball games. Other than the Husker Sports Network and the University of Nebraska student station (KRNU), the only stations or networks allowed to broadcast Nebraska games from the Devaney Center are those that have rights to broadcast games played by the opposing team.

All radio stations and networks broadcasting from the Bob Devaney Sports Center must receive prior permission from the University. Any representative of a radio station or network that has not purchased such rights shall not air live game action or description of any game while it is in progress, nor shall such representatives air tape-recorded or live commentary of Nebraska coaches or players from the premises for one hour before or 20 minutes after a game.

Only stations that have purchased broadcast rights may install telephones on press row, or use telephones on press row for reporting on games. By accepting media credentials, representatives of stations and networks that have not purchased broadcast rights signify their agreement to all stipulations.

Telephones

Nebraska provides six modular telephones and five Ethernet lines in the Bob Devaney Sports Center media work room. All long distance calls must be credit card, collect or billed to a third number. Any media wishing to place a phone in the press box should contact University Telecommunications at (402) 472-2000 at least two weeks before the game.

Broadcast Telephone Lines

The Husker Sports Network installs additional telephone lines for visiting official broadcasts and charges a fee for the use of those lines for non-conference games. Big 12 official stations receive the use of the lines free of charge as part of a cooperative. Those interested in using the lines should contact Mike Elliott of Husker Sports Network at (402) 332-4000.

Official visiting radio stations are welcome to have their own telephone lines installed at the visiting radio position and may do so by contacting University Telecommunications at (402) 472-2000. Visiting teams should contact Assistant Media Relations Director Jerry Trickie before the game to find out where the broadcast position is located.

Pro Scouting Passes

Per Big 12 Conference rules, the University of Nebraska provides press box access to scouts of professional basketball teams based on availability. If no space is available in the press box, scouts may arrange through the Media Relations Office (402-472-2263) to purchase tickets for Nebraska home games.

Radio and Television

Husker Sports Network

The Husker Sports Network came under new ownership in the fall of 2006, as Host Communications acquired the former Pinnacle Sports Network.

A well-known entity throughout college athletic marketing circles, Host Communications Inc. has marketing agreements with seven universities as well as the Southeastern Conference and NCAA Football. The Lexington, Ky.-based company also manages five associations, more than 30 web sites and has a printing and publishing division that produces more than 700 publications annually, including all of the NCAA championship game-day programs.

HOST is a subsidiary of Triple Crown Media, Inc. TCMI owns and operates six daily newspapers with a total circulation of approximately 120,000 and owns and operates GrayLink, a wireless communications company based in Tallahassee, Fla. TCMI is a public company traded on NASDAQ and based in Lexington, Ky.

The Husker Sports Network will continue the strong tradition of broadcasting excellence established by the Pinnacle Sports Network, which had produced and marketed live broadcasts of University of Nebraska football, men's and women's basketball, volleyball, baseball and softball games for the past 10 years. Pinnacle was first awarded the rights on Feb. 9, 1996, and the University renewed the contract on Aug. 9, 2003, for an additional five-year term that runs until July 31, 2011.

Kent Pavelka
Play by Play

All regular-season men's basketball games and any postseason contests will be broadcast by the network. A 30-station basketball network is in place for the 2007-08 season, with KFAB (1110 AM) serving as the Omaha affiliate, KLIN (1400 AM) as the Lincoln affiliate and KRVN (880 AM) serving as a third affiliate in the state.

Kent Pavelka returns behind the microphone to handle his 20th overall season calling Husker hoops. Pavelka previously called Nebraska basketball for two long stints between 1974 and 1996 before returning to the play-by-play chair for the 2006-07 season. A six-time winner of the Nebraska Sportscaster of the Year Award, Pavelka also handled color analyst duties on NU football broadcasts from 1974 to 1983, and was the play-by-play announcer from 1983 to 1996.

Alongside Pavelka for his fifth season as color analyst will be Matt Davison. Davison lettered for the Husker basketball team in 2000 and was a four-year letterman for NU on the gridiron. Former Husker Andy Markowski could serve as color analyst again when Davison moves behind the TV microphone.

The Husker Sports Network will also carry a weekly radio show with Coach Doc Sadler, which can be heard statewide on the network on Monday nights at 7 p.m. during the season. All Nebraska games and coaches shows can also be heard on the Internet at Huskers.com.

Huskers Set for Full Road Schedule on TV

For the first time in school history, Husker fans in the state can see Nebraska's full road schedule on television. Overall a minimum of 18 Husker contests are slated to be televised this winter, the fourth straight season NU has had more than half its games on TV.

The large television package is made up of games on the Huskers' third-tier package through a one-year extension of a previous contract with FSN Midwest along with at least 10 games on the Big 12 television package which will be televised by ESPN, ESPN2, ESPNU and ESPN Plus. At least eight games will be televised as part of the Huskers' third-tier package, and as a result of a new agreement reached between the networks, Nebraska's games on FSN may be aired to ESPN for inclusion on ESPN FullCourt. Games included in this agreement will be dependent on availability of space on the FullCourt channels and will be announced at a later date.

Greg Sharpe (left) returns for a fourth year on the Husker Television Network. Sharpe will be joined again by color analyst and former Husker Matt Davison.

Returning for his fourth season calling the action for Husker/FSN telecasts in 2007-08 will be veteran broadcaster Greg Sharpe. A two-time Kansas Sportscaster of the Year, Sharpe has previously served as the voice of the Kansas State Wildcats from 1996 to 2002 and called the 2001 and 2002 NCAA Tournaments for Westwood One Radio. He is currently the host of a sports talk show in Topeka, Kan., on WIBW radio. Joining Sharpe again on men's basketball telecasts as color analyst will be Matt Davison, who also returns for his fifth year handling radio color commentary for men's basketball games on the Husker Sports Network.

FSN Midwest, a regional sports television network, reaches more than 4.3 million cable and satellite television homes in six states. It carries more than 2,000 hours of local programming each year, including professional basketball (Indiana Pacers), baseball (St. Louis Cardinals, Kansas City Royals) and hockey (St. Louis Blues), along with Big 12 football, Big 12 women's basketball and several other collegiate athletic contests. Compliance Guidelines

The University of Nebraska Athletic Department takes great pride in abiding by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the Big 12 Conference rules and guidelines that govern Division I competition. For the benefit of the many alumni, fans and booster club members who are so active in supporting and assisting the Huskers throughout the year, we would like to remind everyone of a few definitions and rules that apply to all athletic representatives and boosters.

NCAA Principles

Institutional Control

It is the responsibility of the University of Nebraska to control its intercollegiate athletic program in compliance with the rules and regulations of the NCAA.

Responsibility

The University of Nebraska's responsibility for the conduct of its program includes responsibility for the actions of its staff members and for the actions of any other individual, booster or organization engaged in activities promoting the athletic interests of the institution.

Compliance

The University of Nebraska must monitor its program to assure compliance and to identify and report to the NCAA instances in which compliance has not been achieved. An institution found to have violated NCAA rules is subject to disciplinary and corrective actions as determined by the NCAA.

NCAA Definitions

Athletic Representative/Booster

You are considered to be a University of Nebraska athletic representative if you:

- Are a present or past member of a University of Nebraska booster club or agency that promotes the Huskers' intercollegiate athletic program;
- Have made financial contributions to the athletic department or to an athletic booster organization of the University of Nebraska;
- Are, or have been, providing benefits (e.g., summer jobs, meals etc.) to enrolled student-athletes, their family members or friends;
- Are, or have been involved in any manner of promoting the University of Nebraska intercollegiate athletic program.

Please note: Once an individual is identified as an athletic representative, that person retains that identity indefinitely. The University of Nebraska is ultimately responsible for the acts of all "representatives of athletic interests" in relation to NCAA rules and regulations.

Prospective Student-Athlete

A prospective student-athlete is a student who has started classes for the ninth grade or above, including students in prep schools and junior colleges as well as students who have officially withdrawn from a four-year institution and plan to transfer to another institution. In addition, a student who has not started classes for the ninth grade becomes a prospective student-athlete if the institution or a Nebraska booster provides the individual or the individual's relatives or friends with any financial assistance or benefits that the institution does not provide to prospective students in general. A good rule of thumb is to treat ALL STUDENTS as prospects.

Student-Athlete

A student-athlete is a student whose enrollment was solicited by a member of the Nebraska athletic staff or other representative of athletic interests with a view toward the student's ultimate participation in the intercollegiate athletic program.

Contact

A contact is any face-to-face encounter between a prospect, or the prospect's parent or legal guardian, and a Nebraska staff member or athletic representative during which any dialogue occurs.

Recruiting

Recruiting is any solicitation of a prospect or a prospect's family member (or guardian) by an institutional staff member or by athletic representative of the institution, for the purpose of securing the prospect's enrollment and ultimate participation in Nebraska's intercollegiate athletic program.

Guidelines and Reminders for Boosters

- A booster may not contact the prospect, prospect's coach, principal or counselor in an attempt to evaluate or recruit the prospect.
- A booster may not expend funds to entertain or provide transportation for a prospective student-athlete, the prospect's family members or friends.
- A booster may not become directly or indirectly involved in making arrangements for a prospect, or the prospect's relative or friends to receive money or financial aid of any kind.
- A booster may not contact a prospective student-athlete through letter writing, e-mail, telephone calling, text messaging, other forms of communication, etc.

However, here are a few ways that a Husker booster may be involved:

- You may discuss summer employment opportunities with a prospect after he/she has signed a National Letter of Intent with the University of Nebraska.
- You may attend high school athletic events without contacting prospective student-athletes.
- You may continue existing friendships with families and friends of prospective student-athletes.
- You may send recommendation letters, newspaper clippings or similar information about prospective student-athletes to Husker coaches.

Extra Benefit Guidelines and Reminders

Extra Benefit

An extra benefit is any special arrangement by a Nebraska employee or an athletic representative to provide a student-athlete or the student-athlete's relative or friend a benefit not expressly authorized by NCAA legislation.

Boosters may not provide any special arrangement considered to be an extra benefit by NCAA definition. Examples of extra benefits include but are not limited to:

- Providing cash or loans of any amount;
- Signing or co-signing for a loan or other forms of financial assistance;
- Providing use of a telephone or calling card to make local or long distance calls;
- Transporting a student-athlete or providing the use of a vehicle;
- Providing free or reduced rent housing; .
- Giving gifts of any kind (i.e. birthday, Christmas, Valentine's Day);
- Promising a student-athlete postgraduate education or employment;
- Offering free services (i.e. clothing, airline tickets, laundry, car repair, haircuts, restaurant meals);
- Providing payment to a student-athlete for a booster club speaking engagement;
- Providing employment for a prospect's relatives or friends.

Here are a few ways that a Husker booster may help:

- Do invite a student-athlete to participate in non-profit, charitable or educational events, but make sure to contact the compliance office for approval before the event.
- Do invite a student-athlete into your home for an occasional meal.
- Do pay a student-athlete the commensurate rate for actual and legitimate employment.

If you choose to assist in any of the ways described above, please contact the compliance office to receive prior approval.

For further information regarding NCAA Guidelines for Athletic Representatives, please contact the athletic compliance office at (402) 472-2042 or 1-(800) 927-7220. Inquiries may also be mailed to: Athletic Compliance Office, One Memorial Stadium, P.O. Box 880219, Lincoln, NE, 68588-0219. Questions can also be faxed to (402) 472-4609 or e-mailed to compliance@huskers.com.

Legend of the Cornhuskers

Before 1900, Nebraska football teams were known by such names as the Old Gold Knights, Antelopes, Rattlesnake Boys and the Bugeaters. In its first two seasons (1890-91), Nebraska competed as the Old Gold Knights, but beginning in 1892, Nebraska adopted Scarlet and Cream as its colors and accepted the Bugeaters as its most popular nickname until the turn of the century. Named after the insect-devouring bull bats that hovered over the plains, the Bugeaters also found their prey in the Midwest, enjoying winning campaigns in every year of the 1890s until a disappointing season in 1899.

After its first losing season in a decade, it must have seemed only fitting that Nebraska move in a new direction, and Lincoln sportswriter Charles S. (Cy) Sherman, who was to gain national renown as the sports editor of the Lincoln Star and helped to originate the Associated Press poll, provided the nickname that has gained fame for more than a century. Sherman tired of referring to the Nebraska teams with such an unglamorous term as Bugeaters. Iowa had, from time to time, been called the Cornhuskers, and the name appealed to Sherman. Iowa partisans seemed to prefer Hawkeyes, so Sherman started referring to the Nebraska team as Cornhuskers, and the 1900 team was first to bear that label.

Of course, the name caught on and became a Nebraska byword, eventually becoming the official nickname for the state.

There is no official symbol of a Cornhusker, and various cartoonists have caricatured the mystical something that typifies Nebraska football—some winning fan approval and others arousing fan ire.

The cartoon character, "Herbie Husker," evolved out of Nebraska's trip to the 1974 Cotton Bowl in Dallas. Artist Dirk West of Lubbock, Texas, designed a Cornhusker cartoon for the Cotton Bowl press headquarters that caught the eye of former Husker SID Don Bryant. Later, Bryant contacted West for permission to use the cartoon, and West expressed a desire to refine his original cartoon and improve some of the character's features. As a result, West was commissioned to draw an original Cornhusker cartoon character that served as a mascot for all Husker athletic teams.

Herbie is the registered logo of the Cornhusker Athletic Department, which controls its use. West's concept of Nebraska football is appropriate—a burly, rugged and confident fellow who is proud of both the athletic and the agricultural traditions of the University of Nebraska.

In 2003, Herbie enjoyed a resurgence in the spotlight as he underwent a makeover, helping him better portray Nebraska's "image of strength and power," according to Athletic Director Steve Pederson. A new and improved Herbie was unveiled Aug. 30, 2003.

Along with Herbie, the athletic department unveiled Lil' Red, the Cornhuskers' contemporary mascot, in 1994. Lil' Red has been commonly seen on the sideline of all Nebraska athletic teams in recent years and remains NU's official mascot along with Herbie.

Also in recent years, the University has used the Cornhuskers' football helmet superimposed on a script "Huskers" for a football logo, a registered trademark of the Athletic Department.

The newest addition to the athletic department's logo sheet is the Husker Nation mark. This stylized Husker design is currently only licensed for use by adidas, the team's official on-field apparel supplier. Adidas offers a full line of Husker Nation apparel that is available at retailers across the country. The scarlet and cream logo celebrates the passionate support given by Husker fans since the school's first year in 1869.

Nebraska continues to make improvements and changes at the start of the new century, but it also takes great pride in its history. Quite fittingly, "Bugeaters" has also been registered for exclusive use by the University of Nebraska.

University of Nebraska Licensing

In 1981, the University of Nebraska began a licensing program to protect the use of its name and symbols and ensure that NU logos are properly identified and associated on products bearing the institution's marks. The licensing department has helped Nebraska become one of the nation's largest revenue-producing universities, and Husker products are licensed around the world. The licensing department, considered one of the most innovative in the United States, is committed to building cooperative relationships with licensees and developing markets for "Officially licensed products of the University of Nebraska."

Herbie Husker, one of NU's two official mascots, originally debuted during NU's trip to the 1974 Cotton Bowl. In 2003, Herbie underwent a makeover to better represent the true spirit of Nebraska athletics.

Nebraska has joined a consortium of universities across the country to bring consistency in the marketplace for officially licensed collegiate products, protect the names and logos of universities and generate revenue to support scholarship programs and projects of those universities.

For more information on the Nebraska licensing program, contact Michael Stephens, Director of Licensing, Nebraska Athletic Department, One Memorial Stadium, PO Box 880154, Lincoln, NE 68588-0254 or (402) 472-9446.

Huskers Authentic

In 1997, the University of Nebraska athletic department added another dimension to its marketing strategy by expanding into retail sales with the creation of Huskers Authentic. The operation, which quickly became the No. 1 collegiate concept store in America, was put under new management in 2003.

CMS (Collegiate Marketing Services) was awarded the five-year contract that began in July of 2003, and supervises and manages the on-campus Huskers Authentic store, along with Internet, catalog and stadium sales. Authentic Husker products can be purchased at Huskers Authentic, located across the street from Memorial Stadium, by calling 1-800-965-8674 or on-line at Huskers.com.

Look for the Label

How do you tell if merchandise seen in stores or on the street is authorized by the University of Nebraska? Just look for the "Officially Licensed Collegiate Products" label. If the label is not there, the merchandise is not licensed through the University of Nebraska. For further licensing information, please contact:

The Big 12 Conference

Success On The Field And In The Classroom

The Big 12 Conference has been synonymous with success in competitive play and in the classroom as it enters its 12th season, and league members anticipate continued success during the 2007-08 academic year.

In the first 11 years of the Big 12, the conference can boast of 30 team and over 350 individual NCAA Championships. The success continued this past season, with team titles in men's cross country (Colorado) and women's volleyball (Nebraska) in addition to numerous individual crowns.

Over the past three seasons alone a total of 11 NCAA trophies have been hoisted by Big 12 institutions, with at least one national crown won in 10 of 11 years for the conference, including each of the past 10 seasons.

Through the first nine Bowl Championship Series title games, the Big 12 leads all conferences with five appearances in the contest. Big 12 squads have played for the football national championship five times in the last eight years, with berths in 12 BCS games overall.

In basketball, eight men's and women's teams have advanced to their respective Final Fours in the past six seasons as the Big 12 continues its place among the elite intercollegiate athletic conferences. Numerous national honors have been won by men's and women's student-athletes during conference history, with Kevin Durant (Texas) the most recent to garner accolades as the consensus 2007 National Player of the Year.

The Big 12 and its member institutions are committed to a competitive environment where sportsmanship and fair play take center stage. Whether on the field, in the classroom, or within the community the student-athletes, administrators, coaches and game officials of the Big 12 support the highest ideals in sportsmanship.

Big 12 student-athletes also do well in garnering national academic recognition. This past season, two league standouts were named the Academic All-America of the Year in their sport by ESPN The Magazine and the College Sports Information Directors of America. Nebraska's Sarah Pavan (volleyball) boasted a 4.0 grade-point average in biochemistry, while Aaron Ivey of Oklahoma (baseball) has a 4.0 GPA in energy management. Pavan also won the national academic honor presented for all sports. In addition, she was named recipient of the prestigious Honda-Broderick Award as Collegiate Woman Athlete of the Year. She is the first Big 12 athlete since the conference was formed to earn the accolade.

Competitive excellence, scholarship and sportsmanship are all equal components of the Big 12 philosophy. All-Big 12 teams and academic All-Big 12 squads are recognized for each sport at the end of their respective seasons.

At the end of each academic year, the conference honors its top male and female student-athletes with the Big 12 Athlete of the Year and Big 12 Sportsperson of the Year awards.

Institutions can also nominate student-athletes for the prestigious Dr. Prentice Gautt Postgraduate Scholarships at the end of each academic year. A total of 177 scholars have received more than $1 million in postgraduate financial aid through the first 10 years of the program.

The Big 12 sponsors 21 sports. Men's squads include baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, indoor track and field, outdoor track and field, swimming and diving, tennis and wrestling. Women's teams are fielded in basketball, cross country, golf, gymnastics, indoor track and field, outdoor track and field, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis and volleyball.

The conference is made up of 12 institutions that have shared many traditional rivalries throughout their histories. Member schools include: Baylor, Colorado, Iowa State, Kansas, Kansas State, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech.

The institutions created a league that encompasses seven states, over 45 million people and more than 18 million television households within its geographic footprint.

The conference conducts championships for 20 of its 21 sports. Each championship helps to determine teams and/or individuals that will represent the Conference in national postseason competition. The winner of the Big 12 football championship game earns the league's berth into the prestigious Bowl Championship Series.

In the last several years the Big 12 has increased its bowl agreements and expanded television opportunities for all sports through contracts with ABC/ESPN, FSN and CSTV. Most recently, the league renewed and expanded its multi-year arrangement with ABC/ESPN, Inc.

In its 11-year history, the conference has distributed $913.2 million to its 12 member institutions.

The Big 12 staff administers to over 4,600 student-athletes in 21 sports. The conference is headquartered in Irving, Texas.
